Afternoon Game

Willie Shakespears philosophized and said, "What's in a name?" Now if the venerable man of letters could ever have lived to watch the throwing of Pa's new acquisition, Quick, he might have thought a third time before jotting down that pretty There is irony in the name of Quick and no mistako. He proved so slow at peddling the ball that the Susans were credited with six stolen bases in the after-mon same. Of these Lawler abducted two and probably would have pilfered home had not Messerly interfered with Freeze, which prompted Bobby Carruthers to call the runner out. It was a good battle for aleven innings yesterday afternoon and anybody's game up to the twelfth. Then was that Messerly hit, but that wouldn't have been half bad if it hadn't been for Dusty Miller. With two men out Kelly knocked a pop-up to Dusty and the aforeand Miller promptly dumped it on the ground and the Indians won the game then Up to that point it was pretty base ball. pitche fairly good ball. To be sure eleven hits v w made by the Susans, but at that he struck out eight of them. Jarrott, too, pitched his usual Habana filler quality and five hits was the best accounting that Pa's troupe could give for the dozen acts. Wednesday will be indies' day.
