SHOOTS GUN OUT OF HIS HAND

Council Bluffs Saloon Keeper Too Quick for "Early Bird" Bandit.

ANSWERS "HANDS UP" WITH SHOT

Charles Burright of "K. C." Tavern Brings to Bay Young desperado Who Has Held Up Many in Two Cities.

Shot in the revolver hand and disarmed by an intended victim more dexterous than he, Herbert Dickout, the "early bird robber," met defeat and capture in Council Bluffs Friday morning after a series of daring operations in that city and Omaha.

The robber's identity became known only through his own statements.

A. Burright, proprietor of the "K. C." saloon, 1209 South Main street, was behind the bar preparing his place for the day's business, when a man, wearing a mask, stepped into the door.

"Hands up!" commanded the robber in his customary tone of self-assurance.

Burright's hand went up and the gleaming little automatic pistol gave answer.

The bandit's revolver went spinning to the floor, and, with a bullet hole through his right hand, he swayed with staggering steps toward the door.

The second shot followed the first with equal accuracy and the "early bird" was laid low with another wound, this time in his shoulder.

Stands Over His Victim.

Burright followed up his vantage and, leaping over the bar, he stood over his captive.

"One move and you're a dead man," the saloon keeper shouted at the man on the floor. "Don't even blink!"

"All right, pard, I'm it this time," replied the robber as he struggled to hold his bleeding shoulder still.

The sound of the shots brought others to the saloon and the police took charge of the prisoner. He was removed to Mercy hospital, where his wounds were dressed. Unless infection should result from the wounds of the spiteful little .35-caliber automatic the robber will recover without difficulty.

"Frank Nixon is the name I've been going under," said the wounded man in hospital. "I've a sister, Mrs. Bertha Metzger. She lives in Clinton, Ia."

"My real name is Herbert Dickout."

"I'm a cook, but I ain't been working recently and I haven't got any home. Just book me from anywhere."

Robber is a New Boy.

The robber is a mere boy of 22 years. The police are positive that he is identical with the man who held up the Emmet house saloon on January 29, when Chris Kretschner, the bartender, was locked in a icebox while the bold robber went through the cash register. They find his description tallies with that of the man who held up E. J. Kelly, operator at the Rock Island office, in the same vicinity, taking $7 from the cash drawer.

The trembling youth on that occasion pushed his watch to the bandit, who, smiling, handed it back.

"You need this worse than I do, kid," was his comment. He ordered the boy to open the safe, but seeing that he was not familiar with the combination excused him and sauntered off.

A number of Omaha holdups have been attributed to the same man who seemingly preferred to operate just at dawn, gaining for him the appellation of the "early bird" robber.

Boy May Die from Injury of City Auto

Matthew Foral is Struck in Back of Head by Machine Operated by City Employees.

Matthew Foral, 14 years of age, who was struck by a city automobile at Twenty-fourth street and Woolworth avenue late Thursday afternoon, is now at St. Joseph hospital in a dangerous condition.

The automobile, carrying three members of the city engineer's department, was driven by Fred Swain. The boy, running to catch a street car, dashed out in front of the automobile from around a terraced embankment. He didn't see the car and it was too close upon him to stop when he appeared, although not running at a high rate of speed.

Foral was struck in the back of the head and rendered unconscious. The car did not pass over him, coming to a sudden stop. The boy was picked up and taken to St. Joseph's hospital where he was treated by Dr. R. W. Connell and Dr. C. C. Allison.

In the car with the driver were Dean Noyce, C. E. Hendrick and John Martin, all members of the city engineer's department. Foral's home is at 1208 South Twenty-seventh street.

DIPHTHERIA STOPS MEETINGS

Illness of Child Causes Closing of Social Settlement House Until Her Recovery.

As a precaution against the spread of diphtheria all class work at the institution of the Social Settlement association, 1428 South Thirtieth street has been stopped for the present, and there will be no afternoon meetings on Sundays until further notice. The occasion of this action by the management is the illness of Ruth, daughter of Mrs. Edwards, the housekeeper. She has been suffering from acute tonsillitis and at first it was feared by the doctors it would develop into diphtheria. Although her condition has improved, the ladies in charge of the institution do not want to take any risk.

Big Addition to Shoe Plant

Six-Story Structure to Be Erected at Twelfth and Harney for American Hand Sewed Shoe Co.

A new six-story addition to the building of the American Hand-sewed Shoe company is to be erected in the spring. It will be 33x66 feet in size and will give the company much needed room for expansion. It will take the place of an old frame hotel, and can be put up at the minimum cost for such a structure, because two of the necessary walls are already standing, except that one will have to be carried up two more stories. The north and south walls will be the only heavy masonry work to be done.

This new structure will fill in an unsightly gap in the business fronts at Twelfth and Harney by replacing the ancient wooden building now on the site.

AUTOS TO CARRY THE MAILS

Swift Moving Conveyances May Be Employed by Uncle Sam in Omaha.

Omaha may soon have automobile service in the delivery of mails to and from the railway stations and the postoffice.

Bids for the delivery of mail between the depots and postoffices have been opened at the postoffice, but the figures were regarded as too high by the Postoffice department and new proposals have been called for to be opened on March 9. Specifications for such bids are on file in the office of the superintendent of mails at the Omaha office.

In view of the high bids for such deliveries by horse and wagon, the Postoffice department has sent a representative to Omaha to confer with automobile men to induce them to make bids for automobile service delivery of the mails.

Postmaster Thomas is of opinion that should the automobile men conclude to enter the contest for the delivery of the mails, it will be only a question of a short time when general automobile delivery will become general in Omaha, as now prevails in some of the larger cities.

General Morton Returns from Annual Inspection of Garrison at Fort Des Moines.

Brigadier General Charles Morton, commanding the Department of the Missouri, Lieutenant Otho E. Michaels, aide-de-camp to General Morton, and Major D. E. McCarthy, chief quartermaster of the department, have returned from Fort Des Moines, where they made the annual inspection of the post.

Lieutenant Troup Miller, aide-de-camp on the staff of Brigadier General Morton, has returned from a two months' leave of absence and resumed his duties as aide. There has been a popular impression that Lieutenant Miller had ceased to be an aide-de-camp upon the staff of the commanding general upon his going on leave, but this is an error. Lieutenant Miller was not relieved from staff duty, but Lieutenant O. E. Michaels was added as aide. The staff as an aide-de-camp, and both officers now exercise the functions of aide-de-camp, two of which are always allowed to the staff of a brigadier general.
