NEW VAGARIES OF THE SCARF

Gown from Trousseau of Famou French Actress Used in New Play.

One of the famous French actresses in a new play recently launched wore a frock of white chiffon of princess design and single silhouette, such as is adopted for so many of the French lingeric frocks, and trimmed with multitudinous tiny horizontal tucks and narrow lines of valenciennes. A wide scarf of exquisite flowered ribbon, soft, lustrous and bordered by a two-inch band of black velvet, was draped over the shoulders and drawn down to each side of the waist line in front, where It was held by small oral buckles, the ends falling in short, rounded tabs below. Peters and William J. Dermody, members of the sion, also gave brief addresses on real estate and business conditions observed on the trip, and Mr. Peters gave it as his opinion that loans made on Nebraska and Omaha real estate were much safer and remunerative than those on property in the west.

Report on Power Question. The following report regarding the power question was submitted, but definite action was not taken and the report was formally received:

First-We have made considerable inves-First—We have made considerable investigation as to the price charged for electric power in Omaha and find that power is not sold commercially on a horsepower basis, but on a kilowatt hour basis. One kilowatt hours of power consumed in one year, which is equivalent to one and a third horsepower continuous use for one

The prices charged for electric power in Omaha are more or less a secret, notwithstanding that section 134 of the city charter gives the city the right to regulate and itx the price of power in the city.

The Omaha Electric Light and Power company makes a special low rate on power to large consumers and to induce the location of new industries, but we have been unable to learn of a lower price for electric power than 2 cents per kilowatt hour, which is equal to $139 per horsepower per annum, used continuously.

The average cost for electric power to consumers of small amounts of power—that is, from one horsepower to two horsepower continuous run—is from 5 to 6 cents net per kilowatt, or for centinuous power 125 to $390 per horsepower per annum. However, we have every reason to think that the prices charged for power in Omaha by the local company is as low, if not lower, than any other city where water power does not come in competition.

Second—We have been able to examine three expert reports on the Columbus water power project compiled by prominent hydraulic engineers. Also expert reports on the Fremont and Seymour park projects, and find that all of these projects are practicable from an engineering, as well as a financial standpoint and that if anyone the Fremont and Seymour park projects, and find that all of these projects are practicable from an engineering, as well as a financial standpoint and that if anyone of these power enterprises was developed, electrical power could be delivered in Omaha at $30 or less per twelve-horse-power, and at such prices, there would be a large profit to the canal company. We have many reasons for thinking that the promoters of the Columbus water power have made financial arrangements to secure the $1,50,000 capital necessary to develop and transmit 41,000 twelve-hour-horse-power to Omaha. The three different expert reports examined by us all agree that at least 41,000 electrical horsepower on a twelve-hour basis can be generated and if this amount were sold at $30 per horse-power on a twelve-hour basis, it will enable the promoters to earn over 30 per cent per annum on the total cost of the development, and such developments can be duplicated at Schuyler, Fremont and Omaha, furnishing 150,000 available horsepower.

Third—We do not believe that the development of water power, three and a half miles northwest of Columbus would create a rival manufacturing city at Columbus. While such power would be more or less beneficial to Columbus, Schuyler and Fremont, ret the great benefit of such development must come to Omaha, where the market is to be had for the power and where other necessary manufacturing advantages are pregent, such as accessibility to raw material and distribution of the finished products by reason of the many ratiway facilities of this city and it is well known that all large manufacturing plants are more successful if located near large cities to enable them to have access to an abundance of cheap labor.

Fourth—in case outside capital should not undertake the development of the Columbus, Fremont or Seymour park water power schemes, we would recommend, that the city of Omaha vote bends to construct the most favorable of these power enterprises, as the city is fully authorized to do, as per sections 140 and 141 of the city charter.
