TALK OF FUTURE OF NEGRO

Topic Discussed by Eminent Orators at Howard University Anniversary.

ALL SPEECHES OPTIMISTIC

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—President Roosevelt, Hon. James Bryce, British ambassador, and Mr. Andrew Carnegie, delivered addresses reflecting pronounced optimism as to the future of the negro race here yesterday. The occasion was the installation of Rev. Wilbur Patterson Thirkield as president of Howard university, and the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of that institution, which is devoted primarily to the higher education of the negro.

Mr. Bryce pointed to the development of the race during the last forty years as being marvelous compared with the development of the Anglo-Saxon race. It was for Mr. Carnegie an unmitigated pleasure to hear the declaration that it was not now the question, "How shall we do with the negro," but "How can we get more of them?"

MOST EXCELLENT HOME TREATMENT

For Consumption and Throat Troubles—Also Common Colds.

The camps for tuberculous patients in the pine forests of Maine, established by the Philadelphia specialist, have demonstrated a new and wonderfully successful phase in the treatment of pulmonary diseases. The remarkable stimulating effect on the respiratory organs by the resins and atmosphere of the pine forest has always been a matter of great interest to the medical world, and now that science has produced a form of pine extract that is free from foreign matter the treatment has sprung into popular prominence.

If this preparation be used in connection with plenty of outdoor exercise and the habit of taking deep, long breaths every few minutes patients will have all the advantages of the pine forest camps right at their own homes and the most effective remedy obtainable for any case of lung trouble that is not too far advanced and a cure for any cough or cold that is curable.

The ingredients can be procured from any well stocked prescription druggist and the mixture made at home. Care should be taken to secure only the "Concentrated" oil of pine, which comes up for medicinal use in glass vials and enclosed in a rubber-stoppered case which protects it from light. The ordinary bulk oil of pine is useless, owing to the foreign matter that it contains. Like every patent medicine imitation. They only produce weakness and fall in specific results.

Address of President.

President Roosevelt said: "I am glad to have this chance to come before you and say a word of greeting and of good-will today. This day of your installation, Mr. President, commemorates the fortieth anniversary of the foundation of this institution. There has been much of sorrow and disappointment that has come to meet only the colored race, but of all races, during that forty years, and sometimes in looking back we fall to realize all the progress that has been made. Let me call attention to just two facts. During these forty years, principally during the time that has elapsed since the emancipation proclamation, the colored citizens of the United States have accumulated property until now they have all told some $300,000,000 worth of taxable property in this country.

"The material basis is now everything, but it is an indispensable prerequisite to moving upward in the life of decent citizenship, and the colored man when he acquires a home has taken that indispensable step, and a long, long step. Upon that material basis, the structure of the higher life, and this institution has been devoted throughout its career to turning out men and women who should be teachers and helpers of their own people toward their higher life. You have those upon 1,800 graduates.

Every graduate of this institution, wherever he goes out into the world has many difficulties to face. Few have more difficulties to face than those who graduate from this institution. You bear a great burden of responsibility upon your shoulders, men and women, who come from this institution. I trust you will realize it and that help will be given to you from on high to bear it well and worthily.

You turn out men and women into many different professions. Of course, a peculiar importance attaches to those who in after life go into the ministry. A minister needs to remember that each one of us here needs to remember—but he needs to remember it more than anyone else—the truth of the biblical saying, that "By your fruits shall men know you."

Good Work of Doctors. "I have also taken a peculiar interest because of having seen the effects of their work close at hand, in the graduates in medicine of this university. I believe you have all told graduated something like a thousand men in medicine, and I happen to know that a peculiar need of achievement has come to these men. I think that the average of accomplishment has been particularly high on the graduate in medicine of this institution. I earnestly hope that the average graduate of your medical department will not stay around Washington; that he won't try to get into some government position; that he won't even go to some other large city, to hope he will go out and dwell in medicine of this institution. I earnestly hope that the average graduate of your medical department will not stay around Washington; that he won't try to get into some government position; that he won't even go to some other large city, to hope he will go out and dwell in medicine of this institution.

"The board of trade has supervision over grievances and power to correct them. In case of complaints a meeting of conciliation is first held, which is participated in by the complainant, a representative of the board and a representative of the railroad. In one-third of the cases considered by the meeting of conciliation, I was informed by the member of the board, who showed me many courtesies during my inquiries, the railroad accedes to the demand of the complainant, in about one-third of the cases they are dismissed and in the other third the railroads decline to accede and which the graduates of this university go.

What I have to say, however, applies to all. It is from this institution that are graduated those who will lead and teach the less fortunate fellows. Upon their leading and teaching much depends for their race and for their country."

HEPBURN ON SESSION

Mississippi when it is high and navigation is at its best, while the sentiment which at present favors river improvement is from the transportation standpoint. Whenever there is offered a practical scheme for river improvement at reasonable cost I will favor it. With regard to the improvement of the Mississippi and the scheme for a deep water way from the lakes to the gulf it will perhaps surprise many of those who have been favoring it to learn that the gentlemen who launched the proposition in congress, Messrs. Barrett and Champ Clark, estimated the cost at $500,000,000. Nor so far as my knowledge goes, has any competent engineer committed himself to the project even at these figures. When it is remembered that this government, rich as it is and great as are its resources, has expended for years over the construction of the Panama canal, the cost of its enormous cost, it will be conceded that it should commit itself to a project involving the expenditure of two or three times as much, with a possibility of even greater expenditures, only after the most careful consideration and investigation."

English Railroads Superior. "No traveler abroad," was the reply, "can help being impressed with the superiority of the English railroads, in many respects over those of this country. Their solidity, their permanence, their terminal facilities, their crossings and crossing safe guards impress the traveler at once. There are practically no grade crossings. All stations have either overhead or underground crossings so that the danger of accidents to the public is minimized. Where the crossings are on grade there are gates as in our cities, but they are across the railroad tracks instead of the highways and the gate must be opened for a train to pass instead of being blocked for the highway."

Methods of Control. "The government complete control of the railroads. Everything is submitted to the board of trade, a division of which has charge of the railroads. When a new road or an extension is planned the matter is submitted to the board of trade and the construction authorized if that body thinks best. Upon the completion of the road notice is given that it will be open for traffic in ten days and a careful inspection is then made by the government. If the road is approved it is then open to traffic."

When he had finished the governor announced the appointment of Robert L. Owens of Muskogee and Thomas P. Gore of Lawton as United States senators. A parade was then formed and marched to a part on the outskirts of the city, where an immense crowd waited to begin an Indian barbecue, a feature suggested by Governor Haskell. The parade included sixteen carriages, occupied by officers, members of the legislature and prominent public men; five bands, dozens of civil and fraternal organizations from all over the new state, on foot and many private conveyances. The line was led by a platoon of mounted police and flanked by the Oklahoma National Guard, following which came the Muskogee Light Horse Cavalry troop and other military bodies of Indian Territory. In one of the open carriages was the chief of the Five Civilized Tribes with the exception of Maty Taser, who was recently seriously injured. The chiefs were dressed as citizens.

trust they will begin by obeying the laws of Oklahoma."

When he had finished the governor announced the appointment of Robert L. Owens of Muskogee and Thomas P. Gore of Lawton as United States senators. A parade was then formed and marched to a part on the outskirts of the city, where an immense crowd waited to begin an Indian barbecue, a feature suggested by Governor Haskell. The parade included sixteen carriages, occupied by officers, members of the legislature and prominent public men; five bands, dozens of civil and fraternal organizations from all over the new state, on foot and many private conveyances. The line was led by a platoon of mounted police and flanked by the Oklahoma National Guard, following which came the Muskogee Light Horse Cavalry troop and other military bodies of Indian Territory.

It had been the intention that the first carriage should contain Governor Haskell and the retiring governor of Oklahoma, Frank Frazier, but Governor Frazier positively refused to ride with or have any thing to do with Governor Haskell, or with the inauguration. The other retiring officials of Oklahoma were not invited to participate.

At the barbecue grounds portions of meat were served out on a semi-circular table from a huge pit in which thirty leaves had been cooked.

Oklahoma People Celebrate Admission of State Cause of Gratification—Secretary Cross III. OKLAHOMA CITY, Okl., Nov. 16.—The signing of the statehood proclamation was signaled at 9:15 o'clock this morning by the ringing of bells, the blowing of whistles and a general celebration.

Nearly 1,000 people from this city went on special trains to Guthrie to attend the inaugural ceremonies of the new state government this morning. Secretary of State William Cross is critically ill with heart trouble at the Saratoga

OKLAHOMA BECOMES A STATE

President Roosevelt Signs Proclamation Adding New Star to Flag.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A new star was added to the American flag today by the admission formally into the union of the state of Oklahoma. President Roosevelt at 10:16 o'clock this morning signed the proclamation admitting the territories of Oklahoma and Indian Territory jointly as one of the American states. Little formally attended the ceremony which meant so much to the people of the two territories. In appending his signature to the proclamation, the president, used a pen formed from a quill plucked from the wing of an American eagle. The pen will be deposited with the Oklahoma Historical Society.

There was absolutely no ceremony connected with the signing of the proclamation. The act was done in the cabinet room, to which had been admitted Senators Carter and Dixon of Montana and Warner of Missouri, besides a number of residents of Oklahoma, most of whom are connected with the government departments in Washington and newspaper representatives.

It was exactly 10:16 o'clock when Secretary Loeb threw open the double doors leading from the president's private office. He had the proclamation in his hand, which he laid on a large square blotter at the president's position at the head of the cabinet table. The president entered and took his seat at once, was handed the eagle quill pen by the secretary and signed the proclamation. The ink he dipped the pen and wrote his name in large letters, the pen making an audible scratch with each movement. When he had finished his signature the president picked up a small blotter with which he blotted his name, and then looking up, exclaimed:

"Oklahoma is a state." At this instant Albert Hammer of Enid, Okla., a clerk in the land office, stepped forward and asked:

"Mr. President, may I have that blotter?" The president picked up the small blotter and handed it to him with the remark: "There were more requests for me to use particular pens than there are letters in my name."

The blotter contained a distinct impression of the president's signature reversed. The signing and all the incidents connected therewith occupied but one minute and at their conclusion the president bowed himself back to his private office with the remark "good morning, gentlemen."

The slight delay from the original plan of having the proclamation signed at exactly 10 o'clock is explained simply by the statement that the president was occupied with his mail up to the time he actually signed the document. No significance is attached to the sixteen minute delay. Full Text of Proclamation. Following is the text of the proclamation: By the president of the United States of America. A proclamation. Whereas the congress of the United States did, by an act approved June 20, 1906, provide that the inhabitants of the territories of Oklahoma and of the Indian Territory might, under and upon the conditions prescribed in said act, adopt a constitution and become the state of Oklahoma; and whereas by the said act provision was duly made for the election of a constitutional convention to form a constitution and government for the said proposed state; and whereas, it appears from the information laid before me that such convention was duly elected and such constitution and state government were thereby duly formed; and

HARVARD EASY FOR DARTMOUTH

Many Years of Defeat Followed by Overwhelming Victory. CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16.—Dartmouth retrieved many years of defeat by an overwhelming victory over Harvard today before a vast crowd in the stadium, the final score being 23 to 0 in favor of the New Hampshire team.

Except for the first few minutes of play Harvard was outclassed, although the three Dartmouth touchdowns came unexpectedly. Two of the touchdowns were on blocked kicks, the first on Harvard's 25-yard line, and the second on the 32-yard line. The third touchdown was made on a brilliant play by Ingersoll, the speedy Dartmouth halfback, who intercepted a Harvard on-side kick nearly in the middle of the field and ran through the outstretched hands of six Harvard players to the goal line. Captain Glaze kicked all three goals from touchdowns and supplemented his work by a pretty goal from placement from the 25-yard line.

LINCOLN ALSO CLAIMS TITLE

Capital City in Lead by Defeat of York in Close Game. LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 16.—(Special Telegram)—Lincoln High school surprised itself this afternoon by beating York. A single touchdown was the only score of the game, and it came within the final minute of play; but, twice before they managed to score, the Lincoln players carried the ball to within one yard of their opponent's goal, where they lost it both times on downs. In the use of modern formations and plays Lincoln had the better of York, but the better line of the latter prevented a larger score, the local finding it difficult to buck the line after carrying the ball so near the goal that forward passes or on-side kicks were useless. As a result of the game Lincoln is claiming the state championship. The score was 6 to 0.
