DAHLMAN IN PAVING FIGHT

Hurries to Omaha to Veto Wooden Block Ordinance.

IGNORES OWNERS' PROTESTS

Says the New Pavement Will Not Be Experimented With as Long as He is in the Mayor's Chair.

Mayor Dahlman came in from his campaign in the sixth Monday morning to veto the creosote paving ordinance against the expressed wishes of three-fifths of the property owners concerned and over the advice of City Attorney Burnam, who practically denied his prerogative to do so.

The ordinance was passed at the last meeting of the city council and provided for paving sixteenth street from Farnam south to Leavenworth with creosoted wood blocks.

During the week a protest was filed with Acting Mayor Brucker, in which owners of a part of the blocks who had signed the petition asked to have their names withdrawn for two reasons, that creosote was not good paving and that no new paving was needed. To hear both sides of the question, Mr. Brucker called a public meeting for Monday evening in his office.

Unexpectedly Mayor Dahlman appeared upon the scene, expressed at the beginning of the argument his opinion that wooden block paving would not be experimented with while he was in the chair, vetoed the ordinance and left on the next train for North Platte to continue the gubernatorial scrap.

In favor of creosote paving, D. A. Baum, Romeo Miller, J. A. C. Kennedy, J. E. George and John F. Breen as attorney made heated arguments, and Romeo Miller expressed himself rather forcibly upon the question of the right of the city government to dictate to property owners what materials should be used in paving.

Opposed to Blocks.

Judge Neville, who has been opposed to the paving from the start, declared that wooden blocks were unhealthy, and G. E. Shukert, owner of the Hanson building, said he was opposed to creosote blocks.

After the property owners had pleaded with the mayor on two arguments, that they had a right to have whatever pavement they desired and because J. A. C. Kennedy declared "creosote is the best paving in the world," J. E. Breen quoted the state statutes to the effect that if the petition for the paving in the first place was legal, as had been certified by the city attorney's office, the mayor had absolutely no right to veto it, and the signers had no right to withdraw.

Harry Burnam, city attorney, when asked for his official opinion, agreed with Mr. Breen that the withdrawal, which, in fact, did not affect the legality of the petition anyway, could not stand, and that the mayor had no right to exercise any prerogative in the matter.

This concluded the meeting and the mayor went into his office and vetoed the ordinance.

The conference was attended by about twenty owners of property. Judge Neville was the only one who argued or spoke against the new paving. The opposition was represented by Will Herdman, who offered no arguments on the merits of the question.

Foreman Crushed Under Lumber

H. W. Jones Loses Leg and is Fatally Hurt by Avalanche of Timber.

Struck by a small avalanche of heavy lumber which fell from a flat car, H. W. Jones suffered the loss of his left leg and was otherwise seriously hurt, and Charles Chuda, another workman lost a finger at the Chicago lumber yards, Fourteenth and Mary streets Monday morning. Jones, who was assistant foreman and Chuda, one of his assistants, were at work preparing a space in the yards to unload the lumber from the cars when the accident occurred. Several logs at the side of the car, which were holding the lumber in place, snapped and the big six by six timbers tumbled down upon the two men. Jones was struck on the head and pinned to the ground under the entire weight of the lumber. His left leg was crushed so that it hung on by a shred of flesh. He was rescued by the combined efforts of a dozen other workmen, who lifted the huge weight from his body by prying with timbers. He was then taken to St. Joseph's hospital in a dying condition. Chuda was not hurt except for the severance of one finger. Jones has a wife and children and lives at First street and the boulevard.

RALSTON BUILDS MOTOR CARS

Ralph Rogers Has His 1911 Autos About Ready to Put on the Market.

The first Omaha-manufactured motor cars are about to go on the market. Complete cars have been turned out by the Rogers Motor Car company of Ralston, and one or two have been driven around the city. The new car is designed for business purposes and is on the line of a delivery wagon.

Driving on rough country roads has been kept in view by the manufacturers and the employment of a flexible wood frame, a novel type of transmission and scientific adjustment of springs has produced a vehicle which is remarkably easy riding and which works wonderfully smooth with hard tires.

"The Rogers company has a factory with a capacity of 200 cars a year, and this number will be put on the market for the 1911 trade.

"We may turn our attention later to pleasure vehicles," said Ralph Rogers, president of the company, "but for a time we shall devote our energies to making cars for business purposes, a field in which the manufacturers have been less well able to take care of the demand.
