following announcement:

With the beginting of this year, 1988. The Press will take its stand with the republican papers of the state. This may be a surprise to some, but it is done to conform to the ideas and party affiliations of the editor. It is our aim, while we take this stand, not to forget the good that people do and to condemn the wrong wherever we find it. It is our carnest belief that the party should stand for the principle and not the principle for the party.
