

In view of the near approach of Omaha's Fall Festivities—Ak-Sar-Ben Carnival, parades and the Coronation Ball to be followed immediately by the Annual Horse Show, which promises so much more this season than ever before—we are particularly desirous that you should see our peerless styles and fashions in high grade imported and domestic silks, dress goods and ladies' ready-to-wear garments. Our silk and dress goods buyer visited Zurich, Crefeld (Germany), Paris and Lyons (France) and selected (with scrutinizing care and an expert knowledge of Omaha's tastes) the most comprehensive and varied lines of dress fabrics ever brought to this city. Our cloak buyer has been very successful in his efforts to secure exclusive styles of ladies' new fall suits, costumes, gowns, etc. These are on display on Second Floor. The ladies of Omaha are heartily invited to investigate.

TIMELY REAL ESTATE TALK

Sale of Cathedral Means Big Building for Ninth Street.

TO COVER ENTIRE HALF BLOCK

Big Structures of Commerce Encroach Rapidly on Red Light District and Denizens Must Move in Few Years.

Bishop Scannell received a check for $1,000 last week. This would have excited little interest for the public at large had it not become known that the check was earnest money from a large corporation on the purchase of the Immaculate cathedral property, and that the consummation of the transaction would mean not alone the erection of another Catholic church in the southeast part of the city and the probable enlargement of the church of St. Mary Magdalene, but the construction of a mammoth wholesale building to cover an entire half block on the site of the present cathedral and parish school. It probably means also the construction of another parish school. The John Deere Plow company save the check. Manager Peck says the company contemplates the erection of an eight-story building, 122,324 feet. Its present large home at Tenth and Leavenworth streets is crowded, and a warehouse is maintained in Council Bluffs, as well as one or two small ones in Omaha.

churches are very active in acquiring new homes. And while the established institutions are building themselves handsome places of worship, new churches are organizing and starting to work in a modest way. The latest arrival is the First United Brethren church, which has recently bought the old building at Nineteenth and Lathrop streets, occupied a few years ago by the First Universalist church, which has since been dissolved. The purchase price is not disclosed, but Rev. M. O. McLaughlin says, with $2,000 worth of repairs, the building will be worth $18,000.

The Druid Hill Improvement club, at its meeting last week, denounced the council for giving away the city's streets. This righteous wrath was occasioned by the city's presentation of a part of Boyd street, by lease, to the Missouri Pacific, the action being taken without petition. The club said the action was illegal and in violation of the city charter. The club addressed to the city council a letter of protest, which was referred to the city attorney.

At the Real Estate exchange meeting last week there was much discussion pro and con as to whether one should build small houses or large ones if he would do most for the welfare of Omaha. Some said the large houses were better for the town because they made a better appearance; others said poor people had to have homes and the builder, with proper regard for the good of the city, would erect small cottages such as these could rent or buy.

This question remained undecided and the talk changed to the subject of profits on large and small houses. Some said they made more money on cottages and some made more on large houses. So the second question was unsettled. "I have been building a good many flats in the last year," said Ernest Sweet, "and I am satisfied with the results. If I want to sell them, they will not, of course, be taken off my hands as quickly as cottages would be, but as long as I rent them I get a better interest on my money than if I had put it in cottages.

OMAHA BUSINESS MEN READY TO START FOR LINCOLN ON A FRIENDLY VISIT THURSDAY LAST.

At Twenty-fifth and Laird streets, Nicholas Mergen sold his tract there about a week ago to George P. Hulst for $6,000, and the latter plans to grade, plat and place the lots on the market, in all probability on the easy payment plan.

Some live realty men ought to be able to sell to the Catholics a lot for a church site in the vicinity of Tenth and William streets. The Catholics in the south end of St. Philomena's parish, who will have to establish another parish if St. Philomena's is consolidated with the parish of St. Mary Magdalene, have already been looking at a part of the Kountze estate with a view of buying. The new church will probably be on Tenth street, to be near the car line. St. Patrick's at Fourteenth and Cassin streets and St. Joseph's on South Sixteenth street are too far away for the people south and east of the Union depot.

Perhaps the troubles of the street car company in securing a site for a new car barn have not yet been ended. First the company bought ground near St. Joseph's hospital, but gave it up at the request of the hospital authorities, who objected to having the barn so close to their institution.

Then the company took an option on lots on the north side of Dorcas street, east of Sixth, and men connected with the company paid money down on four acres on the south side of Dorcas, between Sixth and Eighth streets. When the boundaries of the latter were definitely determined, the company pronounced the site undesirable, as part of it was filled ground. And now the other deal may fall through because some of the heirs of L. Woodworth, of whom there are twenty-three, are reluctant to sign the deed to the property on the north side of Dorcas street.

N. F. Harriman has bought from A. H. Fetters, for a residence site, a tract of ground at the northwest corner of Woolworth street and the boulevard, paying $4,000.

Ralph E. Sunderland has bought from L. E. Sunderland, for $2,500, a house and lot on the east side of Thirty-first street between Pacific and Poppleton.

Nick Marini bought from Bertha Birkett, for $2,000, a house and lot on the north side of Pierce street between Sixth and Seventh.

The Byron Reed company sold a new cottage on Burdette street to William J. Silk for $2,500.

PICKRELL'S BODY GOES WEST

Former Prominent Nebraskan Will Be Buried Beside Wife at Phoenix, Ariz.

Watson Pickrell, who died after an illness of about two weeks of typhoid fever and other complications at the Omaha General hospital Friday morning was an old Nebraskan, and for many years a resident of Beatrice. He was a man of considerable means and was for many years connected with the bureau of animal industry, Department of Agriculture, having charge at one time of the entire transmississippi district. He was the close personal friend of the late Senator A. S. Paddock and was prominent in Nebraska politics fifteen or twenty years ago. He was placed at the head of one of the chief departments of the bureau of animal industry under the administration of Secretary of Agriculture Jeremiah Rusk, and possibly more than any one man was instrumental in the development of the animal industry bureau.

Mr. Pickrell is survived by four children, three boys and one girl. His wife died a few years ago at their home near Phoenix, Ariz., in which territory Mr. Pickrell has been a resident for the last twelve or fifteen years. He was engaged in numerous irrigation projects in Arizona, and of recent years has successfully developed the ostrich farming industry there, second in importance only to the ostrich farming of California. He was 57 years of age.

His brother, Arthur Pickrell, of Buffalo, Ill., arrived in Omaha Saturday morning and will take the body to Arizona for burial at Phoenix beside his wife. The funeral party will be met at Kansas City by another brother, Will Pickrell, now en route there from Arizona.

A number of former Nebraska acquaintances and former residents of Beatrice met at the undertaking establishment of Cole-McKay Saturday morning to pay their last tribute of respect to the late Watson Pickrell.

Pickrell's body will not leave until 9 a. m. Sunday for Kansas City. It will go via the Burlington to Kansas City.

The town of Pickrell, Gage county, was named after Mr. Pickrell.

PEEK CONFIRMS BEE STORY

Plow Company Will Build Eight Stories on Cathedral Site.

EXPECT TO START THIS FALL

Building Will Be of Heavy Mill Construction, Costing Upward of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars.

That the John Deere Plow company had bought the St. Philomena cathedral property and will erect an eight-story ware house covering the entire half-block, as readers of the Bee learned a few days ago, was confirmed by Manager George N. Peck on his return to Omaha Saturday from the state fair.

"We have bought from the Catholics the four lots on the west side of Ninth street between Harney and Howard street," said Mr. Peck, "and will erect a building on it 122,324 feet. It will be eight stories in height, that is, it may be seven stories and basement and it may be eight stories and basement. We expect to start work this fall, though the illness of the president of the company, Charles Deere, may possibly delay operations until spring. The company's architect will be in Omaha within two weeks and plans will be begun at once."

The building will be of heavy mill construction and will cost upwards of $400,000. As the site is costing the company $100,000, the new building means an expenditure of more than $500,000.

Deal Still Unfinished.

The deal is not closed yet, but will be as soon as certain papers are returned from Boston. To bind the bargain the Deere company has paid $5,000.

No disposition has been made of the company's present home at Tenth and Leavenworth street, but it is offered for sale.

What the concern will do with the half-block at Ninth and Leavenworth it bought a year ago for a building site is a matter for speculation. It is believed in reality circles that the Union Pacific objected to the erection of a warehouse on the property, seeing the need of it for an extension of the Union depot grounds, and probably persuaded the Deere company to find a site elsewhere. It is even hinted by some realty men that the railroad has already bought the lot. They lie on the south side of Leavenworth street and between Eighth and Ninth and adjoining the depot grounds on the north.
