HOLDUP MAN RETURNS VICTIM'S MONEY

University Authorities Announce Number of Farmers' Institutes to Be Held Over State During the Winter Senson.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Dec. 2 .- (Special.)-The sed piece of work of the late legislature to be attacked in the supreme court is what s known as the Ager scavenger bill, which requires the sale of property for taxes after so many years, for what it will bring, the purchase price to wipe out all back taxes assessed against the property. The suit came from Beatrice, where the city of Beatrice has a claim for back taxes against several lots, as has also the county, which recently through its treasurer sold the property, the purhase price being $1 for each lot. The back taxes against the property amount to several hundred dollars, of which onethird is owing to the city. The city, through its attorney, today applied to the supreme court for an injunction to prevent the making out of the certificate of sale or a tax deed. The attorney holds that the law is unconstitutional in that such a procedure would result in a commutaion or a reduction of taxes.

Holdup Man Repents.

While the people of Lincoln are carry ing canes and revolvers for the suppression of the holdup artists, comes now one of the tribe who has demonstrated that he has a heart and it is in a good place. Today Chief of Police Routzahn received letter, unsigned, inclosed with which was $6.50 which the writer stated he had stolen from L. K. Holmes, whom he held up last winter. He requested the chief to deliver the money to the rightful owner, as his conscience so troubled him he could not longer keep it. The money was given to Mr. Holmes and the police will make no effort to apprehend the sender, believing that his reformation is complete.

Farmers' Institutes.

Announcement has been made by the university department of farmers' institutes of the following institutes for the turrent winter, which, as will be noted. ncludes about a dozen that have already been held:

INCINERATED WOMAN

Mrs. Martha Schlontman of Elmwood Burned to Death in Her Home.

ELMWOOD, Neb., Dec. 2.-The cottage occupied by Mrs. Martha Schloatman and her daughter was destroyed by fire this evening and Mrs. Schloatman was burned to death. John Folhurst, who tried to save her, was badly, but not fatally burned. Mrs. Schloatman was 90 years old, and a helpless invalid. Her daughter tried to rescue her, but owing to the aged woman's great weight, nearly 400 pounds, she was unable to drag her from the room. The daughter was slightly injured.

When they got to poking around this they found stuck away under the ties an eight-ounce bottle of nitroglycerine, two sticks of dynamite, a coll of blasting fuse, about a pound of beeswax, a dozen large percussion caps, several tallow candles-in short a regular safe cracker's outfit. The stuff had the appearance of having laid there for some time and was no doubt put there by fellows who had a hand in the Emerald bank robbery last month. The stuff was taken in charge by the chief of police and will be destroyed.

Corn Stalk Disease in Polk. COLUMBUS, Neb., Dec. 2.-(Special.)-The cornstalk disease has broken out in this part of the state. CHARGES AGAINST INDIANS DISMISSED Clash with Sheriff's Party Brought on by Misunderstanding and Shots Fired First Come from the Whites.

The Ogiala Light, a monthly magazine published at the boarding school at the Pine Ridge agency, gives the following version of the recent clash between th Indians and the sheriff near Newcastle, Wyo., when the sheriff and one of his deputies and four Indians were killed outright and several on both sides were wounded. It is the first time the Indians'

side of the story has been heard:

side of the story has been heard:

So much that is untrue and misleading has gotten into the papers relative to the unfortunate clash at Lightning Creek, Wyo., October 31, between certain Indians from the Pine Ridge agency and the sheriff and posse of Weston county, Wyo., that we deem it but proper to make the following statement of the facts as gleaned from Indians who were present at the time of the trouble and from others, both Indians and white people, who visited the scene later and heard the evidence given by memoers of the sheriff's party at the trial at Douglas.

Some time in the early part of October passes were issued by Agent Brennan to two small parties of Indians, one headed by Charles Smith, the other by William Brown, both Intelligent, law abiding, well disposed men, the former having creditably filled the position of assistant farmer on the reservation for a number of years, to visit the Black Hills and vicinity for the purpose of gathering berries, roots, herbs, etc. There were all told only about thirty-five Indians, by far the greater part of them being old men, women and children. Both parties drifted over into Wyomling and, meeting by accident, agreed to go back to the reservation together.

When the Sheriff Appeared.

When the Sheriff Appeared.

When the Sheriff Appeared.

On October 30, while camped together on Dry creek in Converse county, Sheriff Miller of Weston county, with a posse of seven men rode up and accosting Smith as the man best able to speak and understand English, told him that he had a warrant for the arrest of the Indians for the violation of the game laws of Wyoming and that they must go with him to Newcastle. Smith denied that either he or any of his party had violated any law and refused to go. Brown, while likewise disclaiming any infraction of law, said he was willing to go if Smith would. Smith, however, remained firm in his refusal. The matter was discussed in a quiet and friendly way and the sheriff sparty remained and ate supper which Mrs. Brown prepared for them. After supper the Indians broke camp and started on their way home. The sheriff and posse accompanied them to the point where the road to Newcastle branched off and at this point made another effort to induce the Indians to go with them. The effort was fruitless, the Indians without further parley continuing on their way. The anertiff's party then took the road to Newcastle. The indians drove some twenty-five miles and were travelling along Lightning creek about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when they came to a fence built across the road. There were about fifteen wagons in the train, which were strung along a distance of about half a mile, a boy about fl years of age driving the extra ponies a short distance in advance of the wagons. As they approached the fence a little gir ran forward and opened it. The boy and passed through when the Indians discovered about of their when the lindians discovered about of their men, all heavily armed. Here is where the trouble began.

Steries of the Fight.

Stories of the Fight.

Stories of the Fight.

The accounts of the fight as told by the sheriff's party on one hand and by the Indians on the other, differ radically. The former state that they were stationed just outside of the fence and that as soon as the Indians saw them they began to get out of their wagons and prepare to fight, whereupon the party moved back about fifty yards and took up a position in the bed of the creek, which is dry, and where they were sheltered ffy a bank about five or six feet high. As the indians came on, the party stepped upon the bank and demanded that they balt and surrender. The party claim that at this time the Indians began firing from the back part of the train and that then the fight became general. The firing lasted from three to five minutes, at the end of which time the Indians had all disappeared.

The Indians, however, say that as they were going through the gate, the boy with the ponies and two or three wagons having passed it, the boy suddenly turned his horse and rushed back toward the wagons, excialming. "Look out! White men with guns going to shoot!" They state positively that not only did the sheriff's party begin the firing, but that they did so without warning. The boy and the ponyhe was riding were killed at the first voiley, the boy being shot from behind and the top of his head being literally blown off. The Indians also say that the fire was returned only by two or three men in the fore part of the train and that the balance of the party were so taken by surprise that they attempted no resistance, but fied immediately with the women and children, leaving their wagons and camp coulpage on the field.

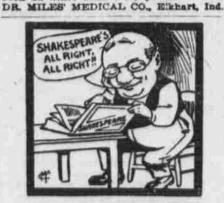

Such are the statements made by both parties to the affair. The result of the fight was that two white men, Sheriff Miller and one deputy, and four Indians are old man and a woman, were wounded. The woman has since died.

Indians Finally Aequitted.

pearing for the Indians. After all the evidence for the prosecution had been heard, the justice dismissed the case and released the Indians.

The occurrence was a very unfortunate one and is much to be regretted. While nothing is to be gained by agitation of the matter, it is the opinion of many that the trouble was brought on by imprudent and indiscreet conduct on the part of the sheriff and might have been averted. The Indians of course made a mistake in not going with the sheet are stated with the warrant, but there is excuse for their course in the fact that other Indians had been arrested in Wyoming and confined for considerable periods in fall without any charge being preferred against them and without being given trial, and these Indians knew it. Agent Brennan had been detained ten days without the shadow of a charge and it was only when he threatened to bring action against the parties responsible for the outrage that the Indians were released. family to at least give Swamp-Root a bottle Major Brennen's Conduct.

The statement of the congressman from Wyoming that the trouble was the fesult of bad management of the agency affairs, finds no justification among reasonable people familiar with the conditions and circumstances. Agent Brennan, in issuing passes to these Indians to go off the reservation, violated neither law nor precedent, nor did he commit an error of judgment. The practice of issuing passes to limited parties of Indians to leave the reservation prevails at all agencies and finds warrant in the regulations prescribed by the government for the conduct of Indian affairs. It is not true, as was stated in several papers, that these Indians were absent from the reservation for the purpose of hunting, nor is there any evidence that they were hunting in violation of the laws of Wyoming. The fact is that they were simply traveling through the state in the same manner that hundreds of the Wyoming and Montana Indians every year come into South Dakota to camp in the Black Hills and to visit friends on the various reservations. Such parties are allowed to roam unmolested through the state and are always accorded courteous and kind treatment.

The Indians making up this party have trial. Its staunchest friends today are those who had almost given up hope of ever becoming well again.

The Bee Quotation Contest

During the week beginning Monday, November 30, and ending Sunday, De cember 6, The Bee will publish each day, well known quotations-twenty-five in all-which will be printed from day to day at the top of its Want Ad Page; the names of the authors will not be printed. Prizes as given below will be awarded to the winners of the Quotation Contest, on the following conditions:

At the top of a sheet of paper, write your name and address. Then write out the quotation, as it appears in the paper and give the author, or source of the quotation. Then look through the Want Ads and cut out any advertisements appearing in these columns on that day, from which words may be taken to make up the quotation; paste them underneath the quotation in regular order and underline the words constituting the words of the quotation. Do the same with the second quotation, and so on, until you have completed the twenty-five quotations, the last of which will appear in The Bee of Sunday, December 6.

Each correct quotation made up from words appearing in Want Ads, in the way described above, will be counted as two, and each correct name of the author as one, on the score of the contestants.

The person having the highest score will receive the first prize, the one having the next highest score the second prize, and so on. In case of a "tie," the person sending in the ancwer first, as shown by the postmark on the envelope, will be given preference. All answers must be-sent by mail. No one connected with The Bee Publishing Company will be allowed to com-
