

CHARTER OPPOSITION GROWS

Feeling Increases Against Power of Council on Paving.

DAHLMAN IS NOT OPOSED

Indications Are for a Hot Fight Unless an Amendment is Made to the Bill as it is Now Submitted.

Unless that provision of the bill for the revision of the city charter, giving the mayor and city council power to order street improvements without petition from property owners in a radius of 7,000 feet of the city hall is amended, a hot fight will be precipitated when the bill comes up for passage.

Though Mayor Dahlman, who was a member of the committee which framed the original bill, and who favored the proposed revision, has stated that he will not oppose an amendment making the limits 4,000 feet, as at present, no active steps have been taken to correct the provision.

A difference of opinion exists as to whether the bill will pass with the limits at 7,000 feet. City Attorney Rine, who with Councilman Berka, were the other members of the committee, says the bill will pass as it is if the Omaha delegation at Lincoln desires to shove it through. The city attorney is inclined to stick to the limits as proposed by the revision. He thinks the limit should be increased a matter of 2,000 feet.

Efforts are being made to get the committee to make this request. If the members refuse, there will be some hot times in Lincoln when the bill comes up for debate.

Railroads to Make the Eleventh Street Viaduct Some Larger

Burlington and Union Pacific Each Plan Some Additions to Switching Yards.

The beginning of construction work on the new Eleventh street viaduct is held up pending certain data from the Burlington and Union Pacific officials, according to City Engineer Craig.

Recently an ordinance was passed by the city council directing that the city engineer draw plans and specifications for the new viaduct. The railroad companies were also instructed to get busy. Since nothing has been heard of the ordinance and any part of the viaduct has failed to materialize, but the plans will be ready in about two weeks, says the city engineer.

It is rumored that both railroads plan extensive additions to the switching yards and for this reason have been slow in starting anything on the viaduct. If present plans materialize, the viaduct will be extended south and possibly north, which means the construction of an entirely new viaduct.

BOY IN BAD FAMILY MIXUP

Parents Are Both Remarried and Each Makes Claim for the Possession of the Child.

No. 10 of the stage ever offered such marital complications as did the case of 7-year-old, flaxen haired, Walter Henry Heider, whose large, innocent eyes looked confidingly into those of Judge Kennedy in juvenile court Saturday. In this case adherents of the necessity of divorce might have been answered with irrefutable logic. On one side was a weeping mother, drawing the child close to her even now, fighting to retain her boy. She had divorced the father of the child in November, 1909, and had married the man behind her two months later. On the other hand, was the father of the little lad and the boy's grandparents on his side. It was he who brought the case into court, charging that the child was neglected by its mother, whom, he asserted, gave him whiskey and beer and allowed him to frequent the saloon where his stepfather tended bar. The father admitted, after questioning, that he had returned before the time allowed by the court. He said he had found the boy in rags and had clothed him, and that everything he wore at this time had been bought by him.

The father produced a letter from his former wife in which she asserted the child could see him occasionally, but could never visit his grandparents. She defended herself on this ground by saying that every time the lad went to his grandparents he came home ashy and spoke disrespectfully to his stepfather. Judge Kennedy said the boy should not be deprived of the pleasure of visits to his grandparents. It was a joy that boys never forget. "It is bad enough to deprive the boy of his parents, but it would be worse to deprive him of both."

After discussing the matter thoroughly it was decided to postpone further hearing in the case for two weeks until things could be fully investigated.

WANTS LUXURANT HAIR? THEN TRY THIS

"Every woman prizes luxuriant hair," says Miss Martyn in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, "and many find that much depends on shampooing. Various preparations are used for this purpose, but few are free from injurious ingredients and the result is thin, straggly hair and itchy scalp."

"A simple and inexpensive shampoo mixture can be made at home by dissolving a teaspoonful of catarrh in a teacup of hot water. This is poured on the scalp and rubbed every morning. Then the hair is rinsed carefully and dried."

Cement Manufacturers Show Here This Week

PETER PALMER, SECY OAKLAND

Secretary Peter Palmer of the Nebraska Cement Users' association, who has been in Omaha for the last week, has all preparations about completed for the Mid-West Cement exposition, which is to open in the Auditorium Wednesday. The exposition will continue through three days, closing Friday night.

The annual convention of the Nebraska Cement Users' association will be held in Omaha while the exposition is in progress, and a great many cement makers, dealers and users will also be in attendance from the whole mid-west country. Contractors and supply merchants will also be numerous in evidence. "They will find this the most favorable opportunity for making connections with the live wires of the trade," said Mr. Palmer, "and there will be installed in the Auditorium most elaborate exhibits not only of cement products, but of all kinds of cement construction machinery. In this respect the exposition will come pretty near being the greatest yet organized in this country in this particular line."

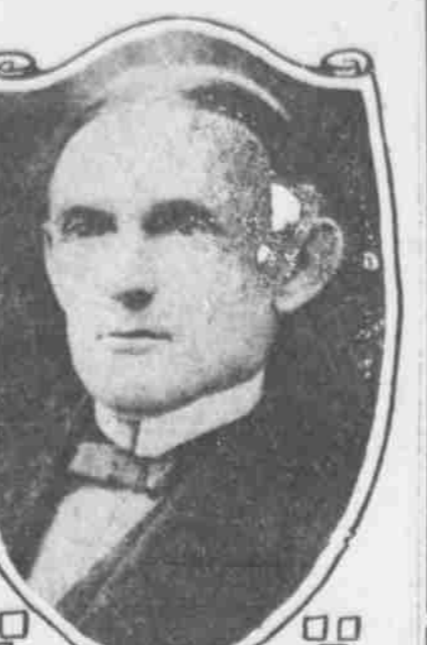

President H. C. McCord of Columbus and other interested men of the trade have devoted a good deal of attention to planning for the success of this Cement Products exposition. Mr. McCord talks most enthusiastically of cement as "nature's great remedy for the decrease in timber production and the one available and plentiful substitute for the vanishing forests."

H. C. McCORD - PRES COLUMBUS

"Every foot of space has been taken in the great building where the exhibits will be shown, and the assurance is thus given that such a display of cement product and machinery will be made as has not yet been seen in the west. Nebraska cement products alone will occupy sixteen booths on the north and south sides of the building, and in the balconies and under the stage every foot of space will be occupied. Over fifty separate booths for exhibits are provided on the second floor."

This Mid-West Cement exposition has been organized and will be held under the auspices of the Nebraska Cement Users' association. Home builders, as well as those directly concerned in the manufacture of cement products, will find many things to interest them. Arrangements have been made for complete exhibits in every department of the business from curbs to bridges, from hitching posts to houses. Cement blocks, grain containers, railroad ties, silos, culverts and a hundred other different articles will be shown in the various booths.

H. G. CALKINS CHAIRMAN LOCAL COM.

Frank Whippleman, Secretary of the Local Cement Users' Association, is also in attendance. He is a member of the Omaha Cement Users' Association and has been in Omaha for the last week. He has all preparations about completed for the Mid-West Cement exposition, which is to open in the Auditorium Wednesday. The exposition will continue through three days, closing Friday night.

Rosewater Tells of the Movement of Settlers to the West

Luncheon is Given at Commercial Club to Show Management and Exhibitors.

Dwellers in tenements may obtain work as farm laborers, and competent farmers from the eastern regions may find generous good opportunities for their skill in the west, according to C. C. Rosewater, in a speech at the Commercial club Saturday noon. Mr. Rosewater was one of the guests of honor at a dinner tendered by the Commercial club to the managers and exhibitors at the Omaha Land show.

"I don't believe that the poverty stricken tenement inhabitants of the large cities are the people who shall fill up the habitations of the west which are now uninhabited," he said. "I believe the tendency is for farmers of the east to move westward and for the land at all times to remain under the cultivation of skilled agriculturists. For ages the eyes of the white race in America have been turned westward and the same migratory instinct now prevails. But it is not the population of the overcrowded cities, the hordes of incapable city slum dwellers who are able to settle upon and develop the land. There is a place for the tenement population as farm laborers on the western farms, but not as farm owners."

People do not have to come from the east coast to the west coast; the westward trend is carried out by people from one state moving into the next state west and so on, and the land is gradually being taken up in capable fashion.

Mr. Rosewater explained that the press filled the function of exploring the western lands in a general way, and that it was up to the land owners to actually influence individuals into moving from the east into the west. Men representing South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Arizona were present at the meeting. Chairman Haverstick of the Commercial club presided over the luncheon. David Cole, president of the club, made the opening address. R. C. Pettibone and H. G. Livingston were the other speakers of the occasion.

Attitude of Men and Women Should Be Generous to For—Class of Thirteen Secure Diplomas in Midyear.

Diplomas of graduation from a four year course in the Omaha High school were presented to the first class ever graduated from the school at the mid-year commencement. The inauguration of the mid-year graduation of students saw twelve young men and women, representing the first mid-year class of thirteen members. Miss Emily Chase being unable to attend.

The initial graduation took place in the auditorium of the First Methodist church which was filled in every available space with the parents and friends of the graduates. Superintendent of Schools W. M. Davidson, president of the school board, presided at the ceremony. He said that the twelve students out of the Omaha public schools was made as ceremonial as possible. The church was decorated with flowers, palms and ferns, with a few ribbons of the class colors, white and gold, among the flowers.

"The Whoopadrome" Fills Arcanum Boards

Large Crowd Witnesses Varied Entertainment Provided by Union Pacific Council.

"The Whoopadrome, or the transcontinental tour of the Royal Arcanum, exhibiting a stupendous aggregation of the greatest living celebrities from all parts of the known world!" This was the broad-brimmed name and imposing series of adjectives with which Union Pacific council of the Royal Arcanum defied its annual entertainment given at the Metropolitan hall last night. Members and guests included over 400 men, who laughed and jollied fraternally over the spectacles provided them by the committee.

"Furthermore," as one of the guests put it, "the name wasn't all a bluff either." "The Imperial Coxswain band, direct from Moscow, by special permission from the Zar," led out the evening's fun with an excellent medley overture. In the program that followed all of the "turns" were well done and a few deserve special mention. James Wahl, on the bill as "Stone Wall, Chauncy Orlolobe's double," did not miss a justification of the title very far when he sang Olcott's "I Love the Name of Mary" in a clear and excellently trained tenor.

Jack Carson, better known as "Little Nemo," did some good strong-man feats and various tricks with ropes and cards. Oscar Lieber, Lloyd Ingraham, Tom Lynch, Ed Thompson, H. E. Mahaffey and S. S. Hamilton, leading members in an all-star cast playing "Dutch Justice," made a decided hit with the audience. Charles Gardner, accompanied by Vernon Bennett, sang "The Bandolero," from Stewart, in a manner that won him much applause.

Ed Thompson, H. E. Mahaffey and A. C. Reed, by special arrangement with Charley Foreman for one performance only, put on their original skit entitled "Nord-a-k-a-k-e."

Rev. J. A. Jenkins of the St. Mary's Avenue Congregational church was the speaker of the evening, giving a witty and timely address.

JAP FRIGHTENS THE POLICE

Officers Think that Little Brown Man with the Moccasins Has the SunHips.

A man with the moccasins was an object of some attention at the police station this morning. "Why, that man's got the sunHips," was the ejaculation made by Captain John J. Savage, as hurrying out of the jail office he nearly knocked an incoming Little Japanese off his feet.

The chief of detectives "stood not at all upon the order of his going," and beat a hasty retreat back into the office. The health officers and Police Surgeon O. C. Bishop were immediately in great demand over the telephone.

Meanwhile the afflicted little man stood meekly in a corner of the corridor and waited. Needless to say he was bothered by no one.

When the doctors came they pronounced it measles, and James Smith, as he gave his name, was released from the odium of the dreaded disease.
