ing, saying he did not wish to change his habits. He slept last night in the apartment, occupied by Cardinal Oreglia, during the interregnum, which is situated on the first floor of the Vatican. No decision has yet been reached concerning the pontiff's ultimate quarters, but it is already said that he desires them to be extremely modest.

At 7:15 the pope said mass, assisted only by Mr. Brennan, his confessor. His afterward took breakfast, which consisted of coffee, milk and a roll. Then, as he stood against the window, from which he caught a glimpse of the gardens of the Vatican, the pontiff exclaimed: "My first pleasure, when I can spare a moment, will be to explore the gardens which now confine my little world. How, by how shall I get on without my fondest country thrums. How I shall miss them, and my sea."

Pope Pius wished to see personally most of the innumerable telegrams of congratulation which were pouring in upon him, for which he cared not, and looked at the copies, changing here and there a word. Then he prepared for the morning's reception of the cardinals in the Sistine chapel, which, during the night, had been cleared of its temporary furniture, used for the ballots, and was assuming its normal aspect.

Receives the Cardinals.

Third and last, obedience of the sacred college was consummated this morning with the same ceremonial as before, in the Sistine chapel. The pope, being in his full pontifical robes and palpably restored in mind and nerves by a night's rest in the cardinal's bed before him and kissed his hand and foot, all smiling and apparently in a perfectly contented frame of mind. They themselves, in turn, received a hearty embrace from Pius X. The music was directed by Abbe Perosi, who was the pontiff's protegee, all present remarking how the Sistine choir had improved its method since being placed under the Abbe's care.

Every available corner of the small chapel was filled this morning and those present seemed to forget Pius X in their pleasure in the magnificent harmonies of the voices of the choir, and the feast of color as they looked on the pictures before them. The ceremony ended about noon.

Walks to the Chapel.

Both going to and coming from the Sistine chapel, when he passed through Sistine loggia, and the central hall, the pope refused to be carried in the sedia gestatoria, which, however, followed him. After taking a few steps, he turned to Mr. Bialek and said: "I shall never voluntarily get into that box."

A Te Deum was sung this morning in the Sistine chapel in honor of the election of the new pope. All the cardinals were present except Cardinal Herren of Eszencia, who is still ill in his cell, although somewhat better than yesterday.

This morning the pope conferred as secretary-chamberlain Mr. Sicky, Sapielli, Miscatelli and Sans de Sampere, and confirmed the Marquis of Serrapelle, as master of the horse, and Mr. Silli, as dean of the groves. He appointed Mr. Dull secretary of Latin letters to replace Mr. Tarascio, who is ill, and also Mr. Sardi, as secretary for briefs to the princes, to replace Mr. Volpini, who recently died.

When in the past people used to ask Cardinal what he would do if made pope, referring to his modesty and affability, he replied: "I shall have white robes instead of red; that will be the only change; I shall remain the same Sarto as ever."

Keeps a Promise.

He seems to have been sincere in thinking that he would not make pope, Mr. Stratimirovich, the Russian prelate, accompanied him to Rome and up to the door of the Sistine chapel, and in taking leave, as usual, begged that Cardinal Sarto would be made pope. His eminence replied, laughing: "No, no fear for me. Tell me the number of your telephone and I will let you know who receives the honor."

Keeps a Promise.

In all the excitement of the first triumph, he kept his word and went to the telephone

CUPID'S FOOD

After a Bump on the Pike.

No one expects true love ever to run perfectly smooth, and it doesn't. A Texas girl was thrown from her horse, and how food righted the situation she best can tell.

"Seven years ago last March I was thrown from my horse and although I did not seem much hurt at the time in a few months I began to suffer, gradually growing so weak that I had to stop school and never felt well. I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not do work of any kind. Five years ago I became engaged to be married as soon as my health was better but we waited and waited for years and there was no change. About New Year's ago I said we will wait three months longer and if I am not lots better we will part forever. It seemed that we were doomed to suffer the rest of my life. A few weeks later a friend asked me if I had ever tried Grape-Nuts food and begged me to get a package. I did this not having any hopes of it helping me but before I had used the first package I felt stronger than I had for a long time.

"So I continued the use of Grape-Nuts twice a day with plenty of cream and how the United States does not hold gold enough to buy my health and the happiness that has become mine because of this health. It was not long before I was entirely well and strong once more and last September I was married and am the happiest young woman in the world and all of it is the outcome of using the food Grape-Nuts.

"Now that I have written my letter I feel that it is not a success for I cannot find words that seem half strong enough to me to tell you how thankful I am."

FEUD LEADER ON THE STAND

Judge Hargis Strives to Repay Debt of Gratitude by Defending Jett.

CYNTHIANA, Ky., Aug. 5.—In the Jett and White trial today the defense placed Mrs. Louis South, a sister of Judge Hargis, on the stand.

She contradicted Miss Emma Clark, who testified for the commonwealth last Friday. Mrs. South corroborated other witnesses for the defense in placing Curtis Jett near the tree in the court house yard after the first shot was fired.

Dr. J. H. Taubee said Ewen had told him he could not tell who had fired the first shot that killed Marcum. Thomas O'Connor's testimony corroborated that of Brown and Dr. Adams yesterday, in placing Jett near a tree in the court house yard.

Charles Thompson, a new witness, contradicted Ewen and corroborated Taubee. Judge James Hargis was placed on the stand. He said he saw Ewen running and Marcum fall, and saw Curt Jett on a street corner near a tree, after the shooting. He said Sheriff Callahan was in his store and he prevented Callahan from going out.

Judge Hargis was cross-examined by Mr. Byrd. In reply to a question as to why he stood by Jett, his nephew, when they did not speak to each other, Hargis said Jett was not treated right when he was brought to court by fifty soldiers with a Gatling gun. On being pressed for another reason Hargis said Jett's mother had cared for him during the war when his father had been run away by federal soldiers and that as an honest man he now wanted to repay that debt with interest.

Sheriff Ed Callahan followed Judge Hargis. Several times he became confused and contradicted his own testimony. He corroborated Judge Hargis as to what he had told Ewen when he sent for him and asked him as to who did the killing and if he saw any one do it. Ewen, he said, told them he did not know who did it and that he was afraid of his life.

Hargis recommended him to assist the authorities in capturing the murderer and if necessary he would put the county's power behind him, and if that was not enough he would verify Governor Heckman to send fifty soldiers to Jackson to protect him.

On cross-examination Callahan contradicted himself several times and several of his statements did not correspond to his testimony before the grand jury which indicted Jett and White.

The next witness was Brock Combes, who said he was in the room and heard Judge Hargis talk to Ewen and that Callahan and Squire Edwards also were present.

He corroborated what Judge Hargis and Callahan said concerning this meeting.
