Companion was put in to work against the lanky Swormstedt in the first game and beat him out as far as individual work was concerned, but Shugart, Thomas and Hickey all went to pieces simultaneously and at critical times, and literally presented the Creams with victory. Omaha hit enough to win ordinary games, but errorless ball on the part of the Creams made it impossible The feature of the game was Shugart's hitting. He got rour singles out

The misdoings of Omaha in the first game appeared to act in a disheartening way in the second and they all went to the bad. Every man on the field except the outfielders got errors. Shugart and Gonding were especially inclined to misplays. Schafstall started to pitch a good game, but the nonsupport of his teammates made him dis gusted and he let down perceptibly. Mc-Pherson, rie oppenent, kept the hits scattered and there was no show for Omaha at any stage of the proceedings. Attendance,

The revolver in the local police department is no longer a bluff, and any dog that knows his business will forego the popular disease of hydrophobia. When it comes to crooks who have a penchant for making their escape notice is served that they had better stand and be counted or make previous arrangements for a small plot of

All this comes about through the late revolver practice which the police force has engaged in. Chief of Detectives Dunn, professor of pistology, has been general manager of the game and he has had a hard position to hold, and one which has been more or less dangerous. The first instructions given by the chief were in the nature of primary movements in the use of the weapon, which end the bullet came out of, to pull the trigger in place of pushing it, have the holster off the gun when pulled and a few other little details. This course was followed by instruction in position.

When Mike Kissane came up to shoot the first time there was a farmer on the range who had been attracted by the crowd and had come out to see the sport. He did not know just what was going on but he was an interested spectator just the same. When Mike made the first shot the farmer began to back off the field. Sometime afterward he was telling one

MISSOURIANS' DAY IN OMAHA!

One Hundred Excursionists Spend Sunday in the Gate City.

HAVE TO BE SHOWN AROUND THE TOWN

Old-Timer Tells How Village of Wakenda Got Its Unique Name-Origin Comes from Negro Baptizing.

About 100 native Missourians, right from their fatherland, were the guests of Omaha yesterday. They came in on the Wabash road, put in the day being "shown" around and through a real metropolitan city and spinning good old-fashioned and in some cases well seasoned "Mizzoory" yarns to PHILIPPINE their interested hosts. Many came from as far inland as Stanberry. The agents of the railroad previously reported that fully 700 Missourians would take advantage of the low rate and come to Omaha. There may have been 700 when the seven coaches pulled out of Missouri, but only about 100 survived the trip. A majority, it is said, got sea sick of March, 1908, have been received at crossing the Big Muddy and left the train the insular bureau of the War departthere. The rest came over the river and ment, from whose summary of commerce they all had big grips and plenty of lunch. art gailery and others inspected the high clusive of gold and silver and government buildings, while all went to the parks. They all were proud that they were Missourians and none of them could have hid the fact if he had tried. A number of the old-timers who had not seen each other since the war until the Wabash assembled them for this excursion, met on the train and at the of this class of trade as compared with men settled the off-discussed question as cipally bemp and copra, both of which to how "Wakenda" (Walk-in-daw), Mo., products doubtless will be shipped in large got its name. This is a small town on the Wabash east of Kansas City, and it has prospects for greater exportation of sugar always been a question as to what incident lead to its naming.

How Wakenda Was Named. One of the old-timers said: "I had left

Price's army just after we tore the bottom out of the old bridge across the Chariton near Keytesville and had headed up toward Carrollton. About six miles from Carrollton in his initial performance, but he was not I saw a lot of 'niggars' crowded around a pond. They were having a baptizing. The old preacher had ducked several and was just going into the water with an old woman who weighed nearly 200. As the grace of a prince, draws a bend and the water came up on her she stopped and builet speeds to the proper place, the bullsthe preacher got out of patience. He grabbed a firmer hold on her and yelled, 'Walk en da, yo back slider!' She walked gated, that in case he vainly shoots away and a man who was with me opened a the founders of the Metropolitan Museum all his ammunition he is not to kill the store near that pond and in a few days of Art and for a long time president of the he gave it the name of 'Wakenda.'

DOG WITH FIVE GOOD LEGS Canine Not at All Discommoded by the Frenk Member with Bone Its Own.

While a six-legged hog is a fair curiosity in another section of the state, Omaha can | passed over his left leg below the knee boast of the presence of a good-natured and several fingers were taken off the left and intelligent five-legged dog. The dog hand. The leg was amputated this mornis of the coach variety, is just past 6 ing at Mercy hospital at the knee joint.

"Harry" is his name-is owned by Harry Wadsley, proprietor of a saloon at Jackson and Thirteenth street, in the Lange hotel block. The fifth leg projects from the right foreleg of the animal and is equipped with a single toe and claw. The freak limb is independently equipped with a legbone issuing from the shoulder and from the elbow or knee joint the two limbs are separate. The entire double limb is stiffened from the joint and is bent forward. The dog, however, manages to get around on three normal legs about as readily as any ordinary dog does with four ordinary legs. The deformity does not seem to interfere at all with "Harry's" inclination to play and romp, and he gives every indication of living to a good old age.
