Has No Intention of Making a Fight Against the New Ordinance.

When the Barbers' union met last night the members laughed at a report in a yellow afternoon journal to the effect that the journeymen barbers of the city were taking up the cudgels against the new ordinance of the city relating to sanitary precautions in harber shops. 'So far as we are concerned." said one of the officers of the union, "it makes little difference to us. Those of our members who run shops of their own may be affected to a certain extent, but they will readily comply with all regulations within the bounds of reason. Those who are employed in shops run by others have no direct interest in the matter and the boss barbers will have to take care of their own troubles. This does not mean that we will not assist them by every means in our power, but it does mean that the union, as a union, has no interest in the matter and that while we will co-operate with our employers the first steps against any disagreeable ordinance or regulation will have to come to us from them."

In regard to the two shops which have disregarded their contracts with the union the matter was discussed informally and it was decided to do nothing, as all mem bers of the union are comparatively well employed and the abrogation of the agreement has no practical effect upon the sarning capacity of the members of the

AT THE PLAYHOUSES

Ferris Stock Company at the Boyd. Mr. Dick Ferris came down from Minne apolis to take his own part in the annual production of that sterling comedy-drama 'My Jim," so well liked by Omaha patrons of the summer stock company. He was greeted by an overflow audience, the first in several days at the house. In addition to the attraction of a popular player in a popular part, it was the 100th performance of the company, and a handsome souvent of the occasion was given away. As to the play itself little need be said, as it is as well known in Omaha as any play can possibly be. Mr. Ferris is eminently suited to a role like that of Jim Mayne, and gives which the ordinary man would shrink like it his full attention, so that of him nothing the all-wool undergarment, were fearful more could be asked. the Council.

It is very evident that bond buyers have a combine and do not propose to pay a premium for the $70,000 overlap bonds if such a thing can be avoided. Bids for these bonds were to be opened at the meeting of the council last night. Although numerous buyers had made inquiries there was not a single bid. W. J. Hayes & Son, bankers at Cleveland, sent in a letter regarding the bonds, but no bld was made. Mr. Hayes wrote that he could not give par, but if the rate of interest was raised he might talk business to the council. The bonds offered are optional at the expiration of five years and were offered for 41/2 per cent. When the communication of Haves was read it was referred and the council went on about its business. During a break Mr. Barnett, representing the State bank of Toledo, asked permission to address the council. When the request had been granted Mr. Barnett said that some people might think that bond buyers had gone into a combine, but he firmly asserted that such was not the case. And then he went on at some length to tell why he happened to be in the city at this time and how he had forgotten to put in a bid. John Dale of Omaha, another buyer, followed. Mr. Dale scouted the idea of a combine. No one had asked Mr. Dale to defend his position, as he had not bid, and the council laughed heartily when he asserted that there was no combine.

All mammas, and papas too for that matter, dread the heat of summer with it's danger for the little folks, especially the babies. It is simply heart-breaking to read year after year about the great death rate among children caused by the summer's heat. Yet it is easy to protect the infants against all summer complaints, because we know that all these fearful perils have their beginning in stomach and bowel troubles, and we have a perfect family medicine that will keep the delicate machinery in a child's body clean, regular and in healthy working order in the hottest weather - CASCARETS Candy Cathartic. The plump, bouncing. crowing baby shown here is a CASCARET baby. He feels that way winter and summer. Nursing mammas take a CASCARET at bedtime, and it makes their mother's milk mildly purgative and keeps the baby just right. Older children like to take the fragrant, sweet little candy tablet, and are safe from colic, gripes, diarrhoea, summer rash, prickly heat and all the mean troubles that summer brings with it.
