Number of Accidents Take Place in City, Though None is of Very Serious Character.

Thursday, with its mist and slippery pavements, was responsible for a harvest of accidents, none of them of a serious character.

The first occurred at the corner of Tenth and Farnam streets about 7 o'clock, when an automobile, driven by Al. Frede, chauffeur, who keeps his car in the front of the Henshaw, skidded into the rear platform of a southbound Farnam street car just as it was making the turn.

Mrs. Emma Woolhiser of Mills, Neb., was taken to the emergency hospital at the police station and attended by Drs. Bishop and Pepper. Mrs. Woolhiser had just returned from a trip to Salem, Ore., and was on her way to Council Bluffs, where her son, William, lives.

The trolley of his car having stuck in some manner, J. A. Davis, the conductor of car No. 144 of the Dodge street line, who lives at 267 Webster avenue, got upon the roof of his car at the end of the line, Thirtieth and Spaulding streets, to free it.

POLICE ARREST TWO SUSPECTS

Mr. Parsley could give but a meager description of the pair. One was tall and slender with black eyes and wearing a black slouch hat and dark clothes.

Later in the evening the police arrested on suspicion a man by the name of I. Ketchum, one of a gang of graders. When taken to Parsley's store, Mr. Parsley was sure the fellow was one of the two.
