

MAHONEY TELLS OF FRAUDS

Clerk of the Police Court Appears Before the Grand Jury. IS QUESTIONED OF "SHAKEDOWN"

John J. Mahoney, clerk of the Omaha police court, candidate for police judge of Omaha at the general election last November, discussed alleged election frauds in the second precinct of the Third ward before the Douglas county grand jury yesterday.

Before entering the grand jury room Mr. Mahoney told a reporter that all he could tell the grand jury was hearsay, though he was around in the Third ward a good deal on election day.

Geo. Brooks' Clothes Shop An Innovation

Here's cheering news for the man who regards propriety in dress as a distinct asset. "Geo. Brooks," one of America's best known creators of attire and haberdashery styles, will reopen the store formerly occupied by Culp-Langworthy at the corner of 16th and Harney St., on the ground floor of the City National Bank Building.

This newest "shop" is scheduled for an opening on March 2, and on that day Omahans will have their first view of a truly metropolitan clothes emporium.

The "Brooks" concern will feature nationally advertised lines mainly, such as "Society Brand" clothes, and others equally famous; also "Stetson," and "Knappfolt" hats; "Manhattan," "Clusti," "Arrow," and "Brooks's Custom Special Shirts." Then, too, there will be "Onyx," and "Holeproof" Hosiery and neckwear of silks controlled exclusively by George Brooks.

The policy of the shop will be: "Smart clothes and furnishings offered on the same day they appear in New York and other noted style centers." Mr. Brooks, however, wishes it understood from the very outset that prices will be popular even though styles will be "classy."

It has been rare, heretofore, to purchase "tony" wearables at anything less than a prohibitive price, but "Brooks" will change all that.

Newspaper announcements will appear frequently from now on, announcements that will outline the policy of the store. Watch for special announcements in regard to the opening of the store on March 2.
