

MORE LIFE IN THE MINE

Rescue Parties at Briceville Find Note Written on Wall.

FIVE MEN ARE FOUND ALIVE

They Had Erected Brattice, Which Shielded Them from the Deadly Gases—Six Bodies Are Found.

BRICEVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 12.—Spurred on by last night's discovery of survivors of Saturday's dust blast in the Cross-Mountain coal min., fresh rescue squads went into the cross-entries this morning, hacking and digging with redoubled energy. Their only reward, however, was the discovery of a corpse-strewn chamber far back in the mine.

Six bodies were recovered. Two of the six were identified. One was Joseph Green, a widower. The other, Tate Vahlies, had a wife and four children. Additional signs of life were discovered in the Cross-Mountain mine at 11 o'clock. On the walls of the shaft were found inscribed these words: "We have gone to 12."

Immediately the rescue squads redoubled their efforts to reach cross section No. 23 of the mine. It is believed several of the blast victims will be found there.

Five men alive were brought from the Cross-Mountain mine at 11 o'clock last night and rescuers at that time were making strong efforts to reach at least three more whom they believe still alive.

The men had been prisoners in the workings since Saturday morning when an explosion entombed more than 100 men, hope for whom had been abandoned, when three of the men, alive and well were found behind a brattice they had erected to protect themselves from noxious gases. The rescued men are: William Henderson, aged 33; Milton Henderson, aged 22, his son; Arthur Scott, aged 25; Dore Irish, aged 28. They are all married and their wives had almost given up hope of ever seeing any of them alive.

Immediately after the explosion the first three men rescued rushed to cross entry No. 19, where they quickly threw up a brattice that kept out the black damp, which killed many of their fellow workmen. They took their lunch pails with them and the three subsisted for three days and two nights on whatever had expected to make their Saturday noon meal.

More Writing on Walls. The rescue party penetrated into cross entry No. 23. No miners were found there, but additional directions for their rescue were found scrawled in chalk on the walls. The men evidently were compelled to change their vantage points on account of the altering air conditions. The rescue squad pressed on in the direction indicated by the chalk marks.

At noon a total of thirty bodies had been removed. Stricken mad, probably from fear inspired by their plight, two miners who had been with the party rescued last night are now dashing wildly in and out of channels in the far recesses of the mine.

All night long men of the rescue squad have been chasing the maniacs, but just as soon as would-be rescuers got close on their trail the madmen would dash away screaming wildly. First they scurry down the main entry, then scamper away into black recesses of the mine at the approach of men from the outside.

The maddened miners are believed to be John Duff and John Smith. News of their plight is being kept from their families, who have given them up for dead.

More Doctors Arrive. A big squad of doctors arrived last night. They will lessen the tension under which the entombed miners have strained before they will be taken into the open air. Additional squads of men have been sent into the mine to attempt to run down the two maddened miners before they penetrate a chamber filled with fatal gas fumes.

A federal official took charge of the mine this forenoon, but up to 1 o'clock the crazed survivors of the dust blast ended pursuit. Once a squad traced the men to a chamber, but before they could be penned in they crept into a dark corner in the main shaft and when the party passed them they scurried screaming back into the inner workings.

Former Governor's Funeral at Lincoln

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Dec. 12.—(Special.)—Without any unusual ceremonies the body of Albinus Nance, fourth governor of Nebraska, was laid to rest in the family plot in the center of Wyuka cemetery this afternoon. WYOMAN SEEKING CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Dec. 12.—(Special.)—Eugene S. Newton, a clothing merchant at Wyoming, wrote today to the secretary of state for an application blank for some one to file for governor. Newton does not say whether he wants the application for himself or for another. It is believed he wants to run for the office himself.

Newton is a republican. He is an anti-county politician. Newton is known to be a close friend of Adam McMullen, another republican. It may be that Newton intends to induce his friend to make the race instead of himself.

PUPILS ARE TO SELL SEALS

State Superintendent Authorizes Them to Help Campaign.

REQUEST GRANTED MRS. EDHOLM

Last Year Wisconsin Made a Record Because of the Activity of the School Children in the Work.

For the first time in the history of the Red Cross seal movement the children have been authorized by the state department of public instruction to sell the seals. Superintendent Deloitte, at the request of Mrs. K. R. J. Edholm of Omaha, has written to principals and county superintendents of the state asking them to allow their pupils to sell the seals, the proceeds to be used in fighting tuberculosis.

Maryland school children are also selling the seals this year. Last year Wisconsin and Connecticut were the only states where school children were organized to sell them, and Wisconsin disposed of more seals than any state in the union.

DIABETES

From late figures the hope of recovery under the new, emollient treatment seems to be about as follows: In people of sixty and over results are quite uniformly nine-tenths recovery. While at fifty and over a large majority of all cases yield to the treatment, below fifty and approaching forty the disease is more stubborn, and between thirty and forty the percentage is not high—probably not much over half yielding.

Under thirty the percentage is less and in children recoveries have been very few and most of these obtained with the aid of skilled physicians forcing nutrition, with alkaline treatment to prevent formation of acetone. The new emollient treatment is known as Fulton's Diabetic Compound. It can be had of Sherman & McConnell Drug Co., cor. 16th and Dodge, cor. 24th and Farnam, 207-9 N. 16th St., Owl Drug Co., cor. 14th and Highway.

We desire every patient to write us who is not noting the usual improvement by the third week. Always state age. Literature mailed free. Geo. J. Fulton Co., San Francisco, Cal. We invite correspondence with physicians who have obstinate cases.
