COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 2 (Special Telegram.)-The two victories Colorado Springs over Omaha today w both due to the fact that the local play were just a little the best. Added to t were some costly errors by the visito Two of these bungles came in the size inning of the first game, a time when Springs sluggers were piling up three hit and cinched the game, which up to that time was an even break. Omaha started off in the second game like a winner, when a base on balls, a safe bunt, an out and Dolan's shigle secred two. After that Maupin was a hard "nut" for the visitors: Sanders pitched gilt-edged ball also, but his error in the eighth inning on Ryan's bunt, after Nill had singled, lost him the game. The bungle was followed by a corking single by Thornton and two scored. Attendance, 1.700. Score, first game:

when the day closed the tournament was well into the first round.

Magee Surprises All. The chief surprise of the day was the play of R. Magee of the Country club, who Paul was entered at the last moment. Magee three years ago ran into the finals at the Sloux City tourney, but he had not handled a racket from that time until yesterday. He was drawn against Schneider, who walloped him in the first set, but by that time Magee, got; his hand in, and Doc Schneider began to wonder what was hapalmost Mamon and battine with anomy studies

Jericho. Then those in the gallery sat up straight and rubbed their eyes. For Magee was playing the game. And such playing He got his Lawfords buzzling over the net in a style that was wondrous to behold, his serving, which had previously been rather wild, had changed to a steady swift burner and his returns brought repeated cheers from the onlookers. But Blatherwick had no intention of taking licking. His racket changed from hand t hand with a rapidity that dazzled the eye of those that watched and he entered into the fun of the thing with all the knowledge and cunning he possessed. The first set resulted 7-5 in Blatherwick's favor and the second 6-1 in Magee's. Darkness overtook the match, which will be finished the first thing this morning. Lee, the intercollegiate doubles champion was another man who delivered the parterstate tennis tourney at the Omaha Field cels in great fashion. His style is distinctly original, his serve especially being one of the most peculiar and dangerous pieces of play that has so far been witnessed in the ournament.

The match between Fletcher and Gilmar attracted a lot of attention on account of the equality between the players. Fletcher is built for a tennis player, being a tall, wiry sort of fellow, with a pair of arms that seem to stretch from one end of the Chambers, a local man, put up a stiff game against Lee, but that all-fired serve got him guessing and he lost two sets straight to the Yale man. A Wins. A Wins, OMAHA Neb., Aug. 2:--To the Edi-tor of The Hee. Will you kindly decide the following bef and greatly oblige: A hots Omaha wins Haturday a game: B bots Octorado Springs wins. Neither party knows there are two games to be played. Omaha wins the first game and heres the second. How does the bet go? Thanking you in advance for a de-cision, we ar., Respectfully, K and G., Omaha

Omaha. Answer-A wina. The established rule in case a regularly scheduled same and a postponed game be played on the same aft-ermon, is that the first game played shall be considered the game set by the schedule for that day. Therefore, the game won by Omaha at Colorado Springs on Saturday, afternoot, being the first game played, must be considered the game set for that
