For example, the up-to-date corset cover is largely constructed of ribbon, whether it is a bolero in whape or a combination petitical and cache corset in one. The bolero shaped under bodies, that make any presention to daintiness, are constructed as a rule on the pattern of the pretty triffe displayed in the single figure, of a damoisell dressed to the point where he fine a firernoon gown is to be assumed. This is not at all an expensive bit of underwear. A nice domestic cambric is used in its construction and three rows of broad initiation.

Torchon edging finishes the neck, arm holes and bottom of the snug little garment. With this one of the very newest of the new white skirts is worn. Its cut and decoration are quite like that of the once proudly predominant silk petticoat. This is, however, a study in white cotton, white embroidery and blue ribbon. The advantage of such a skirt is, of course, that it launders, outwears two silk garments, and, when properly "gotten up, holds the creas skirt out far more stanchly than silk ever will.

Embroidery Wins the Day. In these days of scientific shopkeeping

woman can buy such a skirt already made and exquisitely laundered, or she can easily construct the whole thing herself by buying the deep, heavily needle worked flounce already cut out and gathered for swift

At this stage in the affairs of underwear there seems to be a preference expressed for embroidery over lace and women pass affectedly huge piles of knitted silk and lisle undervests and combinations marked down to a sacrificial figure to gladly purchase almost anything nice in the form of linen and cotton goods underwear. Knitted things had their day, and it was the day of the excessive tailor made that has now given way to coquettish frou-frouness. Mrs. Benjamin Harrison has taken her place as the unquestioned leader of society in Indiana. Her home in Indianapolis is the gathering place of the wits, the brains and the influence of the Hoosier state. Her library, collected by General Harrison during his illustrious career of more than forty years in public life, is the most complete and valuable private collection west of the Hudson river. At her death it is to be divided among General Harrison's children, Mrs. Harrison is a patron of music and literature.

A sedate little tot of a girl furnished considerable amusement for a number of street car passengers in New York the other afternoon, at the same time demonstrating that imitative motherly qualities begin to show themselves very early in life, in relating the little comedy a writer for the New York Times says that the child, who was with her mother, carried in her arms a doll half as big as herself. In the course of the ride the little one's mother found it necessary to give her maternal attention to the small girl's nose, and this being duly attended to she slipped the pretty lace-trimmed handkerchief she had used into the bag she was carrying and was about to close it, when the baby held out her small hand for it. It seemed she wished to finish the duty her mamma had begun, as such small children frequently do, but that was not true in this instance. Baby was a mother herself and, taking the handkerchief solemnly, she applied it to dolly's nose and handed it back to her mamma without a ghost of a smile. It was the mother and the other passengers in the car who exchanged smiles at the serious way in which the little one imitated service done for herself.

Up-to-date carriage bags have enough materials to supply a Robinson Crusoe with a library. There is a big address book, an engagement book, a pair of scissors, a paper cutter and a clock, always. The bags are usually mounted in silver, they cost a great deal of money, there is always a chance of their being stoien, no one was ever known to use one, and the clock is never wound. Notwithstanding all these weaknesses they are most attractive pieces of carriage furniture, and women cannot help taking a certain pleasure in them.

The Kind That Men Admire.

Men admire a pretty face and a good figure, but sooner or later learn that the happy woman, -that contented one is most of all to be admired Those troubled with fainting spells, irregularity, nervous irritability, backache, the blues and that dreadful bearing down feeling cannot hope to be happy, and advancement in either home or social life is impossible. It is clearly shown in the young lady's letter which follows that Lydia E. 1 inkham's Vegetable Compound will certainly cure the sufferings of women; and when one considers that Miss Murphy's letter is only one of the countless hundreds which we are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtue of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all a and for the absolute cure of all kinds of female ills no substitute can possibly take its place. Women should bear this important fact in mind when they go into a drug store, and be sure not to accept anything that is claimed to be "just as good" as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for no other medicine for female ills has made so many actual cures.

MISS MARGARETTA MURPHY, President "Lend-a-Hand Club," Seattle, Wash.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM - For three years I suffered with bearing down pains, backache, became nervous and hysterical and could not enjoy life as other young women did. A lady friend who had suffered similarly and been cured, suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had little faith in it, but nevertheless I gave it a trial, and I am glad that I did. I kept getting better gradually and my pains left me and within four months I was a well weman. This is a year ago and I have never had any trouble since. I wish all suffering women knew of your valuable medicine. - Yours very truly, Margar-ETTA MURPHY, 2703 Sec. Ave., Seattle, Wash."
