FASHIONABLES TO TAKE PART IN CARNIVAL

Matron and Maid to Masquerade and Preside at Booths for Benent of Charity and Church.

Fate.

It had to be. We had to meet.
It is too late. You can't retreat.
You had to smile. I had to bow.
It was most strange, you must all
You had to stop. I had to speak.
No explanation need we seek—
'Twas Fate!

You had to blush. I had to talk.
You had to nod. We had to walk.
You had to hear. I had to tell.
'Tis thus the Goddess weaves her spell.
And then, at last—it had to be.
'Tis very simple now to see—
'Twas Fate!

We have to love unto the end.
A single path we have to wend.
You cannot go another way.
The scheme ordained you must obey;
We must conform with the design,
I must be yours. You must be mine.
"Tis Fate!"

Above everything else the "Streets of Paris" will occupy the time and attention of local society women for the next ten days. Other things have been planned, to be sure, but they will be secondary to the big carnival at the Auditorium. A score of local churches, hospitals and various charitable and philanthropic enterprises will profit by the affair as well as the Auditorium, and it is to these that society women will lend their presence and their help. Scores of attractive booths have been planned and will be presided over by parties of young women. One of the booths that promises to be conspicuous is in charge of a committee of women having a display for the benefit of the Clarkson Memorial Hospital association. Those in this booth will be in Japanese costume and a different party of young women will be in charge each evening. On Monday evening Mrs. Albert Noe will preside and will have as assistants Madame Borglum, Mrs. C. C. Cope, jr., Mrs. J. B. Scannell, Mrs. Joseph: Clarkson, Miss Mary Shackelford. Miss Bertha Shackelford, Miss Alice Buchanan, Miss Ruth Dahlman, Miss McPherson and Mrs. Paul Wernher.

Tuesday evening Mrs. W. B. Meikle and Mrs. John Williams will be in charge and assisted by Mrs. George C. Smith, Miss Marie Crounse, Miss Lida Bowen, Miss Richardson, Miss Nason, Miss Mary Ringwait. Miss Carmelita Chase and Miss Mary Alice Rogers.

GOES UP OF BREAD First Effects of of the Seare Over the Wheat Crop.

The great common people will now proceed to pay for the rumored failure of the wheat crop. The first number on the program is an advance in the price of bread in Omaha beginning Monday, May 20. The price to grocers will be raised from the old price of twenty-eight loaves for $1 to the new price of twenty-five loaves for $1.

"This has been decided upon by the bakers of the city because of the advance in Miss Gwendoline White and Miss Gladys the price of flour," said P. F. Petersen, Peters entertained the members of the manager of the U. P. Steam Baking comsenior class of Brownell hall at luncheon pany.
