There were forty-one entries in the singles and sixteen in the doubles, which is more than there were in the interstate tournament last year and more than have ever participated in a city tournament in Omaha. Right from the beginning the play was bright and quick and several of the younger men did the unexpected and stayed right in it even after they had met some of the players that were expected to beat them. The prizes, too, were the finest ever offered for a city championship tournament. For the first in singles there is a pair of gold cuff links; for second plaic, a silver-mounted buckhorn corkscrew; in the doubles, for the first pair, two silver and leather fiasks; for the second plair, two gun metal match boxes. The consolation prize are really the surprise, though, as they are almost as fine as the first and seconds in almost as fine as the first and seconds in n-illennium. One thing is certain, the is more than there were in the interstate ruinous high salaries of the last two or three seasons will be shaded, so that there will be money in the game for some besides the players. It is the announced determination of the big leagues to make a general reduction in salaries for the coming year. all new contracts to be thus affected. If the big leagues do this, the minors will have a much better chance. Another thing that is to be guarded against is the practice that has grown up during the war times of gobbling players from the little fellows without saying by your leave. The minors have had an understanding on this point for two years, and when the majors recognize it, the little club will have the netal match boxes. The cough, as they are are really the surprise, though, as they are unusually fine for a city championship and championships. CONDITIONS. protection it is entitled to. This destroys the control of the minor league managers good players as any of the best in the city over their players, while it does now. That is what the town needs to keep alive and I am glad to see it. "This tournament has shown up a dozen young players that are doing elegant work. Look at Chase. Scribner, Hughes, H. Kohn and J. G. Brown, for instance. They are just a handful of the youngsters that can play tennis. Hughes' defeat of Hill was as pretty tennis as anyone could ask for.
