WANT ADLESS READY PRINTS

State Press Association Takes Move in This Direction.

NEXT SESSION COMES TO OMAHA

H. G. Taylor of Central City Nonpareil Elected President of Association and C. C. Johns Continued as Secretary.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Neb., June 5.—(Special.)—One of the features of the Nebraska Press association in session here yesterday was the vote in favor of a resolution for "adless ready prints."

Those favoring the resolution contended with the ready print, which used ads came in conflict with the home advertiser and therefore should not be used.

The entertainment at the state farm with refreshments and than a trip to the Oliver theater, where the editors witnessed the "Man of the Hour," closed an eventful day of the second period of the fortieth annual session.

This morning the regular business was taken up beginning with "The Best Newspaper Make-up," by E. W. Tuse of the Wayne Herald, discussed by C. C. Cross of the Elm Creek Beacon and others.

"The Merchants and the Newspaper," was the subject of a paper by E. P. P. Podrea of the Omaha Trade Exhibit and S. R. McKelvie, editor of the Nebraska Farmer of Lincoln, entertained the association with "Some Things a Country Publisher Can Do."

Just before adjournment for lunch the annual election was held and the following elected without opposition:

President, H. G. Taylor, of the Central City Nonpareil; Vice president, C. W. Pool, of the Tecumseh Tribune-Tribune; Secretary, C. C. Johns of Grand Island; Corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. H. Hitchcock, of the Mutual Insurance Journal of Lincoln.

Meet in Omaha Next. Omaha was selected without opposition for the next annual session in 1913.

This afternoon the editors were the guests of the Lincoln Commercial club at the ball game between Lincoln and Des Moines. The people of the city seemed anxious that the visiting editors should not judge Western league baseball by the exhibition which they saw Monday afternoon, and therefore the second trip to Antelope park was made to let them see that roughneck baseball was not the Western league kind.

While Monday's game was marred by the tactics of the players, the editors largely understand that the umpire was to blame for allowing the players to muss him up whenever they felt like it, without danger of being sentenced to the bench, and they feel pretty well satisfied with the ten innings of ball, though played in three hours and ten minutes.

The afternoon session opened with a paper by E. C. Potts of the Holdrege Citizen on "Lost Jobs," which was followed by one of the best talks of the session by Gerrit Fort of the Union Pacific Railway company of Omaha.

Another paper which was of more than usual interest was that of Clark Perkins of the Aurora Republican on "Political Advertising." The discussion was led by A. V. Buechler of the Grand Island Independent and A. V. Shaffer of the Alma Record.

Riot at Lincoln Game. The association's base ball experience as far as seeing the game devoid of rough tactics was not any better shown today than at the game Monday. While they were given nearly everything that could be seen in roughneck tactics Monday, this afternoon they were further entertained by an alleged steal of the game by the umpire and an attempt to mob him by the infuriated crowd. An escort of police took him from the grounds and sent him uptown.

Another interesting episode of the game was the arrest of Ross L. Hammond of the Fremont Tribune by a burly guardian of the law on complaint of Henry Richmond and J. C. Seacrest that he was rooting for the Des Moines team and that he got into the grandstand without paying the regular price of admission. After an explanation on the outside to the cop he was allowed to return.

Silver Cup to Nonpareil. The silver cup offered by Secretary Johnson of the association was awarded to the Central City Nonpareil for the best display of job work. There were something like a dozen displays. After the session closed the editors and their wives were entertained at 6:30 at a banquet given by the Lincoln Commercial club. Something less than 200 were present at the session just closed and for a business in which may mean for the future, the fortieth has been one of the best in its history.

Gerrit Fort's Address. The address of Gerrit Fort, passenger traffic manager of the Union Pacific Railroad company, had for his subject, "Railways, Automobiles and Airships," but it dealt chiefly with railroads and the subject of transportation.

The head of the passenger department of the Union Pacific right at the start of his talk referred to the days of passenger for the editors and expressed the opinion that, on the whole, the present system of the railroads paying cash for newspaper space and newspaper men paying cash for transportation is much more satisfactory to all concerned.

During the old methods that maintained, contended Mr. Fort, the railroads placed relatively small value on newspaper space and in turn, because it was so easy to secure, newspaper men looked upon transportation as a cheap and somewhat valueless commodity.

Mr. Fort took the position that the interests of the newspapers and the railroads are identical; that they are all striving to aid the public fairly and honestly and at the same time uphold the state and its industries.

On the subject of automobiles, Mr. Fort estimated that there are, approximately, 24,000 in daily use in Nebraska and that they have a seating capacity for 100,000 persons. This growth of the use of the automobile, the speaker contended, has materially injured the railroad passenger business, especially the local business.
