

OMAHA WINS IN SLOW WALK

Bourke Takes Loose-Jointed Game from the Tailenders.

SIoux CITY HAS CASE OF STAGE FRIGHT

Local Team Piles Up Twelve Runs by Third Inning and Then Lets Down the Bars for the Visitors.

Five thousand people paid their hard-earned little two and four-bit pieces to see the game between Omaha and Sioux City teams of the Western league at the Vinton Street grounds yesterday afternoon and got a look-in on a good deal of loose ball.

Companion was on the slab for the home team. Companion, he of the mighty south-paw; Companion, the man with the wondrous shoots, who held the terrific slugger from St. Joe down to one run and eleven hits for seventeen innings of a scientific game of ball as ever was played in Omaha, was pounded all over the lot by the Sioux City trawlers for a total of seventeen bases. The only comforting thought about it was that Caldwell, who was in the box for the visitors, pitched a little more like a hired man than Companion did and thus the home team won out by bunching hits in the third inning. During this time at bat Omaha made seven singles for a total of eight runs, being helped to this aggregate by an error, a wild pitch, a couple of bases on balls and a few other things too numerous to mention.

The Stutes didn't make a run until after that to them-fatal third inning. When that slaughter was done and the marks of carnage wiped away, they went to the stable and held a council of war, which resulted in Hase going to the bench, Ker being pulled in from shortstop to take his place, Lindaman being sent from the bench to left field and Premer being called from left to short. The team was seized by the stage fright.

It was not until the fifth that Companion began to slip and before the Soos were done batting in their half the nice, pretty halo that his seventeen-inning game had given him had got a big smooch. They made two singles, two doubles and three runs. In the sixth and seventh they kept after him, making two more runs in each and topped off with one more in the eighth. In their last time at bat they got three men on bases by three passes from Companion. After that the dope wore off a little and the game ended.

Today, which is women's day, with all the attendant music and red lemonade, the braves from up the river will try it again. Attendance, 5,000.

GAMES IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

Chicago Makes Things Extremely Interesting for New York. CHICAGO, May 22.—Chicago defeated New York before a crowd numbering close to 20,000. All the runs were made in the fourth inning, a triple and an error, and the visitors one on a sliders' error. The home team was in magnificent form and pitched a heady game, holding his opponents to one run. With the right kind of support, he would have scored a shut out. Score: CHICAGO, NEW YORK. Talks to Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Emma F. Byers, general secretary of the Omaha Young Women's Christian association, will be invited to address the association rooms at Twelfth and M streets on the work of the association and what it is to accomplish. A large number of women and girls were present to hear her. The Royal Highlanders observed this as their first memorial day. Rev. J. E. Tuttle delivered an address at the hall, after which the lodge in a body marched to the cemetery where, according to their ritual, they decorated the graves of the deceased members. YOUNG WOMAN HAS EXCITING TIME Cutting Train in Two Leaves Her with a Baby to Care For. CHADRON, Neb., May 22.—(Special.)—Tired and wearied passengers had a two-hour forgetfulness of self on the E. & M. train between Alliance and Crawford, Neb., on Thursday last. The train was the through passenger from St. Louis to Portland; time about noon. The incident, involving a cutting while the train was amusing only to those not taking an active part in it. Before reaching Alliance the announcement was made, "Ten minutes for luncheon." Most of the passengers alighted for rest if not for refreshment, and a young woman, a passenger on the train, lost a friend with her year-old baby, who was on her way to Sheridan, Wyo. The cars, where the two ladies were temporarily located being adjoining ones, the kind young woman to give the worn mother a short time for herself, and the baby a change, brought the baby to the car where she was sitting upon their way to Sheridan. After some half hour the young woman started to the next car, to return her charge, but was astonished, in fact dumbfounded, after searching the train through, to be informed the car containing the mother had been switched off to Section 3, about a quarter of a mile from the station. After some half hour the young woman started to the next car, to return her charge, but was astonished, in fact dumbfounded, after searching the train through, to be informed the car containing the mother had been switched off to Section 3, about a quarter of a mile from the station. The conductor told the young woman that Section 2, would, without doubt, overtake Section 1 at supper as the tracks did not diverge until they left Edgemoor, S. D.; but the young woman was only going as far as Crawford, a ride of about two hours and would the conductor himself take care of the baby the rest of the way? By this time the passengers were all discussing the one subject and all were interested, the men making suggestions and the women, (each and every one going as far as Edgemoor) offering to care for the baby. The bright, smiling-faced girl baby was the only unconcerned one, and throughout the whole affair was perfectly happy, enjoying the care and attention she was receiving. When the train reached Crawford the first thing seen on the platform was the bareheaded mother standing with out-CLIVER DOCTOR Cured a 20-Year Trouble Without Any Medicine. A wise Indiana physician cured twenty years' stomach disease without any medicine, as his patient tells: "I had stomach trouble for 20 years; tried allopathic medicines, patent medicines and the simple remedies suggested by my friends, but during the time, I was finally a doctor who is the most prominent physician in this part of the state told me medicine would do me no good, only irritating my stomach and making it worse—that I must look to diet and quit drinking coffee for a long time. 'I cried out in alarm: 'Quit drinking coffee! Why, what will I drink?' 'Try Postum,' said the doctor. 'I drink it and you will like it when it is made according to directions, with cream, for it is delicious and has none of the bad effects coffee has.' 'Well, that was two years ago and I am still drinking Postum. My stomach is right again and I know the doctor hit the nail on the head when he decided coffee was the cause of all my troubles.' I only wish that each and every one who drank Postum in its place." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Never too late to mend. Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee works wonders. There's a reason. This evening at 8 o'clock, the famous little book, "The Road to Well-being,"

BRYAN PREPARES A SPEECH

Proposes to Be a Figure in Democratic National Convention.

HOPES TO REPEAT HIS CHICAGO FEAT

Not Yet Decided Whether He Will Bolt if the Convention Does Not Go to His Liking.

CHICAGO, May 22.—What is Bryan going to do? Until coming west I thought he was getting ready to bolt the St. Louis candidate and platform, says Charles M. Pepper in a special sent to his paper. That is still a reasonable opinion, but I have been told here that he has not yet reached that point. What Bryan is preparing for is to make a big speech at the St. Louis convention. When it falls on deaf ears the bolt may come, but it is characteristic of the silver leader's supreme confidence that he doesn't recognize that he will find his party unmoved by his eloquence. One of the men who has Mr. Bryan's friendship and who in a measure enjoys his confidence, informed me that everything still was in the dark. He had met Bryan when the latter came to Chicago to make the anti-Farmer speech, and at the end of a friendly talk had been unable to get to the point of what was to happen. By a process of reasoning he had satisfied himself that there was only one thing in view, and that this was a bolt. But nothing Mr. Bryan said justified him in making such a prediction. This man, who is not a politician, had seen with his own eyes Bryan during the campaign of 1896 and afterward. He is one of those who would follow the Nebraska out of any party or into any party. He changed his politics in 1896 purely out of personal admiration. It was from this talk that I felt the first doubts about Bryan's deliberate intentions to jump the fence. But when he mentioned the silver leader's plans for a great speech it was possible to see how Mr. Bryan himself was still withholding the bolt. What he expects to talk about is the platform. That early has been a matter of platform. In the Chicago convention it may be recalled by those who were there that the speech which gave Bryan the nomination was on the platform. The combination of democratic senators and ex-republican senators who were using Bryan to kill off Blaine thought that some talking about the various planks would be a good way to lead up to the nomination of Teller. But after Bryan's speech they wished they had not been so enthusiastic about alleged principles. Always Talks Platform. Mr. Bryan told me during his campaign in 1896, when he displayed such astonishing power of endurance that he was able to himself to different audiences, that if I would notice his speeches he always had platform in them. He said that in his first campaign for congress, when he gained the experience which served him to such purpose later, he never made a cross-roads address without making clear his platform. He thought Major McKinley a very good man, and used to pretend to wonder how such a good man could stand on such a platform. That, of course, was a trick of campaign speaking, but it showed the bent of Bryan's mind. Now that he is anticipating making another great oratorical effort in the St. Louis convention, it is not hard to see how he will turn to the platform for his text. I have been assured by those who think they know his purposes that he is not worried about the prospective organization of the convention against him. He knows that he cannot be denied a hearing, and when once that is granted he looks forward to a triumph, against which carefully prepared plans will not avail. Some signs seem to show that he is right. A disinterested observer has to note that Bryan still maintains a fair degree of popularity with one element of his party. This has been demonstrated in the Hearst meetings. The paid lecturers who have been reverend very much in the past, had evidences of this popularity. Their general plan, presumably under instructions from headquarters, has been the old one of speaking well of all the candidates, while building the pyramid, with their own heads at the apex. It is not surprising that they have had to leave out Grover Cleveland, but never Bryan. The result has been that the artificial enthusiasm for Mr. Hearst has evaporated, and the genuine article has been manifested for Mr. Bryan. He has had two or three instances in which this has happened, and was not allowed to make further inquiries. In every case it was admitted that the same thing had been observed. Now, Bryan knows all about these Hearst meetings and what takes place in them, and he knows that he is not worried still the one to conjure with in the masses of the party who have a leaning for socialism. Having information about these demonstrations, it is more than likely that he overestimates his popular strength when he is speaking in public. He has had evidences of this popularity. Now, Bryan knows all about these Hearst meetings and what takes place in them, and he knows that he is not worried still the one to conjure with in the masses of the party who have a leaning for socialism. Having information about these demonstrations, it is more than likely that he overestimates his popular strength when he is speaking in public. He has had evidences of this popularity. Their general plan, presumably under instructions from headquarters, has been the old one of speaking well of all the candidates, while building the pyramid, with their own heads at the apex. It is not surprising that they have had to leave out Grover Cleveland, but never Bryan. The result has been that the artificial enthusiasm for Mr. Hearst has evaporated, and the genuine article has been manifested for Mr. Bryan. He has had two or three instances in which this has happened, and was not allowed to make further inquiries. In every case it was admitted that the same thing had been observed.
