SERVICES FOR GOOD FRIDAY

Catholic and Episcopal Churches Hold Solemn Observance of Day.

ALTARS DRAPED IN MOURNING COLORS

Priests Refer to Message from the Cross and Call Humanity's Attention to the Divine Lesson.

Good Friday was solemnly observed in the Catholic and the Episcopal churches of Omaha. The anniversary of the crucifixion of the Saviour is the most solemn day of the church calendar, and the subdued tone was dominant in all the services. The altar hangings were of deep color, the music was of the most solemn and the sermons dealt with the crucifixion and the last words of the Saviour on the cross and the lessons to be drawn therefrom. In the Catholic churches the service consisted of the mass of the priest sanctified. In the Episcopal churches the services of the three hours was observed. This corresponds with the time during which the Saviour was nailed to the cross and lasted from noon until 3 o'clock. In Trinity cathedral and in some of the other churches there will be evening prayer and worship at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

Dean Beecher's Sermon. In the Episcopal cathedral, Very Reverend Dean Beecher preached. He told of the sayings from the cross and pointed out the message and meaning of each for manhood, and the course the Saviour pointed out for the people even during his dying moments. One thing which the dean felt (Christ) had emphasized was the sanctity of the home. He felt that God pointed out to all young men and young women on the point of marriage to make the step a matter of prayer and communion with God. When it is considered how secular a thing marriage is now, said the dean, and how lightly and thoughtlessly it is entered, he could see a great need for the message from the cross. The home, he felt, is the center of Christian influence and so Jesus even in his agony had pointed out the necessity of remembering the sacredness and sanctity of it. He had taught that the church was one great family of which he, Christ, was the elder brother. Christ had said that the mother, which in the church, should not be allowed to suffer from lack of support and devotion. The dean considered that if the church people gave more consideration to this ideal of relationship in Christ, they would become more unselfish and forgiving. He would not see how it was possible with the words of Christ ringing in their ears that any should fail to feel a glowing love for the Saviour.

Services at St. Philomena's.

In St. Philomena's cathedral and in St. John's and other Catholic churches there were services at 9 o'clock in the morning and additional services in the evening at 7:45 o'clock. The purple altar cloths of Lent were retained in some cases and in others the dead black hangings of mourning were displayed and the services were of a sad and reverential nature. The morning services consisted of the mass of the priest sanctified. This began with the reading of the Passion of Our Lord from the version of St. John. There was the unveiling of the cross and the veneration. In the cathedral Father McGovern solemnized the mass. There was the procession of the sacred host consecrated Thursday which was brought back in procession from the altar of repose to the main altar. In St. John's church a large congregation assembled for the services which Father Bronsgeest conducted. Last evening's service was the solemn way of the cross, with a sermon on the "Passion of Our Lord." In St. Philomena's Father O'Connor of Creighton preached.

DESERTED WIFE SEEKS DEATH

Woman Waits for Husband's Coming and Turns to Suicide in Despair.

Alva Blenden left home Tuesday morning after a quarrel with his wife, saying to his neighbors that he thought life would be more peaceful for both of them if they lived apart. The deserted woman waited and prayed three days for his return, and crazed with grief, tried to take her life Thursday evening by drinking carbolic acid. She was saved by the intervention of her husband's father and Robert Furay, who came into the house in time to see her raising the bottle to her lips.

Before leaving, Mr. Blenden told the neighbors the cause of the quarrel. It was that his wife had refused to cook a meal for him. When he tried to reason with her, she proved she possessed a very sharp tongue. They had had trouble before and Mr. Blenden decided to end it. Up to last Saturday he was employed as assistant pressman by the Omaha News, but quit with the expectation of going to work for the Talbot Ice company, for which his neighbor, Mr. Furay, is foreman. Tuesday he informed Mr. Furay that he did not wish employment.

Although Blenden said he did not think his wife would miss him, it proved entirely otherwise. She has called at the police station and asked the officers to find him; she has written to every place where she thinks he might go. Until Thursday she had some hope of his return, but that day she gave up, and when she went to town in the afternoon she purchased a bottle of acid. Her father-in-law suspected her purpose and came into the house at an opportune time. When the bottle was taken from her she went into a state of nervous collapse and is now confined to her bed. She threatens to kill herself as soon as she is given a chance. Her continual cry is that she wants Alva to come back to her. She is a woman in the early twenties and has not been married long.

Blenden has probably not gone very far, as he did not have enough money to pay much railroad fare. The detectives of Omaha are watching for him to acquaint him with his wife's condition. His home is at Tenth street and Avenue H, East Omaha.

Strange sentence.

Judge Samuel Phadley, who has been on the municipal bench in Lowell, Mass., for twenty-four years, has adopted the plan of sentencing petty offenders to "good behavior for life." He has studied the probation question for many years and thus sums up the result of his observation: "If a man is put on probation for one, three or six months he feels as though he could go on a spree at the end of that time. My idea is to reform drunkards by putting them on good behavior for life, then they know that if they are arrested, say twenty years from now, the old sentence can be put in force."

A Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter, Butler of Orion, Mich., celebrated their golden wedding last week. Some unusual features characterized the event. One was the fact that there has never been a death in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Butler, and another is that every one of their twenty-three descendants was present at the celebration. Another out of the ordinary thing was that Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Gibson, who were respectively best man and bridesmaid at the wedding fifty years ago, were present. Fifty guests were present, including the children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. At the same time he took up the law. He read Blackstone, Kent and Chitty, and made special studies of contracts and corporations. This knowledge has since proved of great advantage to him.

Telephone as a Reformer.

Congressman Bingham, at a dinner of the Philadelphia Clover club, spoke of modern life in the most optimistic way. "The world is growing better," he said. "Daily it becomes cleaner, kinder, and more upright. Nearly everything makes for reform. Even the telephone has a tremendous reforming influence. "Let me give you an example of the surprising effect that the telephone exercises over our morals. "A certain man, at breakfast one morning, said to his wife: "My dear, I'll not be home to dinner to-night and you had better not sit up for me, as I shall be detained very late at the office posting my books. "Very well," the lady answered. "Before I go to bed I'll say good night to you over the telephone. "The man had forgotten, you see, that a telephone now connected his office and his house."—Cincinnati Enquirer.
