Wanted. Mrs. Patton had died of diphtheria. Mrs. Patton attended to all arrangements and though a frail woman succeeded in filling the grave in the usual manner.

Miss Stover missed the watch one day after the family had been away on a visit and the house was left without occupants. One of the doors of the house was found open when the family returned and this led to the theory of robbery.

By impersonating a wealthy woman over the telephone, some one has imposed upon merchants in Indianapolis to the extent of several hundred dollars. The scheme was to call the proprietor of a store by telephone, asking that certain articles which the woman had looked at to be sent to her house that she might make a selection.

The late Jesse G. Hawley, owner of the Reading (Pa.) Eagle, by writing directed that $50,000 be set apart each year to those who had been in his employ three years, to be distributed according to salary and length of service.

Journal, "the faithful old bell in the belfry brings to the hearts that love the hour that God will bind them with a cord of love that passeth all understanding, and may through the years to come each day bind them more securely, keeping their hearts one and when the call comes to cross to the brighter world, may God will them to enter the land of perfect peace hand in hand."

Mrs. L. M. Patton, a pretty young widow who conducts an undertaking establishment in Spokane, Wash., buried a child and with her own hands filled up the grave after lowering the remains therein. The law provides that in cases of dangerous contagious diseases the undertaker shall personally do all the handling of the body.

more than a glass of home-made currant jelly and dissolve over boiling water. Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a pinch of cayenne. Mix a teaspoonful of dry mustard with a tablespoonful of corn starch and mix with a smooth paste with cold water; add to the jelly and cook until clear and thick; then serve at once.

Apple, Cream and Chestnut Salad.—Arrange a border of very fresh, crisp lettuce around a flat serving dish. Pare about four good eating apples and cut them up into short straws; immediately dress with lemon juice and oil. Have ready and chilled the same quantity of boiled French chestnuts, mixed with mayonnaise, and a few tablespoonfuls of whipped cream.

Honey Cakes.—Take three pounds of flour, one and one-half pounds of honey, half a pound of sugar, half a pound of butter, half a nutmeg, grated, one tablespoonful of ground ginger and a teaspoonful of baking powder.

Mix sugar with the flour and ginger and butter the whole to a smooth dough with the water, beaten to a cream, the honey and the baking soda dissolved in a little hot water. Roll out a quarter of an inch thick, cut into small cakes and bake them for twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Keep the dough cold while making up and the cakes will be nicer.

THE CHILD BURIED BY MRS. PATTON had died of diphtheria. Mrs. Patton attended to all arrangements and though a frail woman succeeded in filling the grave in the usual manner.

MISS STOVER MISSED THE WATCH ONE DAY after the family had been away on a visit and the house was left without occupants. One of the doors of the house was found open when the family returned and this led to the theory of robbery.

OTTO SCHEGELBERGER, a handsome young man, living in Germany, read in his paper how easy it was for good-looking foreigners to find rich American brides. So he drew his savings from a bank and sailed for New York, where he soon learned he had badly mistaken he had been. His money was going fast, and there being no sign of the expected millionaire, he began to look for work.

DR. CHARLES A. ST. JOHN OF BUFFALO, who died last week, was buried in his coffin which had once before contained his supposed corpse. In May, 1901, Dr. St. John fell into a comatose state while serving with the army in Luzon and was properly interred, it being supposed he was dead. He recovered consciousness, however, and succeeded in releasing himself from the shallow grave. Returning to his Buffalo home, he resumed his practice, but could not get rid of the seeds of the disease contracted in the tropics and passed away on Wednesday last week. He had brought home with him the coffin that had been used at his first interment and at his own request he was laid to his final rest in it.
