REMANNANTS FOR SATURDAY'S SELLING Without a Parallel

A splendid list of special savings for Saturday's selling. After the largest October dress goods business in years, the result is, that of many good styles only short lengths are left, such as waist lengths, skirt lengths and many full dress patterns. These are all treated as remnants.

Now the Remnants of Black Dress Goods Must Go.

By all means attend this great sale of black dress goods remnants. Keep in touch with these sales, and you won't have to pick over trashy, shop-worn dress goods—but what you do get will be bright, clean and fresh. If you can find the wanted length, you can get it Saturday morning at about one-half our usual low remnant prices.

NOTE—The balance of the colored dress goods remnants will go on sale at the same time at next to nothing in price. Read each item carefully, note the kind and quality of goods to be sold. There are hundreds of remnants to select from. All go on sale Saturday morning, 8 a. m.

smelling this morning of crowds in Downing street. These gatherings soon became so thick that the police were obliged to disperse them into the neighboring Whitehall district. Premier Balfour was early at work at the office. The ambassador conveyed to the minister further dispatches from the Russian government. The earliness of the call is accounted for by the necessity of placing the latest views of the St. Petersburg government regarding the North Sea cables in the hands of the British cabinet. The ambassador's stay did not last more than a half hour.

French Minister is Interested. Ambassador Cambon again was present at a meeting at Lord Lansdowne's office a few minutes after the departure of Count Benckendorff. There are evidences of increasing belief among well informed persons that the dispute between Russia and Great Britain will not lead to serious complications and that an amicable settlement will be reached. It is known that the British government is showing every disposition to meet the British views and it is conceded that the delay in replying to the British demands is readily explainable on the ground that the Russian government naturally desires to be placed in possession, from its own sources, of all details connected with the occurrence.

Did Not Fire on Norwegian. The London agents here of the Norwegian steamer Skatol say that the statement cable from Copenhagen last night that the vessel was fired upon by a Russian warship on Sunday is incorrect. The Skatol passed the Russian squadron off Dover, but there was no firing or other manifestation.

Interview with Rojstevsky. LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Daily Chronicle tomorrow will publish an interview with Admiral Rojstevsky at Vigo today. The admiral gives a few interesting statements not yet published. The admiral is quoted as saying that when the vessels of the Russian squadron found themselves surrounded by the fishing fleet the warships had to double back so as not to get their screws entangled in the nets. The warships frequently gave way to the trawlers. Suddenly the cruiser Aurora saw ahead two torpedo boats coming toward the squadron. All speed in the searchlight on them and they noticed two floating mines close to it. An order to fire on the torpedo boats was immediately given, with the result that one of them was sunk and the other escaped and was lost among the trawlers. The admiral added there were two more injured on his flagship. One, a priest, had a hand shot off. Six shots fired during the incident hit the Russian vessels. The Aurora was hit and has not yet been repaired.

Germany Ignores Firing on Boat. BERLIN, Oct. 28.—The German government is not disposed to take up the case of the German fishing vessel Sonntag, which was fired on October 27 by a Russian warship, unless the owner asks for an indemnity. The Foreign office, although without confirmation of the report, does not consider it improbable that the vessel was fired on. It is going to cost the owner a large sum of money to be indemnified by his commander. Germany will avoid becoming involved in the Anglo-Russian controversy.

Swedish Officers Examined. GEFLE, Sweden, Oct. 28.—The captain and crew of the Swedish steamer Aldebaran, from Hull, previously reported to have been fired on by a Russian warship, were examined on oath by a magistrate at the instance of the government. All affirmed their conviction that the cruiser fired shot and not merely blank charges. The captain deposed that shells were seen to burst in the air. The Russian vessel was examined on oath by a magistrate at the instance of the government. All affirmed their conviction that the cruiser fired shot and not merely blank charges.

Russia Stops the Ships. ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—The Admiralty have been signalled by the Vice Admiral Rojstevsky to detain at Vigo all the warships which took part in the North sea incident. LONDON, Oct. 28.—124 p. m.—Orders have been issued and acknowledged by Vice Admiral Rojstevsky that the Russian squadron remain at Vigo until the conclusion of the present Russo-British negotiations. This eliminates what was regarded here as one of the most dangerous features of the situation, namely, the possibility of a premature clash between the British and Russian squadrons.

Police Disperse People. The widespread interest in today's cabinet meeting was evidenced by the early assembly of a large number of people in Downing street. The police were obliged to disperse them into the neighboring Whitehall district. Premier Balfour was early at work at the office. The ambassador conveyed to the minister further dispatches from the Russian government. The earliness of the call is accounted for by the necessity of placing the latest views of the St. Petersburg government regarding the North Sea cables in the hands of the British cabinet. NASH PLEADS FOR HIS LIFE

Begs Citizens Not to Vote Bonds to Build Electric Light Plant. PROMISES TO LIGHT CITY FOR COST

Accuses E. Rosewater of Attempting to Blackmail Him and Says His Company is Not Going Out of Business. At a meeting of the West Leavenworth Improvement association at Forty-eighth and Leavenworth streets last night the proposed bond issue for the construction of an electric lighting plant was vigorously discussed. Fred A. Nash was introduced as a gentleman able to give "clear information" on the matter under consideration. Mr. Nash said: "I am here to talk to you not from the standpoint of the president of an electric lighting company, but as a business man. You are a man of light. If you can buy electric light cheaper than it can be made, it ought to be bought; but if it can be made cheaper than it can be bought, it ought to be made to buy it. The proposition we make to the city government is $100,000 for each arc light per year. As you probably know, we have a contract with the city by which we pay it 3 per cent of our earnings; that is, we say if you will pay such a price for your lighting we will pay you 3 per cent of our gross income, not counting of course, what the city pays to us. The city of Chicago, on a $300,000 investment, has produced electric arc lights for $54.00, but this doesn't take into account depreciation. Detroit arc lights cost $61.65, and this includes interest and depreciation at 3 per cent for the latter. If we could transfer the Detroit plant here it would be impossible to reduce the cost per arc light below $71.65 because of the cost of coal.

Some More Bargains for Saturday. 2.95 for $5.00 black Taffeta Waists. 3.90 for $6.00 Velling Waists, all colors. 1.45 for $2.25 brown Scarfs, at 4 styles to select from.

Mr. Nash's Doubts. "I doubt if you can negotiate a 4 per cent bond. The council voted on the bond question without any plan of action; no scheme for what they were going to do. Mr. Nicholson doesn't know what is contemplated. It is proposed to vote $50,000 and turn it over to the electric light company. The machinery will cost $300,000, and this does not take in poles or lines. Where will the city put its lines? May be we will not let you use our poles. We are not going out of business. We have spent $300,000 to put our wires underground. Have you ever seen better street lighting—where the lighting is general—in the business district? The city cannot use our subways. The city cannot have overhead wires and compel others to go underground. I have invested in this city payment to the electric lighting business and my reputation for doing things for the good of Omaha. The time has gone by when an electric lighting company can hope to make money out of city lighting. I stand ready to light this city, to light it well, and will light it for cash or on time. It is going to cost at it 7 a. m., the shot passing between the Aurora and the Mino saw the Russians at 4 a. m. and 6 a. m. respectively.

City Electrician Gives Reasons. "I believe in this city payment to the electric lighting plant, the same as it sweeps the streets. What is the difference to the taxpayers whether they pay 5 per cent on $500,000 or taxes for electric lighting? Mr. Nash told you I could not give you a reason, but I can, and no take you to Chicago, either. Lincoln has just acquired a 25-light plant in addition to incandescents in city service, conduits, poles, wires, etc., except building, for $60,000. We can lay conduits for $20.00. Mr. Nash says no room, but we surely can go below or to one side of his conduits. We can put poles in alley; we can take the same rights that Omaha reserves with regard to fire and police wires and string them on any poles in the street. Mr. Nash's conduits cost $300,000, but he supplies light for three cities and three villages. On the Lincoln basis you could build a 1,000-arc lamp plant for $180,000, or say $200,000. I have figures on the 1,000-arc lamp basis. I see no reason why the electric light scheme would conflict with the water works acquisition. The city council voted on the bond proposition without plans, but did it ever do differently? Was the water works appraised before the voting of $300,000 bonds? If they had been

we might now own them, but it now looks like a bad guess as to the amount of bonds.

British Ships are Released. VLADIVOSTOK, Oct. 28.—The British steamers Allanton and Calchas, both seized by the Vladivostok squadron, have been released. A deposit of $30,000 was made in behalf of the latter vessel, whose case came up on appeal at St. Petersburg shortly.

at once expressed its sorrow and promised reparation and at the very beginning intimated that any wrongdoer ought to receive punishment. One difficulty was that the fleet which committed the outrage was on its way to the limitable sea. That difficulty has been got over, but there is another difficulty, namely, that the Russian admiral has a theory of the rights and duties of a belligerent fleet as against neutrals which would make the high seas a place of public danger.

Suppose some dark night a liner or transport fell in with the second Pacific fleet at Gibraltar, where it had intended to divide, and approached within the magic distance. According to the admiral's theory he would be justified in sinking it. The position is not impossible, and the Russian admiral has a theory of the rights and duties of a belligerent fleet as against neutrals which would make the high seas a place of public danger.

Situation Improving. Mr. Balfour thought it must be admitted that the Russian government had shown an enlightened desire that truth and justice should prevail. Only a few hours ago he should himself have taken a very gloomy view of the possibility of a satisfactory and peaceful solution. He thought of the ear had shown himself an enlightened judge of what was right in the matter as between nation and nation. The British government did not ask of others anything it would not gladly have granted if it had been in a similar position. The government had no desire to take advantage of Russia's difficulties to enforce its demands. It had appealed simply to justice and equity to principles which ought to govern in the good relations between nations and it had not resented in vain. It might have been far otherwise, and that it was not was due in great measure to the foresight and wisdom of the ear. The world had its eyes centered on one great, warlike tragedy in the far east. It would have been appalling, but it was not at one moment impossible for that great world's tragedy to be doubted, and what should have been the greatest calamity that could befall mankind, namely, a struggle between two first-class powers. Speaking for the government, Mr. Balfour declared he could say it had done all it could consistently with honor to avert that calamity. To say the incident was closed and over would be too much, but they surely would not thin him over-sanguine in hoping the spirit of reason and justice which had brought Great Britain through the most difficult parts of the controversy without the calamity of war would still preside over the council of the nations and that the greatest of all calamities, the war between two European nations, would be avoided.

It was felt that it would be well to honor the settlement would reflect nothing but credit on the ruler of that great empire with which we have so nearly come into collision, but it was not at one moment impossible for that great world's tragedy to be doubted, and what should have been the greatest calamity that could befall mankind, namely, a struggle between two first-class powers.
