lack were busy placing Fred P. McCormick and Al Schultz upon the operating tables and Dr. C. C. Allison joined the surgeons later and took charge of the operating room.

Al Schultz was in the most critical condition and was unconscious for a long time after the accident. The physicians said that he acted as though he had concussion of the brain and a possible fracture seemed to be feared.

When interviewed, W. H. Wallace, who was driving the car in which Mr. Krug was riding, said: "I am not injured at all. We had left the Krug brewery at 4:15 minutes and were driving north on the boulevard at about eight miles an hour, when we came to Leavenworth street. It is nearly impossible to see in either direction at this point, but as I got on to the street I saw the other car coming."

Mr. McCormick was a heavy man, and the very force of the collision can be realized when it is noted that the spot where the bumpers struck the curb, and where his head must have struck first is a good ten feet from the side of the car where his seat was.

Mr. Krug was on the east side of the tonneau. When his body shot out of the car as it was tipped, he landed on his head, his seat was directly west, the rear of the car having been reversed just as if a derrick had lifted it up, swung it around and set it down.

Can He Not State Convicted. Attorney General Byers today called attention to the fact that in the coming state convention there can be no contesting delegations; nor can there be any contesting delegations in the county conventions. Information came today from Charleston that the courts had been invoked to change the result in that county, and Judge Anderson had decided that in cases where squares were printed on the pasters containing names of the candidates for delegates such voting would give the county to the standstillers. The attorney general was advised of the matter by Judge Anderson. His office gave a decision two years ago to the effect that printing the pasters in this manner was entirely legal.

Express Companies Scored. At a meeting of the Iowa Fruit Jobbers association a protest was prepared and filed with the State Railway commission today against an increase in the charge by express companies of the carrying of empty crates. Found Petitions for Exhibition. Much ado was made recently by the representatives of the Anti-Saloon league over the alleged list of names to contain 100,000 names in favor of re-submitting the prohibition amendment to a vote of the Iowa people. It was asserted it had been stolen and made use of by the saloon men and that a search for it showed it disappeared soon after the close of the legislative session.

Coal Prices Are Higher. The State Board of Control today opened the bids on coal for the state institutions and found, as expected, that the cost of fuel will be greater the coming year than ever before. Browne Defense Rests Its Case; Counsel Clash Sudden Closing Comes as Surprise—Defendant Does Not Take Stand.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Abrupt announcement was made this afternoon that the defense rested in the case of Les O'Neil Browne, charged with bribery in aid of the United States against William Lorimer. The action in suddenly stopping testimony followed a dispute among Browne's attorneys, one of whom contended that he had been overruled by the trial judge in an unwarranted manner.

The defendant did not take the witness stand. Lieutenant Governor Oglesby had been summoned to testify today, but the defense changed the plan without explanation. The sudden closing of the presentation of evidence for the defense came as a startling development, during the first part of the trial the prosecution introduced Representative White, Representative Beckmeyer and Representative Link, all of whom testified that they received $1,000 as payment for voting for Lorimer for United States senator. Later Mr. Wayman announced that the result of the trial would be the defense's pay in no surrebuttal testimony and Mr. Wayman made the argument for the state.

GOVERNOR GIVES SOME REASONS (Continued from First Page.) The amendment at this time, it would be a serious blow to the prospect of its adoption and submission in the immediate future.

I am therefore compelled to decide against the calling of an extra session at this time. Other things to be considered are, that almost without exception those who urged the extra session did so with the proviso that the amendment must be submitted and adopted without fail. Since I have heard from very many people, both in this and other counties, that they would not desire the extra session.

It is a very busy time and the expenses would be considerable. Unless certain results were to come from it, these considerations would weigh heavily against the advisability of the proposed session. I have heard from very many people, both by personal interview and by letter, and find that aside from those interested in the politics of the situation, there is strong opposition to the session.

Some strongly urged for one political reason or another, and some of my own party, that the amendment should be submitted to the voters. I am sure that the organization by calling the legislature into action, but the executive is not the governor of any party, but must consider only the interests of all the people of the state in such matters, and cannot be expected to use the high powers and prerogatives of his office as a means of obtaining a majority for any party, for himself or his party as a motive for his official acts.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' SHAFT Considerable Number of Military Take Part in Exercises at Syracuse, N. Y.—In Honor of Veterans.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 21.—At the dedication of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument in Onondaga county today and address was made by Vice President James S. Sherman and Judge Frank H. Hiscock of the court of appeals made the speech of acceptance in behalf of the county. An ode composed for the occasion by Dr. Ernest Held, a contemporary of Carl Schurz, sung by 100 school children. Major General Samuel S. Sumner, U. S. A. (retired), was grand marshal of the parade, in which marched beside the 4,000 veterans from all parts of the state, 350 bluejackets from United States battleships, three companies of naval reserves, six companies of the Twenty-fourth infantry, United States army, and the entire Third regiment of National Guard.

As he looked upon the fresh granite and newly molded bronze of the impressive monument just unveiled, the vice president pronounced it to be a fitting recognition of the passionate patriotism which held together the states of the union. "This is but one form of testimonial to the boys in blue," said the vice president, "and its value and meaning are multiplied and intensified because there is not lacking other forms of expression of the people's gratitude to the nation's preservers."

For the veterans still living, he pointed out that nearly fifty soldiers' homes offered care and comfort to nearly 40,000 maimed and infirm who have suffered from the wounds and hardships of war. A generous government with lavish hand had made provision, he said, to aid the living and help or succor the dear survivors of the hero dead by pensions.

"Neither the monuments we dedicate," said he, "nor the soldiers' homes and pensions the nation provides is a charity. All are acknowledgements of just debts, the payment of sacred obligations. They are decorations, badges of heroism, more nobly earned than the ribbon of the French Legion of Honor, or the garter of British knighthood."

"The people of today have no fear of too generous treatment to the soldiers of the sixties. Their just merits are to be measured by the grandeur of the nation which they preserved, by what it was, by what it is, by what in all the years to come it will be."

"The greatest, the most beautiful, the most perfect monument that could be raised to our soldiers," he said, "they themselves built in the union they saved. "With the constitution as its cornerstone, the states as its buttresses and its ornaments, 'law and order' inscribed on either side and wings of glory sublime on its summit, law and reverence dedicate it to these most worthy among mankind."

"All monuments, the republic itself, point not alone to the past; they rest in the present and are prophets and teachers to the millions of sons and daughters, heirs of the priceless inheritance secured for them by the brave men of the past. "Not by sloth and neglect can we lay claim to the great estate. Virtue, upright, self-sacrificing and devotion to the public well, heroic purpose, practical effort for the purest and highest ideals must be the little deed to share in this precious patrie."

LONDON, June 21.—Miss Mildred Carter, only daughter of John Rigley Carter, American minister to Roumania, Serbia, and Bulgaria, and Lord Acheson, oldest son of Lord and Lady Gosford, were married in St. George's church in Hanover square this afternoon.

This was one of the weddings of the season which had been anticipated with much interest by the late King Edward, because of the close connection of parents of the bridegroom with the royal household and his majesty's personal friendship for Mr. Carter. King Edward had expressed his intention of being present at the ceremony with the queen and other members of the royal family. As it was, the list of guests was a long one.

Canon Bouverie, sub-dean of the chapel's royal officiate, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Anderson, rector of St. George's. The reception that followed at Dorchester house, the home of American Ambassador and Mrs. Whiteley Field, brought together most of the members of the London's social set and was as brilliant as the nuptial ceremony.
