doubts after the surviving Russians evacuated them.

The last Japanese attack to which General Stoessel refers was on a hill called High Mountain, south of Inthan (Etse Shan or mountain).

He gives instances of the heroism of the defenders, especially the case of a lieutenant who threw handbombs into the Japanese trenches, causing a panic. Colonel Irman, chief of the Port Arthur artillery, is praised for the magnificent dispositions of the guns.

General Stoessel's dispatch, which was dated September 30, says:

After bloody assaults from the 19th to the 23d of September there has been comparative tranquillity around the fortress. On the night of September 23 the Japanese, after being repulsed by Lieutenant Poggorsky, fled in panic. They are now working very actively and are approaching by a tunnel and entrenchments. The bombardment was maintained both upon the forts and the buildings within the fortress.

We make sorties frequently, driving back the enemy. The repulse of the last attack was especially due to Lieutenant Poggorsky, General Kondratenko, Colonel Irman and Captain Sychaff. The spirit of the troops is heroic. Wounded men are every day returning from the hospitals to the ranks.

We pray to God for victory and for the health of your majesty.

Reports Cause Rejoicing.

6:47 p. m.—General Stoessel's reports created great rejoicing and revived the hope in his ability to defend the fortress. After the failure of the storming operations the War office here would not be surprised if the Japanese changed their plan to a regular engineering siege. No fresh news has been received from Mukden. According to the War office's information quiet continues there.

Grand Duke Boris, a cousin of the emperor, leaves St. Petersburg in ten days to rejoin the army.

Major General Orloff has been assigned to duty on the general staff, thus ending the reports that he would be tried by court-martial and dismissed from the army, the fact being, as repeatedly stated in the dispatches of the Associated Press, that General Orloff was simply deprived of his command by General Kouropatkin for his failure to carry out his orders at Liao Yang.

Lieutenant General Grippenberg, who is to command the second Manchurian army, was received in audience by the emperor today, but he declined to be interviewed and returns to Vilna tomorrow. The general will leave for the front during the present month.

Expect Fight Near Tie Pass.

TOKIO, Oct. 5—6 p. m.—It is evident that the country which is embraced by and irregular triangle, the apex of which is Tie Pass, with the base running from Mukden to Fushun on the upper reaches of the Hun river, will soon be the theater of extended and extensive military operations.

The Russians apparently are using Tie Pass as their main base, and are constructing a series of defenses to shield it from the south and the east. Two roadways approach Tie Pass from the south. One of these roadways, the main highway from Mukden and one other, which is smaller, starts at Fushun and winds through a hilly country. Nineteen miles north of Mukden is the town of Yilu, the southern and eastern approaches to which are sheltered by sharp ridges, offering a natural protection. It is reported here that the Russians are strongly entrenching in these ridges and are erecting semi-permanent fortifications. The Yilu river, which is shallow and fordable, runs through the town.

The Russians are reported to be fortifying the right bank of this river, between Yalu and Tahsitun, fifteen miles to the northward. Several lines of ridges cross the road, and it is said that the Russians are erecting works on many of these eminences between Taihitun and Tie Pass. For some seven miles the country, generally speaking, is flat, although commanding the roadway from the eastward is a hill 1,000 meters in height, which the Russians are fortifying. A range of hills flanks Tie Pass on the eastward.

The Russians are holding Fushun with a heavy force, and it is believed they are erecting works along the road from that place to Tie Pass.

This defensive work of the Russians and the disposition of their forces strengthens the belief that General Kouropatkin merely intends to retard Field Marshal Oyama in his crossing of the Hun river and to give battle on the ground which he is now hurriedly fortifying.

Emperor Hears from Stoessel.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5.—6:25 p. m.—Emperor Nicholas has at last received General Stoessel's official report of the desperate four days' assault of the besiegers upon Port Arthur from September 19 to September 23, from which it appears that the unofficial report from Che Foo was by no means exaggerated. The Japanese displayed frenzied bravery, but they lost 10,000 men and their only success was the capture of two redoubts guarding the water works. They prepared for the assault by a general bombardment and then launched their attacks simultaneously from the north and west. Night and day they fought under cover of a continual bombardment from their siege guns and finally reached the redoubts on the north side, but only after the defenses there were completely demolished by shell fire from the west.

The Japanese efforts were directed chiefly against the commanding position on High mountain, which faces Pigeon bay, slightly south of Fort Etse. The mountain is 500 feet high and if it had fallen its possession would have given the Japanese a tremendous lever against the chain of inner defenses. The carnage there was terrible and culminated September 22, when the Japanese succeeded in reaching and occupying the Russian armored shelter trenches, whence they expected about the next day to storm the summit. During the night, Lieutenant Poggorsky of the navy, at the head of a detachment of volunteers, descended upon the trenches and blew them up with pyroxylin bombs, producing a panic among the besiegers, who fled, leaving the mountain side strewn with dead. The Japanese then abandoned further attempts, but after a day or two to recuperate, according to General Stoessel's second dispatch dated September 30, they resumed the bombardment of the city and the outer works and began to construct zigzag approaches, evidently getting nearer from which to launch their next assault.

The loss of the water works is not considered vital, as there is a fresh water lake and numerous wells as well as a condensing apparatus within the defenses. General Stoessel recommends General Kondratenko, Lieutenant Poggorsky, Colonel Irman of the artillery and Sychaff of the Fifth Siberian regiment, for the St. George's cross.

The complete character of the repulse of the Japanese has evidently greatly inspired the garrison of Port Arthur. General Stoessel says the gallantry of the Russian troops was beyond praise and adds that the garrison will hold out to the last drop of blood.

No News at Che Foo.

CHE FOO, Oct. 5.—Evening—No news, either of Russian or Japanese operations at Port Arthur, reached Che Foo today.

Japanese Impress Coreans.

POSSIET BAY, Russian Manchuria, Tuesday, Oct. 4.—(Delayed in Transmission.)—The Japanese minister at Seoul has demanded that every town in Corea furnish a contingent of forty to sixty men for the army now being organized, but the emperor of Corea refuses to do so. The Japanese, none the less, continue to recruit Coreans, under the pretense of employing them as coolies. It is reported that they recruited 600 men at Ping Yang, dressed them in uniforms, sent them to Manchuria and placed them in the front line, fastened to posts, until nearly all of them were killed. The Russians found only one man alive.

LA FOLLETTE TICKET WINS

and the cause is dismissed for want of sufficient facts appearing to constitute a cause of action.

At the Wisconsin state convention, held May 18 last, 1,060 delegates were given seats. Of these 108 were contested. Of the uncontested delegates 515½ were for La Follette. The state central committee, being of La Follette sympathy, seated but forty-three contested "stalwart" delegates, giving La Follette a majority. The "stalwarts" charged unfairness, bolted, nominated a separate ticket and went into the supreme court to compel the secretary of state to put the "stalwart" ticket in the regular republican column on the official ballot.

Rejoicing at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 5.—There was rejoicing in the quarters of the La Follette state central committee here today upon receipt of the decision of the supreme court. At the stalwart headquarters Chairman Goldin announced that he had no statement to make at the present time.

heads the stalwart ticket, will withdraw,

It is known that Samuel A. Cook, who he having made a statement to this effect a short time ago in case the decision was unfavorable to his cause. The central committee has the power to fill the vacancy, but what will be done will not be known until the committee holds a meeting to take action.

Interest in Decision at New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The decision of the supreme court of Wisconsin declaring the LaFollette ticket to be regular was read with great interest by politicians in New York today. The republicans at national headquarters expressed themselves as satisfied, as they believe that the two factions will now support the ticket.

At democratic headquarters, Timothy E. Ryan, member of the democratic executive committee for Wisconsin, said he believed that the decision would secure the election of the democratic state ticket and at least four members of congress, but that the decision made it more difficult to carry the state for the Parker and Davis electors than if the decision had been in favor of the stalwarts.

Representative Babcock, chairman of the republican congressional committee, said he had not read the decision and declined to make any comment.

BRYAN DECLINES TO SPEAK IN OHIO

After Election He Will Renew Fight for Economic Reform.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 5.—William J. Bryan, in a letter to Chairman Harvey C. Garber of the democratic state committee, declining to visit Ohio during the present campaign, says:

While Judge Parker announces himself as unqualifiedly in favor of the gold standard, he is no more objectionable upon this question than President Roosevelt, and he does stand for many things in which the silver democrats are interested.

The election of Parker and Davis would remove from the arena of politics the issues which stand in the way of the consideration of economic questions, and for this reason I believe that every democrat who supported the ticket in 1896 and 1900 should interest himself in the success of the ticket this year.

When the election is over I want to renew the fight for economic reform and I believe that we will be in better position to do this with Judge Parker elected than with Roosevelt at the head of the nation. It is also important to secure congress, for without the house of representatives the president could not carry out his policies.

GREAT IS FAKEPURCH SHOW

Stupendous Circus Parades Streets of Imperial City of Quivera.

HUNDRED THOUSAND SUBJECTS SEE IT

Carnival in Afternoon and Evening Draws a Big Crowd—Sharpens the Appetite for Electrical Parade Tonight.

were handled systematically and with good effect by the police department.

Notes of the Parade.

The juvenile Shriners formed a distinctive feature of the parade.

Dave O'Brien, as bandmaster of der Deutscher band, and his band, everyone of the players, was a hit. Dave looked especially cute in his new uniform and blonde hair.

A fire alarm from A. Bloom's planing mill, 1502 California street, at 3:40, during the progress of the parade over the north leg of the route, caused slight excitement, but four companies made the run without accident. The fire started in the boiler room and was of small consequence. It was said all the mill employes were watching the parade.

Carrie Nation's old friends were glad to see her in the parade. It had been feared the famous Kansas reformer would be unable, owing to the recent floods, to reach the realm in time, but as Mrs. Nation remarked upon her arrival, "My motto is, 'Never Say Die.'" She looked the same Mrs. Nation, except that there was a new dent in her hatchet.

The high school seniors and juniors did not allow the parade to escape their attention or participation. The seniors had a float representing some of the juniors hung in effigy. All of which, it may be said, had the desired effect of arousing the ire of the juniors, who bombarded the affair until it was more fit for the repair shop than the grand Fakepaugh parade.

COMING OF THE KING TONIGHT

Grand Electrical Pageant is Ready for March.

His Royal Majesty, King Ak-Sar-Ben X, will enter the portals of the imperial city tonight at the head of the grand electrical pageant which Samson, lord high chamberlain to the king, avers will be the most brilliant court function in the history of Quivera. Everything is ready for the king's advent and thousands of patient subjects eagerly await it, anxious to know the personal identity of the great personage under whose sublime scepter they have rendered such loyal devotion. Twenty floats of historic import will form the procession, which will swing over the city according to this routing:

Sixteenth and Cuming streets, 8 p. m.; Sixteenth street south to Howard street, Howard street east to Fourteenth street, Fourteenth street north to Douglas street, Douglas street east to Tenth street, Tenth street south to Farnam street, Farnam street west to Nineteenth street, Nineteenth street south to Harney street, Harney street east to Fifteenth street, Fifteenth street north to Capitol avenue.

Abbott's, Kiplinger's, Surprise, Bohemian and Ostrander's bands of Omaha, the South Omaha and these bands from out in the state will participate in the parade: Broken Bow, Blair, Central City, Lyons and Sutton.

EAGLES FLY TO THE CARNIVAL

Gay Thousands Bombard One Another with Confetti.

It was Eagles night at the carnival last evening. Five minutes after a person entered the Midway it was impossible to tell an Eagle from a bird of paradise. The confetti throwers were out in force and they helped the Eagles to entertain. The cool weather drove people to the carnival in their gloves and winter garments, but after they had moved around for a few minutes they were sorry they were not clad in summer apparel.

The crowd was by far the largest that has been upon the grounds since the opening and if twenty-five thousand people did not pass through the gates it is safe to venture the number will not be far from the figures given. For a time last evening the throngs were so dense that movement was impossible and at times it was dangerous enough to make people cautious of their footing, for a trip and fall meant a tragedy under the heaving ocean of humanity. The first stand visited was invariably the confetti man. To be without a sack of confetti was to miss half the pleasure. Armed with this people plunged into the swaying crowds which multiplied with the minutes. These throngs were constantly pushing past each other and the bombardment of colored paper began as soon as they met.

The person who was foolish enough to open his mouth, even for an instant, had it filled with colored paper. The stranger who took unkindly to the paper storm regretted it before being long upon the grounds. He or she was signalled out and fairly inundated. By the time people had masticated a bucketful of confetti and dug the surplus out of eyes and ears, they were ready to enter into the spirit of the occasion and go to the nearest stand for a sack of the stuff.

It was a poor place for people to get separated. In an instant sometimes husbands were separated from wives, parents from children and sweethearts from lovers. The rest of the evening had to be spent in searching for the lost ones, and in that pushing, elbowing, impenetrable crowd it was like searching for a needle in a haystack. Sometimes the party ones found one another; oftener they didn't.

The side attractions did a rushing business, and one attraction was scarcely finished when the crowd surged towards the next one and listened to what the barker had to offer. Hundreds of blushing couples entered with faltering tread the bridal chamber, with its possibilities of mysteries and happy surprises. They always came out smiling and with a secret between their lips which probably death itself could not have forced from them. "Don't miss it," was the only satisfaction friends got. "It's too rich to miss. It beats the Cave of the Winds, Prince Nicholl, the fat girl or the two-headed wonder. The banners give only the faintest perception of what it is like." And invariably the friend, with curiosity whetted to the utmost, could stand it no longer, and he got in line with the others.

Jim, the bear, had as good a time as anyone on the grounds. Children poked candy and peanuts to him through the hole in the window and when there was nothing else in sight he ate the paper mountains and valleys of which the sides of his prison are made. It was 11 o'clock before the crowd began to thin out last evening, and even then the regret at leaving the carnival was plainly visible.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions or other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison catarrh.

All druggist sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but 25 cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

NO SPEECHES GET ON DOCKET

Mayor and King May Have Mute Meeting.

The chances are ceremonies incident to the arrival of King Ak-Sar-Ben X, will be considerably shortened under previous years as it has been practically decided that no speeches are to be exchanged between the monarch and the mayor in front of the city hall.

The condition of Mayor Moores' throat which precludes speaking in the open air is one reason assugned for the change in the traditional order of things. Up to this morning, also, no request had reached the office of the executive from the Ak-Sar-Ben governors requesting him to officially welcome the king. Therefore, no speech has been prepared. The mayor and councilmen, however, will review the night parade from the central platform. The presence of the governor will be lacking as he is on his way to Seattle to participate in the ceremonies incident to the launching of the battleship Nebraska.

READY FOR CORONATION BALL

Kingdom of Quivera Prepared to Crown Royal Rulers.

Plans are complete for the coronation ball Friday night at the Auditorium, when the Kingdom of Quivera will endeavor to outstrip all its other brilliant records in the gay festival attending and following the crowning of its king and queen. The ball this year, being held in the Auditorium instead of the old Coliseum, whose capacity is much greater, and the membership of the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben being 50 per cent larger this year than last, has made it necessary for limitations to be placed upon the number of attendance. It therefore has been arranged to place no general public admission tickets on sale, confining the attendance to Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, their ladies and a limited number of invited out-of-town guests.

The following is the complete list of the women who will attend her majesty on the evening of the coronation ball. The ladies of the court are:

Omaha—Mesdames R. S. Anglin, M. T. Barlow, E. A. Benson, J. B. Berry, George F. Bidwell, A. G. Buchanan, Sam'l Burns, J. H. Butler, Frank Colpetzer, C. N. Dietz, J. C. SHAW AND KNIGHT SPEAK

a mighty constituency of 5,000 Mississippi voters, tells you so. Champ Clark would cut your throat from ear to ear if you disputed him, and General Tom Taggart, who is getting along so happily with Sheehan in New York, would give his national chairmanship to prove it in the state of Indiana.

We come here as representatives of republican clubs in all the states and territories of this union. We were less than a million at Chicago two years ago, but the work of organization amongst the younger men of the country has been going forward so steadily under the banner of Roosevelt and Fairbanks that today we proudly boast a membership of more than 1,500,000.

Thirty days remain for campaign work, thirty days in which the young American may labor for that finest of type of young America now in control of the destinies of this nation and that splendid statesman of long experience who is associated with him upon the presidential ticket, thirty days in which to co-operate with the regular agencies that direct republican influence, thirty days in which to labor—aye, if you please, to hustle as league men can and will for republican supremacy.

President Moore made a feeling reference to the death of Senator Hoar and Postmaster General Payne. At the close of his address he called attention to the fact that the national league was out of debt and had a small balance in the treasury.

General James S. Clarkson, of Iowa, and D. D. Woodmansee of Ohio, then addresed the convention.

Letter from the President.

Secretary Weeks received this letter from President Roosevelt, which was read with three cheers and a tiger, the delegates standing.

White House, Washington, September 27, 1904. My Dear Mr. Moore—Permit me, through you, to extend my warmest greet to the convention of the Republican National league. I appreciate to the full the work it is doing. The zealous and disinterested men who compose its members more for the party than any other kind of support, and I count our party fortunate in having able men to work for in it in the spirit that your organization has shown. We hold that our party is worthy of support because it has served the nation with fidelity and efficiency so long, and especially because it is now thus serving it. Hoping you will have a most successful meeting, I am

Sincerely yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Congratulatory messages were also read from National Chairman Cortelyou and Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, candidate for vice president.

Murat Halstead of Ohio and Dr. Robert Reyburn of Washington, D. C., spoke briefly.

Proposed amendments to the constitution were referred to the executive committee. A resolution, with particular reference to the education of first voters, was adopted.

Sorrow for Payne's Death.

The following resolution was adopted unanimously:

This convention notes with sorrow the news of the death of Hon. Henry C. Payne, postmaster general. By his death the nation loses one of its foremost citizens and the republican party one of its great leaders.

Resolved, That we do now adjourn as a mark of respect to his memory.

The convention adjourned until tomorrow at 10:30 a. m.

After the adjournment the resolutions committee was announced, and it began work while the other delegates went sightseeing.

Messages to Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

At the conclusion of an executive session of the resolutions committee, messages sent to President Roosevelt, Charles W. Fairbanks, republican candidate for vice president, and National Chairman George B. Cortelyou were made public. The message to Mr. Cortelyou reads:

The National League of Republican Clubs, in convention assembled, extends to you its warmest greetings and best wishes for the triumphal conclusion of the present campaign.

The message to the president is:

The National League of Republican Clubs, in convention assembled, extends its warmest greeting, accepts with gratitude your continued and sincere interest in the work of the republican club organization and congratulates you upon the prospect of a sweeping republican victory in November.

That to Mr. Fairbanks:

The National League of Republican Clubs, in convention assembled, sends greeting to its friend and candidate for vice president, Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, and declares its faith in a great republican victory in November.

The election of officers is scheduled for tomorrow morning. All the present officers are candidates for re-election. The Arkansas delegation is asking for the next convention at Little Rock and is urging National Treasurer Sid B. Redding for the vice presidency. The three candidates for the presidency are President J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, Dr. J. P. McPatrick of Chicago and Scott Bonham of Cincinnati. C. W. McGuire of Indianapolis may oppose National Secretary Weeks for re-election.

South Dakota is asking for a place on the national ticket by making W. G. Porter either secretary or treasurer.

Indiana Populists Fuse.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 5.—The Star tomorrow will say: A coalition of the two populist parties in Indiana was effected yesterday. The fusionists, under the peace agreement, withdrew their state ticket from the field and the state ticket nominated by the mid-roaders becomes the populist ticket of Indiana.

Be sure to get The Bee next Sunday. New Color Magazine with Buster Brown and all the popular favorites.

Ahline Belongs to Des Moines.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.—The National Base Ball commission today decided that the sale of Player Ahline by the Keokuk (Ia.) club to the Des Moines club was legal. The Cleveland American league club drafted the player from Keokuk, although belonging at that time to Des Moines. The commission held that the Cleveland club can only secure him by draft from Des Moines, instead of Keokuk, conditioned that the draft price be as specified for the class of which the Des Moines club is a member.

Steamer and Crew Are Lost.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Greek steamer Kelmentink, bound from the Black sea for Antwerp, foundered recently twenty-three miles northwest of Ushant. Seventeen members of the crew, including the captain and other officers, were drowned. Eight survivors landed at Lexixoes, Portugal.

Spain Stops Bull Fighting.

MADRID, Oct. 5.—The Institute of Social Reforms, after a heated discussion today, decided by thirteen votes to eight to ratify the absolute prohibition of Sunday bull fights. This is considered to be the death blow to bull fighting in Spain.

Decoration for Attache.

TOKIO, Oct. 5.—6 p. m.—The emperor today decorated Colonel Hoad, the Austrian military attache, with the Order of the Rising Sun. Colonel Hoad is the first attache to be so honored.

Goes to Help Fishermen.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 5.—The British cruiser Pelorus sailed last night for Nicaragua in connection with the recent seizure of Cayamen islands turtle fishing schooners. The claim for damages made by the fishermen not having been settled, the cruiser has instructions to inquire into the matter.
