Oline Peterson yesterday sued her husbatd. Jens Peter Peterson, for divorce in a suit flied by her attorneys in the district court. They were wed June 29, 1887, and lived together until five years ago, when she claims, he deserted her without cause.

Fred Bokemper, who was enjoined Wednesday from Peering a saloon at $25 south Main street, notified the city council last evening that he has sold his saloon to E. T. Thompson, the sale to take effect today, and the council authorized the transfer of the license.

In an original notice of a suit for divorce filed yesterday Doris Christiansen asks for a divorce from her husband, Thomas C., on the grounds of cruelty, a decree giving her title to all of their property in Council Bluffs, $100 attorney's fees and $40 a month tallmony. They were wed in Berlin, Canada, September 27, 1879.

Only one marriage license was issued yesterday, and the autocrats in the county clerk's office are willing to take any sort of chances in a bet that there will not be any issued tomorrow. It appears to be a coming conviction that Thursday is too close to Friday to be safely counted one of the "lucky days" for getting married. The ratio of marriage licenses begins with reasonable number on Monday and gradually rises to the minimum on Wednesday and drops to nothing on Friday and next to nothing on Saturday. The couple who had the courage to apply yesterday afternoon were G. C. Lindsey, 25 years old and Grace M. Hill, 21, both of Council Bluffs.

When Fred Spetman left his office yesterday afternoon to get into his carriage, where the old horse atands with religious patience unhitched to the curb, he found the outfit missing. Inquiry and search failed to disclose any traces of it, and he notified the police department. An hour later he glanced out and saw the horse and carriage in its accustomed place. Inquiry disclosed the fact that the intelligent unimal had become thirsty and went to the drinking fountain on Broadway. On his return he took another course through the residence district, leisurely nipping the grass along the parking all the way. So far as could be learned no person directed him during the rather long and winding journey. In a decision forwarded by Judge Smith

The Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway company was made defendant yesterday in two personal injury suits instituted in the district court. Hazel Reliey, a minor, 10 years old, by her next best friend, Albert Kelley, brings suit to recover $6,000 for injuries which was alleged to have occurred on June 19, when she was attempting to leave the car at the corner of Pearl street and First avenue. The petition alleges that she was just leaving the last step when the car was started, throwing her to the pavement, straining her left leg, bruising her body and injuring her head and spine. The injuries are claimed to be permanent. In a very much briefer and less definite petition Mrs. Belle Knepher asks $6,000 from the car company for injuries which she alleges are permanent. She was returning from Manawa en an unnamed day in July and was hurt while getting off the car at an unnamed locality.

A small story and one-half frame house located at 1117 Ninetcenth avenue was completely destroyed by fire which started from some unknown means about 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The house was owned by Day & Hees and occupied by Henry Morehouse. Mr. Morehouse and all of the members of his family left home Monday morning to visit out of town. The building was enveloped in flames when the fire was discovered and by the time the hose companies made the long run and got there it was only a blazing heap. The owners estimate their loss at 3500 with insurance to the amount of $500. There was a investigation, but there was a suspicion in the neighborhood that the house had been raided by thieves and then fired to conceal their work.

In a special session called for the purose the city council last evening took the first decisive steps toward repaying Broadway and South Main street, disregarding in a measure the nearly unanimous protests of the property owners against disturbing the present rough granite stones. The council amended the original paving resolution, which specified the repavement of the entire granite-covered surface on the two streets, and limited the improvements to a small area in the cen-

In a decision forwarded by Judge Smith McPherson yesterday from Kassas City the motion to consolidate the fourteen Matrix sited against prominent Council Bluffs men was overruled. Judge McPherson heard the arguments in the case when he was here on Monday and promised a speedy decision. In his communication announcing his ruling denying the motion to consolidate, Judge McPherson stated that he would probably consolidate a number of the suits after a few of them had been tried, so he could form an idea of the nature of the evidence upon which the "mikes" base their claim that local banks which cashed their drafts in the regular course of business should remburse them for their gambling losses.
