CONDITION OF OMAHA'S TRADE

Business Outlook More Promising Than at Condition of Trade and Quotations on Grains Were Extremely Weak on Chicago Any Time This Year.

TRADE THIS MONTH VERY SATISFACTORY

Several Important Price Changes Went Into Effect Last Week, Particularly in Line of Groceries, Which Are Advancing.

The business situation in Omaha and surrounding territory is now considered more favorable than at any time this fail. During the cold weather of last week the outlook was rather gloomy, but after the sun came out and it was learned that the damage from frost was not so serious as feared every one was filled with new hope and confidence. The general opinion gathered from travelling men and from country merchants who have been in the city within the last few days is that the corn crop has been damaged very little by the frost, while some of it has been improved, and in reality the outlook for a crop is better than it was a month ago. Merchants are confident that they are going to do a good business and as a result they are placing liberal orders with local jobbers. They figure, that corn is bound to command good prices, so that even if there is rather a light crop farmers will have plenty of mosey, and in fact their profits will be larger than they would be if the crop were a record breaker and prices low. The total volume of business transacted by Omaha jobbors during the first half of September is reported as being the best ever known. This is true of practically all lines and is taken as a good proof of the growing influence of Omaha as a jobbing center. The latter half of the month is expected to be fully as good, especially if the weather should be warm and favorable for the maturing of corn.

There have been several important market fluctuations during the week under review, but by far the majority of them have been in the direction of higher prices. Collections are reported as being in fully as good condition as could reasonably be expected at this time of the year. The business situation in Omaha and

Groceries Selling Higher.

Greceries Selling Higher.

The tendency of the grocery market is undoubtedly upward. This is due in part to the unfavorable weather of last week and also to the exceptionally heavy demand, both at home and abroad. Local jobbers have been enjoying a very liberal trade and in fact have had about all they could do to keep up with their orders.

The sugar market in one way is an exception to the general upward movement, but in another it is not. The New York market on raws is practically the same as it was a week ago, but refined grades are a little lower. This is owing to keen competition existing between several of the isfineries in the west, and, should these differences be adjusted, the probabilities are that higher prices on refined grades would go into effect. The demand continues unusually heavy and local jobbers say that unless supplies come forward more rapidly this coming week orders may not be filled as promptly as usual.

The pheese market shows quite an advance. This is caused by a continued beavy export demand, together with heavy shipments to the southern trade. The factories will close down about November 1 and a steady advance in prices is boing looked for from this time on.

The bean market was very excited last week and there was a sharp advance every day. The cold, rainy weather which has been experienced throughout the bean producing sections of Wisconsin and Michigan for the last two weeks, which was just the time when the crop was maturing, is responsible for these advances. It is estimated that the loss will amount to 50 per cent of the total output. The advance in prices for the week amounts to 2635c per bushel, with yeary fear of the factories. Which cent of the total output. The advance in prices for the week amounts to 25 35c per bushel, with very few offerings. While California is producing an Frage crop, the growers are not slow to take advantage of the less sustained in Michigan and Wisconsin and are advancing their prices to correspond to the eastern markets. The frost scare of last week caused a very uneasy feeling in future canned corn and buyers were taking in goods at prices ranging 25050c per dozen higher than the opening prices. Up to the present time, however, no serious damage to the crop in lowa and Nebraska has been heard of.

California canned goods are in very active demand, but sales are being confirmed only on a part of the line. Peaches and pears as well as aprignis are in very light supply. That is particularly true of pears, which are practically exhausted, except for the extra standards and better grades. cent of the total output. The advance in

Phat is particularly true of pears, which are practically exhausted, except for the extra standards and better grades.

The dried fruit market is quoted active, with prices practically the same as they were a week ago. The California association has made prices on the new crop of walnuts and it is found that they are about 2% oper pound higher than they were at the opening of the season a year ago. Owing to the fact that the supply is limited and that first-liass imported nuts cannot reach New York before the last of November the general impression is that the California crop will all go out and prices may even be advanced.

The coffee market attracted considerable attention last week, owing to the fact that the crop estimates of Rio and Santos have been reduced several million bags. This, to gether with increased demand and light supplies in this country, has caused an advance in the market amounting to the perpound.

There were more dry goods buyers on the market last week than expected. Their orders were not particularly large, but there were so many of them that the aggregate was very satisfactory to all concerned. Jobbers are looking for a continued active market until after the Ak-Bar-Ben festivities. During the carnival they anticipate a very active trade, as a large number of buyers have expressed their intention of being in the city at that time.

There have been no quotable changes in the city at that time.

There have been no quotable changes in the market on leading staples during the week under review. The high price of cotton still keeps the manufactured lines very strong and there seems to be no doubt in the minds of those best posted but what present prices will be easily maintained throughout the season.

Active preparations are being made by local jobbers for spring business and a good many traveling salesmen have already started out with some lines of spring goods. Within the next week or ten days jobbers expect the spring orders to be coming in very freely and are confident that they will do a nice advance order business. A better and larger line will be shown by Omaha houses this year than ever before. Dry Goods Continued Active.

Decline in Price of Axes.

The hardware market as a whole is in very much the same position it was a week ago, with values on a good firm foundation. The only change in fact of any importance is a reduction in the price of axes amounting to about 500 seper dozen.

The demand for seasonable lines of hardware is now of very liberal proportions, as the cold weather of last week made it practically necessary for people to set up their stoves, which always brings in a large number of orders for that class of goods. Other seasonable lines also moved out very freely, so that jobbers did a lively business. Not only that, but they say indications are very favorable for a continued heavy demand for some time to come.

An advance of & on linseed oil went into effect last week.

No Change in Leather Goods.

No Change in Leather Goods.

There is nothing particularly new to report regarding the situation in leather goods. There were a large number of buyers in the city last week and placed liberal orders. Traveling men also met with good success on the road and report fall trade with retailers as opening up in good shape. The wet weather, of course, made it necessary for poople to have good footwear and for that reason rubbers sold to some extent. Jobbers, however, did not feel the sfiects of the domand for that class of goods to any extent.

Rubber ciothing, however, was in very good demand both in a retail and wholesale way. Rain coats in particular were in hig way. Rain coats in particular were in big demand and in fact lobbers had about all they could do to supply the demand. This has been the most successful year ever ex-perienced by jobbers of rubber ciothing, ow-ing to the excessive rainfall.

Fruits and Produce. " There was a good demand all the week for fruits. Owing to that fact and also to the fact that the end of the season is approaching the tendency of prices on all such lines as peaches, pears and plume was upward, as will be seen from the quotations a another column. Home-grown grapes are any one of the most popular lines on the narket and are selling at 25c per basket. The drop so far is in very good condition. The supply of apples is now much better han it has been before and the quality of he stock has also greatly improved. The lemand is very satisfactory for this season. Vegetables are selling in about the same stockes they were a week ago, with the exception of potatoes, which have advanced a 25cfbox per bushel.

The egg market has advanced considerably, but butter and poultry have not hanged to any great extent.

CATTLE—There was quite a string of cattle reported this morning for a Saturday, but most of them were billed through and in fact not enough cattle were sold to make a test of the market. For the week receipts have been fairly liberal, as there is an increase over last week amounting to more than 5,000 head. As compared with the corresponding week of last year, however, there is a decrease of about 15,000 head.

the corresponding week of last year, however, there is a decrease of about 15,000 head.

There was quite a sprinking of cornfed general was in good shape utili the late market on Thursday. At that time packers began pounding the market in bad shape and continued the same tactics on Friday. On those two days they took off about 25c, which left the market right around a quarter lower than at the close of last week. All kinds suffered in the decline. One of the principal reasons for this break in prices at this point was the decline at eastern markets earlier in the week, which left this market out of line, and packers consequently had to take it all off at one time.

market out of line, and packers consequently had to take it all off at one time. It is not safe to quote good to choice cornfeds higher than $5.3545.50, while fair to good cattle would sell from $4.75 to $5.25 and commoner kinds from $4.35 to $4.65.

The cow market has held up in much better shape than the market for cornfed steers. Good to choice grades can safely be quoted about steady. By this is meant grass stock good enough to being $2.90 or cornfeds good enough to sell above $3.75. A strictly choice bunch of cornfeds ought to sell right around $4.50, while choice grassers could be quoted up to $3.65. The cattle that have suffered are the medium and common cows, such as sell from $2.75 down, but even those are not more than 10020c lower.

Bulls, veal caives and stags have shown very little change all the week and could not be quoted anything but steady. Choice veals sell up to $5.00 and grass bulls sell largely from $2.00 to $2.50. Cornfeds are very scarce.

Bulle, veal calves and stage have another and the counted anything but steady. Choice veals sell up to $5.00 and grass bulls sell week of the season in the stocker and receipts have been about the most successful week of the season in the stocker and receipts have been ilbertal, prices have been strong all the week and not many cattle will be carried to $5.00 and grass to the season and the clearly weather led to will be carried and also choice heavy dehorned cattle and also choice heavy dehorned cattle and also choice hornous stuff has sold more readily this week, but the prices have not improvement over the season study and the consequence where the control of the week but the prices and the consequence where the control of the week but the prices that the prices that the prices can be seased of some sold the prices are the case all the senson, the quality was rather inferior, but showed some improvement over the sold that the prices are the case all the senson, the quality was rather inferior, but showed some improvement over the but owing the control of the week but, the general run sold from $1.00 to $3.00 and fair to be the case all the senson, the quality was rather inferior, but showed some improvement over the but owing to the break in corrider it is been lost and probably more, too, especially on the common kinds. Cotton, Market. NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—COTTON—The market opened steady at unchanged prices to 7 points lower, following lower cables than expected, but showed considerable steadiness at the lower level; and shortly after the call rallied to about last night's finals on the more active months as a result of scattered demand, which was promoted by the continued low temperatures. Otherwise the early weather map was favorable and the clearing weather led to LONDON, Sept. 19.—WOOL—The offerings at the wool auction sales today numbered 13,100 bales; all grades were in demand and prices were firm and in sellers' favor. Merinos caused an active competition and they advanced to the highest point of the series. Fine cross-bred pieces and medium greasy merinos sold well to France. A large line of accoured new clip was taken by German buyers. Slipes and cross-breds were very firm. American buyers secured a few parcels of three-fourths blood lambs and combing wools and also a moderate supply of medium at high rates. Next week 71,020 bales will be offered.
