DEMOCRATS AT SEA ON JUDGE

Untried Cannot Agree Whether to Take Howard Kennedy or Not.

SOME WANT TO NAME PARTY CANDIDATE

Scheme of Nominating J. A. C. Kennedy as Means of Confusing Voters to Help Hitchcock Still Considered.

Signs are apparent that there will be a lively fight on the question of endorsing or not endorsing Howard Kennedy, Jr., republican nominee for district judge, at the democratic judicial convention in Paval Arena hall this afternoon. A week or two ago sentiment towards simply approving Mr. Kennedy and thus making a move for a nonpartisan judiciary was strong, but recently the scheme to put up J. A. C. Kennedy, because of his name, was incubated. It was calculated that Mr. Kennedy's name on the ballot would either cause voters to get mad because the names of so many Kennedys were printed there, or they would vote for him by mistake, thus helping out Congressman Hitchcock in any event.

The announcement of this trick in the case aroused the slumbering ambitions of other aspirants for the crum, however, and A. N. Ferguson and W. H. Thompson of the Ninth ward have asked their names to be put on the ballot. Mr. Ferguson is a perennial candidate for the bench, while Mr. Thompson has tried several times to be the democratic nominee for county judge and failed. Now there are several district contests, the most important being the question of nominating a candidate at all and the others among the seekers for the honor of a nomination.

"A good many of us think we ought to put up a candidate just to maintain the party identity," said a democratic leader. "The organization has pretty nearly lost its identity and we have got to do something to give democrats a chance to vote. We must not let them get into the habit of voting a republican ticket simply because there is no other to exercise their lead pencils upon. Some of the prominent lawyers are holding out for an endorsement of Kennedy, but I do not think they will prevail in the convention."

Matters at best, with regard to the judiciary, are badly mixed and cannot be well defined.

The Second district democratic congressional convention, a mere formality to get Congressman Hitchcock's name on the ballot, will be held at 8 o'clock this afternoon and the judicial convention will follow. In the morning the delegates to the county convention last spring, or as many of them as come out, will assemble at 10 o'clock and appoint delegates to the congressional and judicial meetings. With the exception of the judiciary matter, affairs will be very quiet, with a speech from Congressman Hitchcock as an effort to disentangle enthusiasm.

The Seventh Ward Roosevelt and Fairbanks club will meet tonight at Pabal hall, Twenty-sixth and Walnut streets. Candidates will be present.

CHANGE OVER SEGUR'S DEATH

J. H. Jarrett Leaves Omaha to Fill Place at Atchison.

HAL BUCKINGHAM SUCCEEDS LATTER

Burlington Puts These Orders Into Effect at Once—Interest Over News of Russell Harding's Resignation.

Changes have occurred in the general offices of the Burlington in this city as a result of the death of H. B. Segur, who expired suddenly several weeks ago at St. Louis, where he went to attend the meeting of Burlington representatives.

The death of Mr. Segur caused a vacancy in the office of the general agent, Atchison, Kan. The place is to be filled by J. H. Jarrett, chief clerk in the office of the general freight office in this city. Jarrett came here five months ago from Lincoln, where he held the position of freight contracting agent for the Burlington. When the vacancy occurred at Atchison his name was suggested with several others as one of the most desirable candidates for the office. Under D. O. Ives he has had the benefit of the training which fits him for the position.

Mr. Jarrett will be succeeded as chief clerk to Mr. Ives by Hal Buckingham. The latter, who is a young man, worked in the general offices in this city until eighteen months ago, when he went to Chicago to take a position as rate clerk. He is a brother of E. E. Buckingham, who recently was made general superintendent of the Oregon Short Line, and of J. E. Buckingham, assistant general passenger agent of the Burlington, coming, therefore, from a family of good railroad men. The changes will go into effect at once. Mr. Jarrett leaving for Kansas tonight to begin his duties as general agent for the Burlington at that point.

Interest Over Russell Harding.

The announcement from St. Louis that Russell Harding is to be succeeded by Charles S. Clarke as vice president of the Missouri Pacific caused a stir in local railroad circles. While Mr. Harding has been very close to George Gould, it has been current talk in Gould territories for two years that the relations between Mr. Harding and the heads of the system have not been as cordial as at one time. Mr. Gould, when questioned upon this point upon the occasion of one of his last trips to the west, declared that there was any friction.

The differences are alleged to have grown out of the fact of a variance of opinions regarding the management of the Gould operating interests in the west. Despite the denials of Mr. Gould, however, changes were made in the operation of the Denver & Rio Grande system which tended to strengthen the accuracy of the rumors which were being liberally circulated. One of the changes relieved Mr. Harding of the supervision of the Rio Grande. This action was explained by both Mr. Harding and Mr. Gould as a step to relieve the general manager of the drudgery which he found was taking up valuable time that

SHOULD BE DEVOTED TO MORE IMPORTANT MATTERS

Charles S. Clarke is general manager of the Mobile & Ohio and a man who stands close to E. T. Jeffrey, Gould's right-hand man, and he is in fact a relative of the latter.

SLEIGH BELLS SCARE SNEAKS

Santa Claus Jugglers Frighten Burglars, Who Leave Home Before Doing the Job.

"Truth is stranger than fiction," quoted Desk Sergeant Hovey as he looked over the big book containing reports of stolen property and burglaries. "Here, for instance, is a report from W. H. Backus, 20 North Twenty-sixth street, who says burglars were frightened away from his home by the ringing of a string of sleigh bells he hung up in the cellar last spring."

It is a fact that burglars entered the Backus home Thursday night through a cellar window and while making their way through the cellar bumped into the bells and awakened the members of the family. Mr. Backus rushed downstairs with a revolver, while his wife followed with a rolling pin and Satron, but before they reached the cellar they heard the intruders hurrying along the walk.
