Myers-Dillon Drug Co., Omaha, Neb.

Gentlemen:—I suffered for more than six months with what I supposed to be stomach and bowed trouble. I tried every remedy suggested to me all of this time without recaiving any benefit. I saw your advertisement of Fruitola, and one of your clerks advised me to try it. I took the Fruitola in connection with Traxo, as directed, and the result was astonishing. After taking one bottle of Fruitola more than a hundred gail-stones were removed. I continued the use of Fruitola and Traxo until the cure was complete. The satisfaction of having my health restored is worth more than money to me and I am correspondingly grateful to you.

I have recommended Fruitola to a great many of my friends, and in every instance, as in my own case, it has done more than you claim for it.

It will give me pleasure to allow you to use my name in your advertising.

Yours Gratefully. W. C. HEYDEN.

The Sunday Question. OMAHA, Dec. 22.-To the Editor of The e: In large measure I am in personal agreement with my very dear friend of long standing. Dr. Miller. "Prohibition, as he says, "does not prohibit" in any state large city where it has been enacted. But here in Omaha, at the present time, it is not a question of prohibition at all, but of regulation. Regulation can regulate in any state or city where the authorities are at all disposed to obey their oath of office. The Slocumb law was passed as an alternative to a prohibitory law, which was then strongly pressed by the Protestinterests supported the enacting of that law, I fear not honestly, with any intention of obeying its provisions, but as the lesser of two evils. After a very warm campaign the Slocumb law was passed, very much to the chagrin and disappointment of those who stood opposed to the legalizing of the sale of liquor under any nditions; and just as much to the satisfaction of the liquor interests at the time. It may not be out of place to say that I nyself stood opposed as a citizen to a prohibitory law at the time, for the reason given by Dr. Miller for his opposition. It would not prohibit. For this I was denounced by some very intemperate tempermade by the dry goods houses, while the lance people. They said I was in league with Mr. Her and the liquor interests; and record were boots and shoes, notions, hard. If was very strongly hinted that I had my eward for being.

But now, sir, from the day that the Slo umb law was passed to this present day, the liquor interests have never obeyed the great, and, though it is not a line which Sescumb law for a day honestly. Neither have tens of thousands of other citizens who helped to place it on the statute book. They have willfully violated every one of its regulative provisions. They have acted as though no such law had ever been enacted, and by their own consent. took down no screens, they have sold their wares on forbidden days and at forbidden hours. They have sold liquor to habitual drunkards and to minors, and to children whose unprincipled fathers and mothers sent them for it to gratify their own deprayed appetites, I know very well, sir, that there is as much difference between liquor dealers as between men in other walks of life, and that all are not equally guilty of willful violation of salutary road fare paid for customers amounts to a law, enacted by their own consent. But all trifle over 3 per cent of the total amount | are guilty/of willful violation of the law. at the great central market which is much to be called criminals, and yet what are they if they are not? They willfully violate the law which they helped to pass. were sent out by the association in the They visit bars on Sundays. They go be hind screens to arink. They treat one an other, as though the law did not exist to forbid. And now because there are men who are determined to put the Slocumb law in honest operation, the liquor interests and their supporters are seeking to make it odious by invoking the law against all work of every kind, on Sunday, that cannot be shown to be actually necessary Well sir, personally I am in favor of stopping all work of every kind on one day in seven that cannot be clearly shown to be a work of necessity or of charity. Not Confidence in the trade and financial on religious grounds simply, but on grounds salers believe the buying will be as heavy by a treadmill round of grinding labor streets, in our stores and offices on Sunday present crusade against Sunday work and business is not an honest one. It is not ressed for the honest purpose of serving hose who toil, but for the purpose of making the Slocumb law edious; to weary and disgust people with it and all Sunday law. in order that we might have "a wide open town." The liquor interests may succeed. yet I hope not. But it may be well for them to remember that a prohibitory law is yet a possibility in Nebraska. Even though it may not succeed in prohibiting, yet it

Catholic Prelate's Faith in Omaha and Business Acamen Helped Church to Prosper.

"Few of the early day settlers in Omaha seesed greater business acumen than Bishop James O'Connor of the Catholic church," said George P. Bemis. "To his faith in Omaha and to his long-sightedness the Catholics owe a goodly part of their development and their ownership today of real estate in the west part of the city on which church institutions stand and are being erected." The site on which the new cathedral is being erected was part of the large purchase of property made by Bishop O'Connor. Bishop O'Connor came to Omaha in 1876. At that time the city had not extended its bounds far into the surrounding country and Fortieth street was a goodly distance in the rural district. But Bishop O'Connor saw the future with a prophetic eye. George Remis had platted his park place which was made up of a part of the homestead of Jesse Lowe, known as "the old Lowe farm." Bishop O'Connor bought about twenty acres of this lying between Thirty-sixth and Fortieth streets and between California and Curning streets. He paid $165 an acre. OWEN DROPS WRONG PAPER Blind Senator Had Six-Year Term in His Hand, but Put it Back.

"Drawing lots for $30,000 and a six years term in the United States senate is a little game of chance I witnessed when in Wash rooms except the dining room, where ington," said C. A. Butler, a Kansas City business man at the Paxton hotel. "The parties to the lot drawing were Mesers. Gore and Owen, the newly elected United States senators from the new state of Oklahoma. As one-third of the senators gp out every two years, these gentlemen had to draw lots to decide which of the two would retire in 1909, 1911 or 1913. On three slips of paper of equal length were written the numbers indicating the above years. These were folded and put into a pasteboard box, and the fate of each man hung on the piece of paper he drew. Out of courtesy for Mr. Owen, who is a blind man, he was allowed to draw first. Two of the pieces of paper stuck to his fingers, but he could see neither, and put one of them back. He had in his hand, as was afterward discovered, the paper entitling him to the six-year term and the one for the one-year term. He put the former back and held on to the latter. Mr. Gore

"Mr. Owen's bad luck in putting back provides for the election of United States senators by direct vote, Mr. Owen will have to begin his campaign for re-election next summer."
