One Statute Upheld.

The supreme court upheld the law which inflicts a fine on a railroad company when the engineer fails to stop his train at a crossing. The law was attacked as unonstitutional because it undertakes to inflict punishment on a corporation for the criminal acts of its employes, but the court holds the law all right. But in this case, which came from Story county, it was shown that the engineer was unable to stop his train at Slater because the brakes would not work, and the court holds that penal statutes of this character must be construed in the light of the intent of the person violating. The case is therefore rethe wonderful resources of the south and the exceptional opportunities for investment in farm and timber land. Special advantages offered to homeseekers.

the south will certainly have a big boom in the next few years, for lands there have not yet reached nearly their proper value in comparison with the value of their products. Rate quoted above is very much less than the regular one-way fare.
