BOYLES COLLEGE

Now Teaches Telegraphy

And, depend on it, it would not be teaching it unless it was in a position to produce practical telegraphic operators—men and women who can "send" and "receive" with "chained lightning" rapidity and unerring accuracy. If it was not equipped to graduate pupils who will have every technicality, every trick of the art, every little "knack" of telegraphy at their finger's ends, it would not have inaugurated a Telegraphic Department.

The course includes study in Elementary Electricity, including electro-magnetism, the use of resonators, wire-testing, cut-outs and switch-board study, followed by study of Morse Alphabet, manipulation, position, sending, receiving by sound, together with full courses of commercial telegraphy, elementary and advanced railroad telegraphy, block signaling, technical orders and telegraphic reports and expert commercial telegraphy.

The course while practical in the extreme, being shorn of everything will not be of actual assistance to the pupil in telegraphic work after gradua-tion, is exceedingly fascinating. The study of electricity, that mysterious force that man has chained to do his work, but which no man has ever defined, is most absorbing. The course is carefully graduated and every instrument and apparatus that could add to the student's knowledge and practical grasp of the subject have been installed in our new building. The future holds out rosy hopes to telegraphers. The present demand guarantees a good salary. It is an ideal field of labor for young women as well as young men. Write for further information. Day and night.
