GREEN STICKERS EVERY TIME.

from knowledge acquired by practical demonstration, as well as from extensive research. He tells where the crude article is found, treatment necessary to put it in shape for use, the cost and value of the final product, and the uses for which it is especially valuable. In fact it is a very exhaustive treatise on the subject. Lee & Shepard are the publishers.

Collectors of portraits of authors or players will find many beautifully done each month in the Book Lover. Each is the subject's favorite photograph and most of them are especially autographed for those readers of this magazine. In the May number the picture of Minnie Maddern Fiske is accompanied by an interesting unconventional biographical sketch. Brilliant, though dead and blind, Helen Keller's portrait bears her autograph, boldly and clearly penned.

The May Outing is replete with the bloom of spring. Charles Belmont Davis draws a graphic picture of going to the circus. "A Parian of a Skyline" is a striking account of coyote hunts in the west. Equally interesting is Robert Dunn's story of how he chases "Home by the sea" by Swimming From Mt. McKinley. Lamar Middleton writes on "The French Renaissance in Athletics." Much space is devoted to fishing and fishers, expeditions with a camera, nature notes and outdoor recreation. Typographically and pictorially as well as in contents the May number is superb.

BRINGS SUIT TO THIRD TRIAL

John T. Connolly Has Damage Case Against Union Pacific Up Again.

The case of John T. Connolly against the Union Pacific railroad is being tried before a jury in Judge Estelle's court. This is an action wherein the plaintiff seeks to recover damages to the extent of $50,000 for injuries, which resulted in the loss of both his legs, on the night of August 11, 1902. The plaintiff's declaration alleges that on the night of the date given he had delivered a carload of cattle to the stock yards in South Omaha and was in the act of returning to his hotel to retire when a train of the defendant's backed down upon him. The plaintiff claims that no warning of the approach was given, while the defense is that the plaintiff did not exercise proper diligence and care in crossing the tracks. This is the third time the case has been on trial, the two former trials having resulted in disagreements of the jury.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, the Best Made.

"In my opinion Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best made for colds," says Mrs. Cora Walker of Porterville, Cal. There is no doubt about its being the best. No other remedy will cure a cold so quickly. No other is so sure a preventative of pneumonia. No other is so pleasant and safe to take. These are good reasons why it should be preferred to any other. The fact is that few people are satisfied with any other after having once used this remedy.

Comfortable as Your Own Club

The last car of our 5:35 p. m. train for Chicago is an observation car—10 sleeping sections in front; a wide, cheerful, well lighted observation room in the rear.

Here you can smoke, chat, glance through the magazines and look at the scenery.

The chairs are big, the windows wide and the room is daintily as well as comfortably furnished. Each berth has its own individual light—convenient to undress by or to read by after you get in bed.

Remember the hour of departure—5:35 p. m. from the Union Station.

NEW BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

"A Knight of Columbia" General Charles King's Latest Offering.

GIRLS OF JAPAN SELDOM MARRY FOR LOVE

In "The Japanese Bride," Written by Naomi Tamura, Are Revelations that Would Make American Girl Feel She Was Lucky.

To those who are familiar with General Charles King's "An Apache Princess," "A Daughter of the Sioux," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," or "An Army Wife," his latest offering, "A Knight of Columbia," will need no further recommendation. In this story of the Civil War he introduces us at the graduation exercises of Columbia University to the three people in whom we are most interested throughout the story—Rex Ingraham, who has surprised his friends and charmed his hearers with his stirring address on "The Menace to the Flag," Ned Burnham, his chum, and Editha Rayner, a beautiful and favorite member of metropolitan society. The patriotism of the country is aroused to a high pitch as the volunteers are being mustered into the armies both north and south, for the outbreak of the war is expected any day. Rex Ingraham has fully decided to join in the cause for his country, but Ned Burnham is a man who thinks first of his own comfort and then of the comfort of others. When he sees that his chum has won the love of Miss Rayner he immediately decides that it is just what he desires. He has not been a studious and conscientious student and he proceeds to falsely accuse his absent friend of many unpleasant things while he is sharing the fortunes of war. The author gives us a glimpse of the New York riot and several very vivid battle scenes. The description of the formation and attack of a portion of Lee's army under the command of "Stonewall" Jackson on Hooker's detachment and the battle of Chancellorsville is splendid. With the ending of the war and the reward of our hero and the disposition of several other characters with whom we become acquainted in the course of the story the author concludes. The Hobart Company is the publisher.

Joseph R. Buchanan's clear, concise style is well adapted to the subject of his book, "The Outlook Company publish. In telling his personal experiences in the stirring labor field, he passes rapidly from one event to another, bringing in all the human incidents which give the book its real interest. Mr. Buchanan has a true love for the workman, and in putting forth facts in a most convincing light, makes a strong plea for him. The labor movements of which Mr. Buchanan tells appear because they are clean.

The girls of Japan have a hard row to hoe, as the saying is in a little book called "The Japanese Bride," written by a Japanese man, Naomi Tamura, and published by the Harpers, there are revelations which would make an American girl consider herself fortunate. A Japanese woman must be subservient to men all her life, in youth to her father, in marriage to her husband, in old age to her eldest son. She almost never marries for love. The wedding is arranged, and in many cases she sees her future husband only once before marriage. The association of young men and women in society is unknown in Japan, even during courtship, and ladies and gentlemen there never dance together. Mr. Tamura gives an interesting account of his native social conditions.

The Review of Reviews for May provides a group of entertaining and instructive articles on the Russo-Japanese war and cognate topics. In addition to the careful editorial treatment of the events of the war, there is a sketch of the great sea fighter, Admiral Togo, written by a Japanese, followed by "Fifty Years of Japan," from the pen of a Japanese journalist, Adachi Kinunosuke, who sums up in this paper the striking progress of his people during the half-century that has elapsed since the ships of Commodore Perry opened Japan to the influences of western civilization. There are also brief summaries of "What the People Read in Japan," "Japanese Opinion of the American Attitude on the War" and "The Effect of the War on the Internal Affairs of Russia," and Dr. Frank Waldo contributes an interesting resume of "Climatic Features of the Field of the War."
