Detective Burns Says Arrest May Solve Court House Case.

EFFORT MADE TO CONNECT IT UP

Murder Charge in Connection with Los Angeles Horror Preferred Against Secretary-Treasurer of Organization.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 22.—Charged with murder in connection with the explosion that wrecked the building of the Los Angeles Times on October 1, 1910, causing the death of twenty-one persons, James J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, was arrested today at the organization headquarters here today.

The warrant was based on an indictment found by a grand jury at Los Angeles and was served by William Burns, a detective, accompanied by Indianapolis detectives. Burns said he would start tonight for Los Angeles with McNamara, Governor Marshall having honored request papers.

Responsibility for explosions in other parts of the country would be placed on the result of an investigation now in progress, Burns said. He added that J. R. McNamara, brother of James J. McNamara, and Otto McGonigle, were today detained by the police in Chicago as having knowledge of the Los Angeles Times explosion.

After the arrest of McNamara, Burns and other detectives searched the offices of the Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers and detained there other officials during the examination of papers and records. When the detectives entered the office, a meeting of the executive board was in progress.

Attending it were: F. M. Ryan of Chicago, president; H. W. Leontar, Pittsburg; P. A. Conley, New Orleans; E. A. (Clay) San Francisco; M. J. Young, Boston, and J. Butler, Buffalo. These men were permitted to leave the office afterwards. The detectives declined to say whether they had found any evidence against McNamara.

Warrant Charges Murder. The warrant against McNamara charges him specifically with murder in connection with the explosion of the Los Angeles Times building and also alleges he was implicated in an explosion at the Lawrence Iron Works, Los Angeles, December 21, 1910. Detective Burns said further developments were expected to disclose the perpetrators of explosions directed against employers here at Omaha, Neb., and Columbus, Ind., and other places.

At midnight on March 22, last, explosions occurred in the court house at Omaha, under construction, and at the plant of Caldwell & Drake at Columbus, Ind. They were the contractors for the court house. They estimated their loss at $10,000. They said they had disputes with the iron workers' union.

On the night of October 24, 1910, a new telephone exchange building, a saw mill and garage at the home of Albert Von Spreckelsen, a contractor here, were almost completely destroyed by explosions of dynamite. Von Spreckelsen had employed nonunion workmen in several of his contracts. He was engaged in constructing the telephone exchange building and a part of the material was being prepared at the saw mill. After the explosion, he discharged his nonunion workmen and engaged union men. Police investigation apparently came to nothing.

Progressives Renew Demand for Places

Insurgent Senators Insisting on One-Fourth of Republican Committee Appointments.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—A truce was arranged today in the battle between the progressive and regular republican senators for representation of the senate committee. It was agreed that nothing further should be done until Tuesday when Senator Gallinger will submit a tentative list of appointments. Efforts will be made to adjust matters so as to meet the wishes of the progressive without recognizing them as an organization. The progressive senators attended the meeting of the committee on committees today and renewed their demands for one-fourth of all the republican committee appointments.

INSURGENT FIGHT TO SENATE

Democrats May Be Called Upon to Arbitrate Differences.

RESULT CANNOT BE PREDICTED

Progressives Assert Democrats Would Support Them as Inclined Toward Reform—Trouble Over the Finance Committee.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Democrats of the senate may be called upon to arbitrate the differences between the republican regulars and progressives over the question of committee assignments.

This unprecedented situation was predicted tonight following the adjournment of a meeting of the republican committee on committees at which the demand of the progressives for the right to dictate one-fourth of the republican members on all committees was again denied.

The progressives did not ask for a formal recognition but this made no difference in the vote of seven members which their original demands were defeated. It was said the progressives will appeal to the senate from the assignments of the committee on committees and in this way the democrats will be called to settle the difficulty.

Neither of the republican factions is disposed to shirk the responsibility of the situation. If the dispute gets into the hands of democratic senators it is predicted the result may be of far more importance than the matter would be if no one could forecast the legislative results of the session.

Democrats' Action Underlined. Just what action the democrats would take as arbitrators is speculative. Several are known to sympathize with the insurgents, while many unquestionably would vote to sustain regularly. At today's meeting, a resolution adopted yesterday, which provided for the organization of the committee in alphabetical order, was reconsidered, and Senator Gallinger, as chairman of the committee, was instructed to bring in a tentative list of assignments.

But this action was not taken without opposition from the progressives who insisted upon their right to designate their representatives on committees. When they were voted down the progressives retired from the committee room. They do not relish the prospect of having in the committee a progressive member of the committee and they make no declaration to this effect, it is plain the purpose to oppose the chairman's action whenever it fails to meet their requirements of one-fourth of the republican committee assignments.

It is expected the regular members would stand together in supporting the "Gallinger selection." The defeat of amendments offered by the progressives would follow and in that event it is expected the progressives, refusing to accept the question would take the case to the senate. An intermediate step would be the consideration of the question by the republican caucus, but as the regulars outnumber the progressives, three to one, the committee regulars would be sustained.

The progressive contend that if the democrats are inclined toward reform, they would be compelled to support their slate, but the regular republicans believe the conservative democrats would stand with them. Want Two Members on Finance. The principal contention in the committee is over the assignments to the committee on appropriations, finance, postoffice and postroad, judiciary and foreign relations. The progressives contend they were promised two members of the finance committee in advance of the organization of the Gallinger committee and they are especially anxious to have this pledge carried out. On the other hand, the regulars say to concede this request would be to give the progressives and the democratic control of this important committee and this they do not want to do on the eve of tariff revision. The progressives are anxious to influence the committee on appropriations as a means to controlling the committee on expenditures. They want larger representation on the postoffice committee and they desire to aid in shaping the settlement of the Mexican embargo through the committee on foreign relations.

The dead are Mrs. Agnes Dallwitz, her granddaughter, Emma Dallwitz, and Edwin Hauk, a Washburn fireman, who was standing near the car. Their clothes were blown from their bodies and all were found more than 100 feet from the car. Four of the injured at the city hospital, according to attendants, cannot live because of the extent of their burns. Three small buildings caught fire from the blazing fluid and were partly destroyed.

THOMPSON APPEALS FOR HELP

Former Ambassador to Mexico Among Americans in Scapulo Who Present Petition to Washington for Aid.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—A long step toward restoring tranquility in Mexico was taken today. After a series of unofficial conferences, including the overtures of many go-betweens, General Francisco I. Madero, Jr., acknowledged leader of the insurrectos, today formally authorized Dr. Vasquez Gomez, his diplomatic representative in the United States, to consummate the armistice with the federal government, which in the last few days has been urged by mutual friends.

The armistice idea has met with the approval of the main government and is a preliminary step to peace negotiations designed to adjust various differences out of which the revolution grew. Tonight the conditions of the armistice are speeding back and forth over the wires for the approval of both sides in the revolution. They include chiefly the immediate suspension of hostilities as well as the discontinuance of troop movements, the establishment of a definite period in which the truce is to be effective, the zone to be comprehended by it and the permission for both sides to secure food supplies and free telegraphic communication.

While the policy of the United States toward events on the border has not as yet been clearly defined, the general opinion in official circles was that the amicable settlement of the Mexican revolution would, in a great measure, relieve the United States of the necessity of making any move in response to protests of American citizens as to the danger of border warfare. It was said, however, that the United States was pleased to learn that peace in Mexico was in prospect.

An evidence of the desire for peace was the issuance tonight of two statements, one by the Mexican embassy and the other by Dr. Gomez, declaring, in substance, that neither side had taken the initiative in proposing the armistice. It was inferred an effort was being made by Dr. Gomez, as the agent of the revolutionist party and the Mexican government, to forestall friction in future peace negotiations by the possible cry of "triumph" or "victory" for either side. Dr. Gomez said that armistice proposals had not been made originally by the revolutionists, but intermediate parties had suggested the idea simultaneously and had been successful in bringing it about. He said personal friends of government officials, as well as leaders of the revolution, had made it possible for both sides to reach an agreement on the main idea of armistice.

Diaz Asserted Sincere. The Mexican ambassador issued a statement indicating that the Mexican government was sincere in its desire to bring about peace and also giving the assurance that his government had not taken the initiative. The whole effect of the two statements, it was said, was to prevent the charge that constitutional government in Mexico had yielded to the force of arms, a contingency which, it is believed, revolutionists, as well as federals, were anxious to avoid so far as establishing a precedent in the eyes of world powers by which to judge the strength and patriotism of the Mexican people.

Thompson, former ambassador to Mexico, have presented a petition to the United States government, saying an attack on that city is imminent. The civil authorities in Acapulco, the consul adds, are transferring the records of the court to the fort, which is expected to be a place of refuge.
