evangelistic movement met at the Pirst Presbyterian church, with a number of important items of business up for discussion. A committee, consisting of Revs. E. Combie Smith, J. W. Conley and H. C. Herring, was appointed to arrange for conday meetings at the Young Men's Christian association rooms during the continuance of the union effort. It was decided, if practicable, to ask some of the Christian business men of Omaha to address these meetings, a large number of names being suggested. A committee, consisting of Revs. Newman H. Burdick, Robert Yost and J. E. Hummon, was appointed to make arrangements for similar meetings at the Young Women's Christian association rooms.

It was recommended to the several districts that special children's meetings be appointed for each Sunday afternoon, and that Sunday, February 5, be designated as decision day, in harmony with the suggestions of the Sunday school authorities of the various church denominations. It was decided that it would be advisable o hold at least one midnight meeting in the "burnt district," at which as many of the ministers and Christian workers as possible be present. It was voted to seek the co-operation of the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America in this movement. The workers are to assemble at some central downtown point and with the Salvation Army and Volunteers, if their co-operation can be secured, march through the "burnt district" to either the City Mission, or some other place, to be designated, and hold a gospel service. Revs. T. V. Moore and B. F. Fellman and Mr. Arthur Chase were designated a committee to make the necessary arrangements. requested to use their telephones in inviting others to the meetings. This is to be done, not only with reference to the diswriting was also commended to the people as a useful means of reaching others. After a thorough discussion of the adstrong sentiment was developed for a central downtown meeting of all the districts, it was decided to lay the matter on the table until after the matter had been taken up by the various districts in their local conferences,
