Railroads Are Hit Hard.

Railroad schedules yesterday were riddled by the storm and all trains hours late. A rush was made for trains by holiday visitors and the depots present an animated appearance. There has, however, been no danger of missing trains. Not a train is running on time.

To add to the difficulty of the situation all the switches in the yards are frozen up and it is difficult to keep them open long enough to get trains moving in and out of the station. Extra forces of men were employed all day thawing out the switch and keeping them clear of the ice an

On the Northwest-Island, Great Western and the Missour D. Tarpley and Emma L. Watson. Pacific the situation was the same, and it mattered little whether trains were east Rock Island, was reported five hours late and every few minutes the tickers in the telegraph station were increasing the delay. An engineer of one of the west-bound trains said just before starting out; "There'll be h-ll to pay before we get to the other end of the division today. I don't remember a time when I hated to open the throttle as I do this morning. I can put up with a breakdown, because that's something you can fix and get along with in some sort of shape. There's no fixing to Unidentified Young Woman Found be done when you get mixed up in a storm like this.'

The engineer wiped the end of his can on his sleeve, swung himself into the cab, gave a few directions to the fireman and with a puff and a snort the big machine started for a tangle of switches in the yards. It was a characteristic scene and was repeated with practically every train that pulled out of the city.

Falling on top of the snow-covered pavehard crust of ice, and New York today was like a great skating pond. The rails of the surface cars and elevated trains were so slippery that no effort was made to keep anything like schedule time. The suburban trolley lines were almost paralyzed and trains were reported late on every line. Telegraph and telephone wires were crippled to an extent that could not be estimated early today. In addition to the delay caused by the sleet storm, the congested traffic of the upper harbor and the North and East rivers, crowded with ferry boats, was hampered by a dense for which wrapped the city and harbor in Street Cars Stop at Des Moines. DES MOINES, Dec. 27 .- Citizens of Iowa woke up this morning to find a blizzard blowing with unusual fierceness across the state, piling up high snow drifts, breaking fown wires and delaying railway traffic. There was not as much snow as upon previous storms, but the gale which accompanied the fall filled the cuts along railways almost full of well packed snow. Up to 10 o'clock not a single train had reached Des Moines since I o'clock this morning. Railway officials report that they will be able to put the trains through during the day. In Des Moines street car traffic was suspended during the early morning hours and the laboring people had a difficult time in reaching their places destination.

Not a single street car was running in the city at 10 o'clock. A feeble effort was made in the morning to start up the service, but the officials finally gave up the job and allowed the storm to have its own way. The local weather bureau predicts that the thermometer will drop to 10 below during the day and that the storm will grow in severity until some time tomorrow.

Terrific Gale at Sloux City. SIOUX CITY, Ia., Dec. 27 .- (Special Telegram.)-Sloux City is wrapped in a mantle of snow and ice, with the wind blowing at a velocity of sixty miles an hour. Throughout the northwest conditions are practically the same. At 8 o'clock tonight the thermometer registered 9 degrees below zero and the little more than forty-eight miles an hour at times increasing to over sixty miles. There are no reports from the extreme northwest on account of the snow and ice and consequent bad condition of the telegraph service. All trains into the city were from one to five hours late. At midnight last night the temerature began dropping at an alarming rate, until 8 o'clock this morning, when it was 8 below. It remained sta tionary until noon, when it began to warm up, until at 3 o'clock it was only 6 below. Then another cold spell struck this part of the country and the mercury began descending again. The snowfall is about one inch, but the wind drifted this about the city, making passage through the streets difficult. No loss of life has been reported.

WEST POINT, Neb., Dec. 27 .- (Special.) from the northwest is blowing and it is intensely cold. Travel is entirely suspended ments and sidewalks, the rain has formed and business ifkewise, the wind blowing the snow so flereely that locomotion is almost impossible. Trains are from six to eight hours behind time, being unable to make headway against the heavy wind. No fears are entertained for the safety of stock, the farmers of this county being well prepared with shelter for stock. Discomfort and inconvenience will be all the damage sustained unless the storm increases materially. The storm approaches in severity one of the old-time blizzards and may develop into one before night.

Helps Winter Wheat. LINWOOD, Neb., Dec. 27.-(Special.)-Sunday, Christmas, was nice and warm t rained a little, then turned to sleet; Monday was a little colder, but not bad until evening, when the wind changed to the north and a fine snow began to fall, which continued all night, and became an old-time blizzard by this morning, mercury went down to six below and there will be considerable suffering among the stock, as the weather has been very fine. This is the worst storm of the season. It will help winter wheat.

Storm at Beatrice.

BEATRICE, Neb. Dec. 27.-The worst storm of the season struck this vicinity yesterday morning. Following quite a heavy sleet, a driving snowstorm set in from the northwest.
