Fluctuation of Options. NO STRENGTH FROM LIVERPOOL

Domestic Demand for Wheat is Still Disappointing - Crop Reports Do Not Justify Higher Value Level.

OMAHA. May 25, 1998.

May options continued to fluctuate and the changes are rapid.

Liverpool cables show no strength and the formestic demand for wheat continues disappointing.

Crop reports, while conflicting in some sections, do not indicate any serious decilines in condition, and there seems very little to insuff any higher levels in values. Values of wheat and particularly the May option, were sent through several ranges of prices, only to be brought back to a level of yesterday's closs.

May wheat opened at Mic and closed it 3440.

in the price of the May deliveries in wheat, corn and outs marked the trading on the locals exchange. May wheat and corn each sold over a range of 5c and May outs over a lange of 5c. With the exception of May wheat the final quotations on which were up light the market closed weak. May corn being off 2c to the and cats were down and final over and cats were down and from the lower and cats were down and from the wheat of the clusing out of the May delivery was the feature of mading in the wheat oft and the understanty attending the linal efforts of the shierts to extricate themselves from the grasp of the build leaders had a tendency to restrict trade in the deferred futures. The market opened irregular, the May option being firm, and the inture deliveries rather weak. Within a short time however, May dropped 2c on profit-taking sales. Buil leaders then beyon to support the market, and the price sevenced to a continue above the former high mark of the day. This also caused an almost complete recovery in the deferred futures, the price of which head dropped 2c on the break m May. News of the day was generally in favor of the bears, weather conditions in the southwest but reported as favorable to the new crop tables. The market closed strong for May and easy for the other strong for May and easy for the other deliveren. American Smelrer Also Rises on Rumors of Increased Dividends-Henry Buying of Steel Near the Close.

NEW YORK, May 39-The stock market NEW YORK, May 33—The stock market today was of the usual pre-holiday character-largely confined—that is, to the closing up of outstanding contracts, and showing little disposition to make committeents. The prevailing speculative temper on the Stock exchange was to be inferred from the fact that most of the outstanding committeents were on the short side of the mittments were on the short side of the market. The general hardening of prices during the day was due more to that fact than to any new phase in conditions. The brisk rebound in the Gould interests was interpreted to mean that the shork of the Wabash-Pittsburg embarrassment has been practically absorbed by the market in the downward plunge of the last few days in the group. No authoritative announcement was made until after the close of the session of the course to be pursued on the interest due Monday on the Wabash-Pittsburg firsts, but it was taken for granted in the financial district that a reorganization through receivership was in contemplation.

CATTLE—There were not enough cattle here this morning to make very much of a market, bur, as noted yesterday, receipts nave been so light during the last few days—in fact, for the whole week—that buyers were hungrier for supplies than they have been in quite a while.

As a result of the light supply and the good demand, buyers were all out in the yards in good season and the faw beef steers sold very readily at prices strong to life higher than yesterday. In other words, the market today was lights higher than the low point on Tuesday, which would make it a little stronger than last week's close. A peculiarity of the market is that the advance has been fully as great, if not greater, on the medium kinds of cattle, which were poor sellers last week and the early part of the present week.

Cows and heifers have participated in the advance in the case of steers, they showing about the same advance. The market today was active, and the few head offered sold vary readily, prices generally, being a little higher than at the close of last week.
