GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Bearish Feeling Develops in the Wheat Situation.

IN STRONG POSITION

Yield of Oats so Great that Movement Will Be Limited Only by Capacity of the Railroads.

OMAHA, Aug. 12, 1912. There is a feeling in the wheat trade that the final figures on the spring crop may be raised considerably over the present official estimate. There is no end of talk about the competition which this country will meet from Canada and Rus-sia after this month in offering cheap wheat to Europe. These are the things which are creating bearish feeling and causing many predictions of lower prices. On the other hand, Chicago recupts are light and shipments heavy. The shortage in the soft wheat states is yet to be felt as a commercial feature. The high qualas a commercial feature. The high qual-ity of the wheat this year makes it popu-lar with foreign buyers. There is no doubt but that the milling interests in the northwest will absorb much of the early movement and there may be con-siderable export business in winter wheat before the heavy spring movement begins. before the heavy spring movement begins. Many of the heavy traders are friendly to the buying side. Cash wheat unchanged. There is a remarkably strong position in cash and September corn and it is likely to continue until the country gets realy to sell reserves more freely. This may not take place until the growing crop is out of danger. The market looks the sell structure for the early months.

crop is out of danger. The market normalike a bull situation for the early months and moderately bearish for the late months. The official crop figures have increased the bearish feeling. The market from now on should be very active, as from now on should be very active, as the short traders cover briskly on any show of strength or bull leadership. Cash corn was unchanged to le down.

There is much talk of a possibility of all oats months working down around a 30-cent level during the balance of the year. Leaders suggest sales on temporary burges. The yield for the year is so griat that the movement of oats will only be limited by the capacity of the railroads. Lash oats le to 1½c lower.

SOUTH OMAHA, Aug. 10, 1917. Receipts were: Cattle. Hogs. Sheep.

HOGS-Hog supplies failed to expand this morning, the receipts being only moderate for the first day of the week. Under such circumstances and with encouraging advices from nearly all eastern points trade commenced with shippers and spectators buying most of their hogs at prices fully 5@10c higher than Saturday's market. Speculators bought a goodly number of hogs early, but the shippers did not have quite so many orders to fill as usual. While trade was fairly lively early, packers, although paying prices steady to 5c higher and in cases 10c higher, were apparently indifderate for the first day of the w

SHEEP—Fat sheep and lambs arrived in fairly large numbers this morning, as about fifty loads or 14,30 head, were received at the yards. This is a little more than last Mohčay, but slightly short. of the receipts two weeks ago. The most striking feature of today's offerings was striking feature of today's offerings was the improvement in quality over recent shipments; in fact, there was almost as large a percentage of really good stuff in the supply as on any other day since the beginning of the range season. Lambs comprised the greater part of the stock on sale, the proportion of fat sheep being comparatively small. Not so much feeding stuff appeared on the market this morning as a week ago.

Although a little business was transacted early, bulk of the trade was done later in the morning. According to first reports from Chicago and other eastern markets prices there showed no advance over the close of last week and in consequence buyers and sellers here were somewhat slow in getting down to business. Everyone was apparently waiting for further developments in the trade before closing many deals. What little stuff passed into second hands during the first rounds were some of the best offerings on sale as there was a good demand for
