Mrs. Angie P. Hewman Writes of McKinley Buttons of Two Campaigns.

MAGAZINE PRINTS A SENSATIONAL STORY

July Number of Everybody's Contains Thomas W. Lawson's "Frengled Finance: the Story of Amalgamated Copper."

"McKinley Carnations of Memory, the McKinley Button of Two Campaigns," by Mrs. Angie F. Newman. Every admirer of the great McKinley will find pleasure in this dainty volume. To Nebraska readin particular, it will especially appeal. Its talented author, Mrs. Angle F. Newman, is the sister of ex-Senator John M. Thurston. Mrs. Newman has been a resident of Nebraska for more than thirty years, Lincoln being her present home. volume is in itself a work of art. Its typography is first-class and it contains numerous unique and appropriate illustrations. Its cover is a dainty and artistic one of green and gold, decorated with a white carnation and a McKinley button, The volume is just such a tribute to the worth, character and statesmanship of the martyred president as one would expect from the pen of a thoughtful, gifted woman. She says: "The radiance of his life was as the radiance of an unsetting star, but that radiance was the reflected glory of the undimmed star of Bethlehem. We are standing too much in that radiance. We are too conscious of its bril-We are too near the personality to be fully persuaded he was but the reflecting surface of another and a greater glory, that glory, the eternal truth. Mr. McKinley's unwritten life is the highest, divinest commentary upon human action. It is a grateful truth, that whatever of worth has been lived in any life continues to live. To such then is no death, even in

"Oh, mighty soul that erst was with us;
"Oh, mighty soul that erst was with us;
Men saw not, knew not, the fullness of thy strength,
Till the sudden obscuration of thy sun
at midday
Left the world in darkness. Through such souls alone God, stooping, shows sufficient of His light For us in the dark to rise by."

The author gives a sketch of a foreign tour made by McKinley buttons and relates how they and their wearers were received by the citizens of foreign countries, and how she herself decorated an Arab shelk, whose guests the American party were, with one of the precious buttons and how seriously the ceremony was accepted by him. Then how the other button, "losing its companion in Egypt, has since and yet awaits the publication of this history to end its pilgrimage and reach its final destination." Press of Mail and Express Job Print, New York.

There are people who declare that the country is going to materialism and degradation. There are even people who prove this awful condition by isolated examples of individual degeneracy. But at last we find we have the final word on the other side. The World's Work devotes itself in July to showing the finer side of American life and to proving, by most interesting articles and interesting pictures, that the conditions are becoming better every day; that our schools are better; that our appreciation of art is better; that we buy more pictures and books than any other people in the world; that our charities are conducted with more skill and judgment than they ever were before; that there is less lishonesty, and that the cultivation of the rts and of the higher life is making rapid strides keeping pace, in fact, with the great increase in the material advance of the people. This helpful review has been worked out with success, and the pictures add very greatly to the interest of the

The most sensational feature any Amerfoan magazine has captured in years is nas W. Lawson's "Frensied Finance, the Story of Amalgamated Copper," which begins in the July issue of Everybody's Magazine. Mr. Lawson was one of the organizers of that gigantic corporation and he knows exactly what happened to the millions that were lost through its manipulation. His first article is an announce ment of distinctly dramatic interest and promises revelations of the highest importance to everyone in the country. He frankly states that his purpose in telling the story is to set himself right with the thousands of investors who, through his instrumentality, put their money into Amalgamated and have been plundered; also, because his conviction is that the best way to educate the public to realize the bylis of which such affairs as Amalgamated are the result, is to expose the brutal facts regarding the conception, birth and breeding of what he says is the worst offspring of the modern system of finance. The main narrative will deal with the real heads of Standard Oll and Amalgamated: H. H. Rogers and William Rockefeller and James Stillman of the National City bank. Addicks of Delaware, Helnze of Montana and James R. Keene of Wall street will figure among its chief characters, and we are founded upon the life of Bunsayemon Kin- timeliness, the articles by Dr. William personalities and methods as this counteenth century, whose pluck, wisdom and Louis;" by W. Notwithstanding the reduction of its price from $3 to $1 per year "The World Today" for July is the strongest issue of this great magazine that has appeared. There is certainly nothing in magazine literature to compare with it at the price. Special word should be spoken about the illustrations of the number. They are mique, beautiful and timely. A recognition of the season appears in the pictures of suburban picturesqueness. This issue contains also several fine portraits of noted man and women, among them being one of the Hungarian novelist, Maurus Jokai, of whom Sigmund Krauss gives a brief but interesting biography, and one John Heyl Vincent, the Bishop of the

A Unique Investment

As an investment, Diamonds afford advantages offered by nothing else. For years they have increased in value at about the rate of 16 per cent a year, which makes them as an investment about three times as good as any bank. When you put your money is the bank someone else has the use of it; when you put it in Diamonds you yourself have the use of it, and the pleasure and satisfaction of wearing. Diamonds are worth as much as the returns from the investment. This is no idle statement, written only with the view of selling Our Diamond goods, but actual facts which you can easily prove to be correct. Our Diamonds are the finest cut, and selected by an expert in Diamonds, and bought at the right price. We can and do give the best values for the money in the city.
