A number of them express the very latest ideas of eastern designers—just the style you have been seeking is doubtless included, and its beauty and modest cost will urge an immediate decision.

The New Dresses

are of the French surges, panamas and shepherd's checks, made with high or round neck, or with a jaunty sailor collar. The 3/4 sleeve and Empire waist distinguish this season's styles.

Fancy buttons, Egyptian braids and hand-embroidered designs, cleverly applied, affect an inimitable richness. The colors are navy and Copenhagen blue, wine, brown, cerise and plain black.

Junior and small women's sizes.

Taft's Caretakers Will Not Allow Him to Eat Apple Pie

EDMONT, S. D., Oct. 21.—President Taft was up before 7 o'clock this morning to make the first speech of his three days' tour of South Dakota, the first in-state in which he has traveled since leaving California. The president spent last night in New Castle, Wyo., and left there at 5:30 a. m. for this city. His day's program calls for stops at Rapid, Deadwood, Lead, Sturgis and Custer City. The president's train last night was surrounded by Wyoming militia men. Mr. Taft did not retire until nearly midnight.

The president is in the best of health and is enjoying the trip remarkably well. His voice is holding up splendidly, and his wonderful carrying power constantly is being commented upon. Speaking in the clear air of this hilly country, President Taft can be heard a block away. Undoubtedly the president's health largely is due to diet which has been prescribed for him by Major Thomas L. Rhoades of the army, his official physician. Mr. Taft probably does not know the extent to which his food supplies are limited, but so far he has not complained. His fellow travelers in the private car Ideal—Secretary Hillis, Major Butt and Major Rhoades—are taking something of an advantage of their chief in this respect. For instance, the president is denied all pastry.

Yesterday for luncheon the cook baked a savory hot apple pie. Everybody in the car knew about it except the president. When he asked for dessert they supplied him with fruit. Then, when the midday meal was ended, the conspirators retired to one of the staterooms, where a table had been set for them. They feasted royally on the masterpiece in pastry, while the president sat alone and neglected in the observation end of his car wondering what had become of his staff. Every day that pie is on the menu the ideal here is a lot of Updegraves and the word is passed along the line to "stand by" and prepare for something "like mother used to make." Some day the president is going to discover the low deceit that is being practiced upon him and there is going to be an awful row.

Harriman Officers and Union Leaders Pleased with Outlook

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—Both company officials and union leaders today asserted complete satisfaction with the situation in the strike of shophmen on the Harriman railway system, a touching conditions in the local shops of the Union Pacific.

"We are a little short of car men," said J. O. Brinkerhoff, superintendent of the Kansas division of the Union Pacific. "Otherwise we are running about as usual."

M. P. Ryan, president of the International Car Men's union, said the striking shophmen not only in this city but throughout the Harriman system were gaining every day.

"The company is running short handed in practically every shop," said he. "We are bound to win. They cannot get the mechanics. Green men won't do."

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Charges that the Illinois Central road had brought men here to act as strike breakers and then left them to depend on the community, were made by W. F. Kramer, secretary of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, in a letter to city council today.

GOOD DEEDS SHINE BRIGHTLY

Timely Helping Hand Taps Fountains of Thankfulness and Reimbursement.

On one occasion the faculty of Bowdoin college was obliged to discipline young Frye by sending him to spend a week with the Rev. Elijah Kellogg, a lovable man. Young Frye became his devoted friend. Years afterward when Mr. Frye was a member of the United States senate and Kellogg was an old man, the senator, who had not heard from Kellogg for at least ten years, got to thinking of him and thought he must be poor, as his only source of income was his little farm and occasional fees for preaching on a Sunday. Frye was so much on the senator's mind for a few days that he saw Chief Justice Fuller and several other Bowdoin men who were admirers of Kellogg and they made up a purse of $20, sent it to President Hyde at Bowdoin college with instructions to see that Kellogg got it.

Upon receiving the money Kellogg wrote to Senator Frye, telling him that no gift ever came at a more opportune moment than that. He had a mortgage on his farm; that it was due, and that he was behind on his interest; and had it not been for that money he would have lost his farm; and when in such straits to receive more money than he had ever seen at any one time was indeed, he felt sure, his direct act of God.

Senator Frye replied to Kellogg, telling him that his comment about the gift being an act of God reminded him of old Martha Stevens, a very poor but devout colored woman, who lived in a hut near the campus when he was in college. One night the boys were near her cottage and heard her praying, climbed up close to the chimney, and Martha prayed vigorously: "O Lord, send me some flour; O Lord, send me some sugar; O Lord, send me some bacon," and it occurred to the boys that it would be fun to go to the store, buy the things that Martha prayed for, put them in a bag and let them down the chimney. So they carried out their plan and of course, were on hand in the morning to hear what old Martha said. Of course she was delighted and she devoutly and vociferously thanked the Lord for sending the articles that she had asked for.

"Finally," wrote the senator, "I went around to the door, walked in and said: 'Martha, the Lord had nothing to do with sending those things; we boys heard you pray for them and went down to the store and bought them and let them down the chimney; so you see the Lord had nothing to do with it.' 'I don't care,' said Martha, 'if you did, I know the Lord sent 'em, even if the devil brought 'em.'"

SEEKING THE OLD STUFF

Elk Pointers Dream of Buried Treasure in the Missouri River.

A dispatch from Elk Point, S. D., says that much interest is being manifested in the recovery of the cargo of the old steamer Leadora, which in 1866 sank in the Missouri, near that place, with 100 barrels of good whisky on board.

It adds that several gentlemen have associated themselves and raised funds for the purpose of exploring the wreck and recovering the impounded whisky. If they are successful, they count on making a small fortune out of the enterprise, as the whisky has been valued by some as high as $45,000.

"We should think there would be a good deal of interest in the plan! And we should also think that the interest would not be confined to the little town of Elk Point. There is a human appeal in it which can be relied on to cross state lines and make an appealing thrill from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico."

Stories of lost galleons weighted down with cargoes of doubloons and pieces of eight, and waiting at the bottom of the sea, covered with coral and with shells, move the souls of only a comparatively limited number. Tales of the treasure buried by Captain Kidd on island and seashore awaken the personal thrill in comparatively few.

But 100 barrels of good whisky, lying tangled in the wreckage of an old river steamer since 1866, aging in good tarred barrels against the day of their deliverance—that is something like it! It comes straight home to men's business and bosoms with a personal appeal that there is no mistaking.

Down in Kentucky the news that 200 barrels of old whisky are awaiting the fair price that is to awake them from a tender slumber will no doubt stir a tenderness that is akin to tears. In Maine, the news will be heard with conflicting emotions. But nowhere, it is safe to say, will it be heard with indifference—not even by the W. C. T. U.

There are, however, some extremely painful thoughts that always intrude in connection with these tales of long-lost whisky. Will it not be spoiled as a result of untoward surrounding conditions? Will not the long years have been wasted, after all? May not the enthusiastic rescuers find, after all their laborious expense and anticipatory relief, that they have raised nothing more than a thick syrupy, unpalatable stuff from the mud? Or 100 barrels of muddy Missouri River water?

The possibility of a disappointment like that is certainly enough to make a man hesitate before undertaking such an enterprise. It is, no doubt, this possibility that accounts for the fact that the 100 barrels have so long lain neglected at the bottom of an old channel of the Missouri River—that successive generations have passed the great opportunity by and devoted their attention to other and more prosaic enterprises.

However, it seems that Elk Point, S. D., now boasts men of the true explorer's, the true adventurer's, breed—men who are willing to run the risks of receiving a great, possibly a fatal, shock in pursuit of the enterprises that appeal to them—men who understand that he who would greatly gain must also dare the hazard of greatly losing.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Buys House and Lot Soon After Voting For Lorimer

Members of the committee of United States senators investigating the Lorimer case, today asked for the personal bank account of State Representative Henry L. Wheelan with the People's National bank at Rock Island, Ill., for the year 1909.

The order was issued for a statement of Wheelan's bank account, after Wheelan had testified on the witness stand that he paid $1,000 for a house and a lot a few months following the Lorimer election, in which transaction he admitted using twelve $100 bills as one payment.

Wheelan, however, declared that he borrowed that money from J. K. Scott and Thomas Cox at Rock Island, and denied a charge by counsel for the committee that he had received money to vote for Lorimer.

Wheelan admitted that he had represented the liquor interests in an anti-prohibition campaign in Rock Island while a member of the legislature. Wheelan said he was a democrat, but had voted for Lorimer with Patrick Walsh, a contractor of Davenport, Ia.

Attorney Healy asked him to name some of those he had urged to vote for Lorimer. "Former Representative Walter A. Lantz of Chicago, Representative George W. Alseuler of Aurora and former Representative Thomas H. Riley of Joliet were among those with whom I discussed the matter," said Wheelan.

Former State Senator Cyril R. Janius of Chicago resumed the stand today, as his cross examination was devoid of special interest.

Populist Committee Called by Democrats

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Oct. 21.—(Special Telegram.)—Secretary of State Watt today heard testimony in the protest made by O. A. Eberly of Stanton against allowing Dan V. Stephens' name to go on the populist congressional ticket in the Third district at the coming election.

The contentions of the republican chairman are that no regular populist convention was held and that therefore the certificate of nomination given him from that party is null and void. The case will be taken under advisement and a decision will be forthcoming the early part of next week.

Candidate Stephens was represented by J. H. Grosvenor of Aurora, S. S. Sidner of Fremont and W. S. Woolley, who was chairman of the populist district convention. Colonel Eberly questioned the legality of Stephens' populist nomination on further grounds that the populist convention was called by order of the democratic state central committee, a most irregular proceeding, declared J. H. Grosvenor, chairman of the populist state committee, contended that the call for populist convention did not originate with the democrats, saying that was a mistake. He admitted on cross-examination that the populist state committee had not been called together to sanction a Third district convention, but that a talk with some of the committeemen caused the call to be issued.

Osceola Liveryman Charged with Arson

OSCEOLA, Neb., Oct. 21.—(Special Telegram.)—On complaint of Fire Warden Randall, Harm Shangk was today arrested on a charge of setting fire to the livery barn of his competitor, William Everetts, a week ago. The fire destroyed the large barn and seven horses, including the Nebraska stallion, Greenwood. Bond was fixed at $5,000 and Shangk was unable to furnish it during the day.

Mrs. Warren Fairbanks Robbed of Many Gems

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Warren Fairbanks of Chicago, social leader and wife of the son of former Vice President Fairbanks, reported to the police today that a bag containing jewels worth $10,000 had been taken from her from a Pullman car enroute from Boston to Chicago a week ago.

Mrs. Fairbanks said she did not learn of the loss of the jewels until yesterday. The gems, which were carried in a chamolite purse in a traveling bag, were described to the police as follows: One diamond necklace, set in platinum, valued at $2,000; one diamond dinner ring, set in platinum, valued at $1,000; three solitaires valued at $2,000; an emerald solitaire and several small pieces, with a total value of $2,000.

Mrs. Fairbanks, who before her marriage was Miss Ethel Cassidy of Pennsylvania, was returning from a visit with relatives in Boston when the jewels were stolen. A week elapsed before she noticed the loss.

Rock Island Official Denies Report that Wages Were to Be Cut

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—F. Q. Melcher, vice-president of the Rock Island lines, today declared that the new wage schedule offered the shophmen, who are taking a strike vote, would not affect the earning power of the men.

"It was charged that in this schedule which was presented to the shophmen committee the overtime was abolished," he said. "This is untrue. The committee demanded the acceptance of its schedule, which called for an approximate increase of 10 per cent, but we did not give it serious consideration."

CALL ELECTION ON ANNEXATION

Fight Close One. Defeat by a margin of eight started the opponents of the proposed Omaha-South Omaha merger in the face at noon Saturday, when the Board of County Commissioners, before whom the annexation war now is being fought, voted a recess until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The annexationists confessed they must lose the fight unless they could find some plan by which eight additional names could be established on the petitions calling for a special election.

According to John P. Breen, attorney for the annexationists, there were but 1,327 valid names on the Omaha petition asking for a special election, this number being eight short of the required 10 per cent of registered voters at the last general election, that of 1910. At that election there were 23,000 registered voters, according to the certificate and sworn statement of City Clerk Dan Butler of Omaha.

Henry C. Murphy, attorney for the anti-annexationists, declared the recent revision registration should be the basis in determining the number of signatures required for the special election. The revision was 23,000; 10 per cent would be 2,300 or 200 more than were claimed valid by the annexationists.

The board took no final action. The warring parties left to return and finish the battle at 2 o'clock. Deputy County Attorney Magney in the afternoon advised the county commissioners that the 1910 general election registration of approximately 23,000 should be used as a basis in determining how many names were required to call the special election.

Golden Wedding at McCallsburg

Buns of Aurora, Neb.

UPRISING NEAR PEKING AND TIEN TSIN PLANNED

view of the possibility that the entire force would be dispatched for emergency duty in the foreign concessions at Hankow.

That the naval authorities regard the present disturbance in China as likely to be of long duration, is indicated by the fact that the collier Abareda, which sails this week for Shanghai, took ammunition for a long campaign.

All Quiet at Chang Sha

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Apparently conditions at Chang Sha have materially changed in the government's favor, for the state department was advised today by American Consul Wilder, at Shanghai, that there was no occasion for apprehension as to the safety of Chang Sha. This is an important city in the province of Hu Pei, 100 miles south of the Yang Tze river, and conditions might be regarded as indicative of the strength of the revolutionary sentiment in all of south China.

Defeat of Fleet Confirmed

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—A cable dispatch from Shanghai to the Chung Shai Tat Ho confirms the report as to the defeat of Admiral Sbah, who was in command of the imperial warships in the attack on Hankow. Sbah is said to have retired to Klu Kiang with his disabled vessels, excepting for one that was sunk, the sailors surrendering to the revolutionists.

General Chang Piao, the military governor, was executed and Sui Chang, vice-governor, was deposed by the imperial government for allowing the provinces of Hupoh and Hunan to pass into the power of the rebels.

Marital law exists in all places occupied by the rebels. The dispatch puts the imperial loss in the Hankow battle at 3,600 killed, besides many wounded. A cable to a rival paper, however, said the government lost 7,000 killed.

DEATH RECORD.

William VanWinkle. CALLAWAY, Oct. 20.—William Van Winkle, a resident of Callaway the last twenty-five years, passed away at his home after an illness of but a few days' duration. Mr. VanWinkle was a veteran of the civil war, having enlisted in California, and had for a number of years been a member of the local Grand Army post, in which order he had held all of the high offices. He was a stern painter, and his lettering stands out on almost every business building of the town as a monument to his memory. Funeral services were conducted from his late home at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and interment made in the Rose Hill cemetery.

Miss Alverda V. Hall. NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Oct. 21.—(Special.)—Alverda Virginia Hall died yesterday at the home of her brother-in-law, James B. Miller, and was buried today. ## WILL RETAIN PERKINS IN HIS PRESENT PLACE

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 21.—(Special Telegram.)—A statement issued today by the railway commission and signed by all three members indicates that Clark Perkins, who only recently professed his resignation to that body, would be retained for an indefinite period. Perkins, it is understood, will conduct the Aurora Republican, which he recently acquired, from this end of the line.
