Who Are Lawbreakers?

The chief reason given for this conclusion is that the organized criminals and their supporters have conspired to smother the investigation of the government, and that the government officials who are handling the case have been influenced or intimidated by the criminals.

The organization of the criminals is highly sophisticated, and it is believed that they have been able to effectively manipulate the legal system and the media to conceal their activities.

The public is urged to be vigilant and to report any suspicious activity to the authorities. The fight against organized crime is ongoing, and the public's support is crucial to its success.
