APPEAL COSTS MUST COME

Money Demanded Before Case Goes to District Court Hereafter.

NEW RULE MADE BY BROADWELL

Order Will Be Far-reaching in Disordering Persons Convicted of Minor Offenses from Going Higher.

A new rule, which will be of far-reaching effect in discouraging persons convicted of minor offenses in police court from appealing to the district court, has been announced by District Clerk Broadwell. After November 1, he has announced, the costs in appeal cases must be paid in advance. Heretofore it has only been necessary for the person who wished to appeal to find a bondsman and carry the case up without the payment of any money.

announced the new policy for the protection of the county. Several of the appeal cases every Thursday City Prosecutor Daniel H. E. Frederickson will be called up to defend himself against the charge of speeding his automobile. He was fined $5 and costs in police court and appealed to the district court. Friday Catherine Smith, with a common charge against her, paid a fine of $15 and costs. Stump Garth was to have been tried, but the policemen wanted as witnesses failed to show up and his case was dismissed. The case against Rasmus Haamussen, charged with using a false measure was dismissed by the city prosecutor.

MARKETS ARE WELL STOCKED

Everything is There to Be Had at This Season of the Year.

For housewives who will just take a look for it the Omaha markets carry almost everything and anything to be had at this season of the year. Of course all the grocers do not have the full line, but many do, and things are not excessively expensive either, even though much of the stuff has been shipped far.

Butter has taken a decided drop in price and all the package creamery sold at 20 cents a pound Friday morning, while the country and dairy butters sold from 23 to 30 cents a pound. The best eggs are selling at 25 cents a dozen and other eggs at 20 and 25 cents. Cranberries are plentiful and sell at 10 cents a quart, but are not as choice as may be expected later. Wax beans are 10 cents a quart and radishes as crisp and fresh as home grown, sell for 10 cents a bunch of a dozen or more. Head lettuce is 5 and 10 cents a head and cabbage 5 and 10 cents a head, according to size. Spinach is 20 cents a peck, cauliflower 15 and 20 cents a head and hot house cucumbers 15 cents each. Jersey sweet potatoes are 10 cents a pound and home grown 5 cents a pound. Irish potatoes are 25 cents a peck or 30 cents a bushel. Imported endives at 30 cents a pound. Japanese persimmons at 10 cents each. Malaga grapes at 20 cents a pound, artichokes and all sorts of fruit novelties are among the things to be had by those who look for them. Concord grapes are still good and sell for 30 and 40 cents a basket. Michigan peaches are in and sell for 40 cents a basket. Pineapples are to be had at 40 cents each. Tokay grapes at 10 cents a pound and winter watermelons at 75 cents each. Chickens, turkeys and ducks constitute the variety available in fowls, but they sell undrawn and with head and feet on. Chickens are 14 1/2 cents a pound, geese 16 cents. Fresh turkey 25 cents and storage turkey 25 cents a pound.

BRYAN BOOSTS STATE TICKET

Returns from Enemy's Country to Speak to the Folks at Home.

William J. Bryan paid a flying visit to Omaha between trains Friday, arriving about 10 o'clock and leaving at 2 p. m. He spent the time conferring with Mayor Dahlman and Congressman Hitchcock and then started to the western part of the state, where he will make three or four speeches for the state ticket before going home to vote. Mr. Bryan refused to be interviewed on the present financial flurry, saying the matter was not far enough developed to show its real force and extent, but he was certain conditions were not as bad as they had been painted in some quarters. "Conditions from a democratic standpoint are rapidly improving," he said, "as the people are coming to understand that

BARLEY MARKET IS OMAHA

More of This Grain in October than Ten Months Last Year.

MALTING COMPANY GETS CREDIT

Over One Hundred Thousand Bushels Received Here in Four Weeks, Beating All Other Kinds of Cereal.

Receipts of barley have increased at the Omaha market until the report for the month of October, issued by the Grain Exchange, shows 10,500 bushels for the four weeks, or almost as much as was received in Omaha during the ten months of 1906 from January 1 to November 1.

The Grain exchange credits the Gate City Malting company with causing the demand for barley and steps have been taken by the exchange to secure better railroad rates from South Dakota to enable growers there to take advantage of the Omaha market, usually higher than in Chicago at this time of the year.

Shipments of barley for the month of October were 35,000 bushels, some 7,000 bushels being required to meet the local demand. For the month of October, 1906, the receipts of barley were 23,000 bushels and the shipments 5,000 bushels. This year the receipts were 39,000 bushels and the shipments 35,000 bushels. For the ten months of 1906 the receipts were 151,000 bushels, while this year the receipts from January 1 to November 1 are 205,000 bushels.

No other grain has kept pace with barley in receipts at the Omaha market, though rye receipts have been heavy. The receipts of rye were 20,000 bushels during October as against 20,000 last year. All other grain showed a decrease for the month, as shown in the report below.

Table with columns for Year (1907, 1906) and Grain types (Wheat, Corn, Oats, Rye, Barley) with corresponding receipts and shipments in bushels.

Words of West Wisdom

When you want work do you ask for it, or do you try to hide away from it? Do you go where work is to be had, or where there isn't any. When you advertise for work do you advertise where nobody expects you to, or where the people who want work don't always look for help?

PATIENTS AS PALLBEARERS

County Hospital Inmates Chosen by A. J. Smith to Act as His Funeral.

With seven of his unfortunate friends as pallbearers, the funeral of A. J. Smith, the blind man who committed suicide at the county hospital Wednesday was held Friday afternoon at the undertaking rooms of Bralley & Dorrance.

Smith remembered his old comrades at the hospital when he was making arrangements for his death by his own hand and Sunday he gave Mrs. Ahlquist, a charity worker, a list of twenty of them he wanted to act as pallbearers at his funeral.

Some of them were blind, some lame and others too weak to walk alone, but out of the twenty seven who were strong enough to carry the casket were chosen to perform the last rites. They were James Fraser, James Montgomery, Joseph White, George Miller, Ed O'Neill, Joe Hoskowsky and Tom Deagan.

The funeral service was simple, the sermon being preached by Rev. J. N. Gortner of McCabe Methodist church. Burial was at Forest Lawn.

Smith's last thoughts were of the friends he had been with since he lost his eyesight. He left $100 in silver, tied up in an old handkerchief, and he directed that after paying his funeral expenses and erecting a tombstone at his grave, the remainder should go to Nona West, a blind girl living at 1908 Corby street, who had befriended him during the first years after the loss of his sight. She was a graduate of the Institute for the Blind at Nebraska City, and through her was enabled to get into the institute as a pupil, though he was over the legal age. He learned to make cord hammocks, laundry bags and other articles with which he earned his spending money. Besides leaving Miss West what money is left over from his funeral expenses he willed her his hammock tools, some unfinished hammocks, gloves and a few trinkets. His clothing will be divided among the inmates at the hospital who can use them.

measly dime. I've got to have a drink." "Nothing doing," replied Furay. "Say, ain't you a candidate?" asked the thirty one. "Not by a long shot." "Well, ain't there a candidate in this office?" "I should say not," replied Furay, crossing his fingers and saying "over the left" to himself. "Well, I want to find a candidate. I thought there was one around here some place. Maybe he's across the hall. There's a big crowd going in that door and it looks like there might be a candidate there. I'd like to know what a campaign's for if it ain't to help a feller get a few drinks off the candidates."

DOG'S LONG JOURNEY HOME

Poozoo and emaciated from hardship and lack of food, the big Newfoundland dog of John Birnberg staggered onto the steps of his old home in La Crosse, Wis., after one of the most remarkable journeys ever undertaken by a canine. The Birnberg family moved out west two months ago, locating in Nebraska. The dog was taken with them, but seemed discontented in his new home, and recently a member of the family wrote for a La Crosse friend that the dog had disappeared.

DOG'S LONG JOURNEY HOME

Monday night John Crow, who bought the Birnberg home in this city, returning from work found the Newfoundland dog lying on the top step of the porch. With large blisters on his feet and his frame worn to a skeleton, the dog was completely exhausted and unable to move a step further. With a gentle whine of joy the animal lifted his head with an effort and licked the hand that caressed him, grateful that he had at last reached his destination. "The dog has won a home," said Mr. Crow, carrying him into the house and depositing the tired canine on a bed, where Mrs. Crow swathed the blistered feet in bandages and fed him the best in the house.

VAIN SEARCH FOR CANDIDATE

Impeccuous and Thirsty One Tries to Bag Frank Furay, but Misses It.

Impeccuous and thirsty would-be politicians are finding or are trying to find in the bank situation a new excuse for touching the long suffering candidates for office. Thursday afternoon the odor of stale beer permeated the corridors of the court house, Charles E. Furay followed the scent and came upon the proprietor of it in the hall evidently waiting for someone. He needed a bath and was a little foggy as to his ideas.

VAIN SEARCH FOR CANDIDATE

"Say, feller, loan me $2," he said, pulling a greasy check book out of his pocket. "All my money's in the bank and I've got to have some." "Can't do it," said Furay, "that's where my money is, too." "Give me a quarter then or a little
