He took the oath of office on Decem-ber 2, 1901, at the opening of the regular senator of the senate. At the time of his election to the senate he was governor of the state of Nebraska, having been elected at the November election in the year 1900. He took the oath of office as governor on January 3, 1901, and resigned on May 1 of the same year.

Soon after making the arrangement to lease the same, it was agreed between Mr. Fisher and his deputy postmaster. Ed-win A. Francis, that they should be jointly interested in the lease of the room, each paying one-half, and sharing equally in any rents that might be derived therefrom. Francis paid to Fisher one-half of the rent while the arrangement lasted, which was repaid by Fisher, when Senator Diet-rich took the room off his hands.

proposition to lease to the government for the term of ten years a room for a post-office, in a building he was then con-structing in the city of Hantings, Neb., at a rental of $1.800 per annum, the fix-tures, heat, light and water to be fur-nished by him, he to keep the same in repair and to furnish all additional fix-tures deemed necessary during the term of the lease. This proposition was accepted by the department, and on March 13, 1901, Senator Dietrich signed a lease for the same, forwarded it to Washington, and on March 21 the proposition was formally accepted by the first assistant postmaster general. At this time the postoffice was, and had for some years been kept in a building owned by a Grand Army post, about forty feet from the building which was being erected by Senator Dietrich. The postmaster was notified by the de-partment of the lease of the new premises, immediately after which numerous pro-tests against the proposed change of lo-cation of the office were sent to the de-partment at Washington. These protests seem to have emanated from two sources -one, the Grand Army post, in whose building the postoffice was then situated, and the other from a different locality in the city, between which and the locality rich took the room off his hands. Fisher was a director in the bank of which Senator Dietrich was president, and his friends had made application to Sen-ator Dietrich while he was governor to ap-point Fisher to the office of oll inspector of the state. Mr. Fisher, in company with Mr. John D. Mines, visited the city of Lin-coln, where the legislature was in session. In February, 1901, and Mr. Mines asked Mr. John D. Mines, visited the city of Lin-coln, where the legislature was in session. In February, 1901, and Mr. Mines asked Mr. Dietrich to appoint Mr. Fisher to such position, but the governor informed Mr Mines, in the presence of Mr. Fisher, that he did not see his way clear to make such appointment; that if he should appoint him, Fisher would have to live at the cap-ital, and that the expense of doing so would be so great that he would not re-ceive much benefit from the office, but that he would use his influence to have Fisher appointed postmaster at Hastings. After the election of Mr. Dietrich as sen ator, Messre, Fisher and Mires again vis-lied him, and Senator. Districh then as-sured them that he would recommend Fisher as postmaster. Soon after his elec-tion as semator Mr. Metrich took a trip to the Big Horn mountains, and when he re-turned therefrom to Hastings, he sent for Mr. Fisher, who went to gee him, and was told by Senator Dietrich that he would soon recommend him for postmaster. A conversation infereupon took place with re-gard to the fixtures in the old postoffice, which Senator Dietrich had, as before stated, agreed to pay for when he should take possession of the same, or when the postoffice should be removed to the Die-trich building. Senator Dietrich asked Fisher replied, that he did not think he could raise the property owners there had recently contributed the sum of $3,000 to secure the location, of the sum of $3,000 to secure the location, of the sum of $3,000 to secure the location, of the sum of $3,000 to secure the location and the other from a different locality in the city, between which and the locality in the city, between which and the locality where the new building was being erected, there had been for years, an intense rivairy. These protests were of a char-acter which induced the postmaster general to notify Senator Dietrich that he thought it inadvisable to carry out the arrange-ment for leasing quarters from him unless the could secure more favorable terms. As a résult of this notice Senator Dietrich, about April 23, 1901, and while still acting as governor of the state of Nebraska, called upon the postmaster general in Washington and after discussion of the matter made a verbal proposition to lease the room in question as a postoffice for the sum of $1,300 per annum, with the under-standing that the government would pro-vide, at its own expense, fixtures, heat, light, water and make all other necessary expenditures on April 24, 1901, a written notice was sent to Senator Dietrich, signed by the first ansistant postmaster general, accepting this proposition. 'for a term of ten years from July 1, 1901, at a rental of 81,300 per annum, with the understanding that the present equipment in the postoffice at Hast-ings will be used in the new room, and the department is to defray the expense of re-moving the equipment and placing the same in position in the new quarters.'' While the first contract for leasing the president provide the present promises, which required Senator Dietrich with a subscription list to raise the money necessary; that other postmasters, when appointed, had purchased fixtures, and that he was willing to do the same. Soon after this, Mr. Fisher, was recommended by Senator Districh, and on June 8, 1901, re-ceived notice that his appointment as postmaster had been made." Senator Districhs and Mr. Fisher both testify positively and unequivocally that the purchase of the fixtures was in no way made a consister and that the trans-action whe only such as had been cus-While the first contract for leasing the premises, which required Senator Dietrich to fit the same up at his own expense, was in force, he made an agreement with the officers of the Grand Army post to pur-chase from said post all the furniture and fixtures belonging to the same and used for the postoffice in their building, for the sum of $500, to be paid whenever Senator District took possession of the same, or the postoffice was removed to the Dietrich building. To this indictment Mr. Dietrich pleaded not guilty and a jury was empaneled to try the case After the opening statement of the United States district attorney. In which he ad-mitted that the date of the offenses charged was prior to the taking of the oath of office of senator by Mr. Dietrich, a verdict of acquittal was directed by Circuit Judge Van Devanter, who held that the statute in question did not apply to a senator-elect, and a verdict of acquittal was accordingly rendered. and a verdict of acquiittal was accordingly rendered. In the second case, the record of which is printed, it is charged that Mr. Dietrich, while a senator in congress from the state of Nebraska, did hold and enjoy a con-tract theretofore entered into between tim-self and the United States for the use and occupation, for the purposes of a United States postoffice at Hastings, Neb., of a lot and building owned by the de-fendant. In this case a demurrer was en-tered, argued and overruled, but subse-quently, on the motion of the district at-torney, a nolle prosecul was entered, and Senator Dietrich was discharged. One of the other cases against Senator Dietrich differs from the first, the record of which is printed, only in the manner of charging the same offenses alleged in the first cuse, and in this case a nolle prosequi was also entered, upon the motion of the district attorney, and Senator Dietrich was discharged. Committee's Conclusions. The committee, desiring to make the fullest possible investigation of all the matters embraced in the resolution, through the attorney general of the United States, called upon the district attorney of Ne-brasks for the complete court record in all of the cases against Senator Dietrich and Mr. Fisher, and also a list of all witnesses by whom the district attorney expected to prove the allegations in the several in-dictments, together with a summary of what he expected to prove by each witness. Receiving such list and summary, all of the witnesses whose names were furnished by the district attorney, and other witnesses whose names were brought by the district attorney to the attention of the committee prove the allestication of the committee except two, one of whom is dead, and the other of whom was so ill as to be unable to appeared before the cond of these witnesses, both separate and joint, had been secured, and are printed in the testimony. In all of the indictments the prosecution relied upon the same facts to prove the offenses charged. It will appear that the committee, with such consent of Senator Dietrich, admitted not only such evidence against him as would have been competent in a court of juntice, but also a great deal of hearsay testimony, being all which was brought to their attention, as a possible clue to further information. The committee did not determine how far this proceeding would have been justified for any reason, without such consent, even if they had carefully refrained from stuching any weight to it in their final decision. But it in fact did not in the least tend to shake or affect the conclusion they have reached. The committee, with the consent of Senator Dietrich, in order that no possible fact bearing upon the matter might be overlooked, received the statements of all of the witnesses in full, not regarding strictly the rules of evidence in that re-spect. that will be put in the return to be made to the supreme court by the state officers were decided upon.
