With the band of the Thirtieth United States infantry playing "The Girl I Left Behind" at one end and J. C. Buchanan of South Omaha, skirling on his pipes the "Farewell to Scotland" at the other, the special train bearing the members of the Omaha Commercial club and the South Omaha Live Stock exchange, who are un dertaking the itinerary of the state to gather in new customers for Omaha's markets, steamed out of the Union depot at 7:24 yesterday morning."

About 150 peop,s are taking the trip and they began arriving at the depot at about 6 o'clock, some wearing badges, some Panamas and all wearing smiles. Among the latest to arrive was Mr. Buchanan and the smiles grew broader and the faces merrier as he approached, for from the tip of his feather in his cap to his sliverbuckled shoes, he was fautlessly atthei Beebe & Runyan Furniture company; L. mercial club an in the fartans and kilts of the Clan Gordon.

Nearly every man wore a badge testifying to the ex cellent qualities of his own firm, and one enterprising man waylaid the members of the band and pinned to their breasts his The train was composed of five sleepers

Seven teams with hayracks, upon Pawnee which were rows of bailed hay to seat the city's guests, awaited them, and they were quickly escorted to the wagons to find seats thereon by way of stepladders, and given a rapid ten minutes' drive on the principal business and residence streets of the city, the drive terminating at the principal business corner, where the Fort Crook band had been stationed to discourse music while the drive was being made. The visitors seemed most thoroughly to appreciate and enjoy the arrangements made for them and which gave them unusual opportunity to distribute badges, samples and advertising matter, with which they were so liberally provided, to the hundreds who were out in anticipation of their visit. While driving their train pulled on to the Wells-Abbott-Nieman company's mill, which was the last point to be made, and where they boarded their train and left amid shouts and cheers from themselves for Schuyler, and from Schuyler people for them. Signal Corps Practice. The examination of the members of the National Guard was enlivened for a while today by a stunt with the heliograph, with Captain Henry at one end of the service and Lieutenant Richards at the other, the distance between the two being about a mile and a half. At the Henry end was congregated Governor Mickey and most of the state house attaches, and at the long distance end with Lieutenant Richards was just a few boys who didn't care for the hot weather.

The messages to be sent had been kept secret and witnesses and participants stood on the tiptoe of expectancy until the arrival of Governor Mickey and General Cultaken by Captain Henry and flashed into his ears this message:

"What branches of service are represented in the enemy's lines?" Hot off the gun came back the answer, "Cavalry and infantry. No artillery. General Barry twenty miles away." This relieved the tension, for had there been any artillery in the enemy's lines, or had General Barry been near, the stuff would have been off, for it would take very little warlike movements to knock the end out of the capitol building.

Governor Mickey was anxious to know something of the state of affairs at the Chicago convention, and this was wigwagged over the long stretch of street by the flag signals, and back came the answer: "The people will stand for an honest administration." The outpos: then heliographed in that the main line of the enemy lay to the west, and a most enjoyable hour was concluded. The test was a part of the examination of the Fremont signal corps, and was pronounced by General Culver to have been a great success, though experts on the receiving line got answers somewhat differ-ent from those recorded by Captain Henry. The examinations went merrily on today, notwithstanding the awful hot weather, and General Daggett is immensely pleased with the showing made by the seldler boys. This morning he stated that General Culver had done wonders with his guard and that too much praise could not be given him or the soldiers now taking the examinations. It is General Culver's intention in the near future to establish heliograph communication with Fremont.
