WAREHOUSES ARE BURNED

Sixteenth Street Plant Destroyed, Entailing Loss of $50,000.

FIREMAN HOPE IS INJURED

While Fighting Flames He is Accidentally Hit on the Head with an Axe, but His Condition is Not Serious.

Within five minutes from the time that a tiny blaze was discovered in the warehouse of the Nebraska Fuel company at Sixteenth and Pierce streets yesterday at 5:30 a. m., the entire string of warehouse buildings covering nearly a square block, was a mass of seething flames. Six thousand tons of various grades of coal lent body to the blaze. According to a statement made by R. L. Patterson, secretary, the damage will exceed $50,000, but the amount is fully covered by insurance. Defective electrical wiring is ascribed as the probable cause.

John T. Hope, one of the firemen, was injured by having been accidentally hit on the head with an axe. Hope and other firemen were fighting the flames, and an axe was being wielded by one of them. In the smoke and excitement Hope was hit by the axe. The blow was a glancing one, and not serious. The injured man was taken to his home, 3619 North Thirtieth street.

Makes Rapid Headway.

Fire was first discovered at 5:30 o'clock by George Abdellah, 1124 South Thirtieth street. Abdellah is a driver employed by the Nebraska Fuel company and was preparing to feed his team when he noticed a blaze near the middle of one of the warehouses. He immediately sent in an alarm, but when he returned with Patrolman Risk and several other men five minutes later there was barely time to rescue half a dozen horses from death. The animals were led out of the blazing buildings with their heads covered and taken to a nearby barn.

Fire is Very Hot.

The first companies of the fire department reached the scene a few minutes after the alarm, but so stifling was the heat sent out that they could not get within a hundred feet of the building. A strong wind from the southwest fanned the smoke and heat across the Sixteenth street viaduct, and with the flame at the height of its fury the firemen had hard work to force their horses across the bridge. Companies approaching from the south attacked the spectacular blaze first from the Pierce street side and when reinforcements arrived, control of the situation was gotten from this position.

City Dads Lose Out in Having Photos Taken on Long Film

City commissioners were peeved yesterday when the special representative of an eastern moving picture film company failed to show up and keep an appointment to take their pictures to head the reel of the electrical parade.

A date was set when the commissioners would go riding in autos and the filmmaker would be on the job, but the latter failed to show up until half an hour after the appointed time and the commissioners had dispersed.

This was the only opportunity they ever had to have their pictures made and shown all over the United States. The film-maker said he was disappointed, too, but had misunderstood the hour of meeting.

Owners of Property Resent Board's Order

The Real Estate exchange is bothered to know whether owners of property may be considered users of water according to the recent order of the Water Board.

The rule has been made that owners of property and tenants shall contract jointly for water, thus guaranteeing the payment of water bills. Whether or not the owner can be brought into such a contract is a subject of doubt on the part of some members of the Real Estate exchange.

One member made the statement that if the Water Board can rule that the landlord shall pay for water, the telephone, electric light, gas and other companies can do likewise, which plan, he said, is far from right.

RENZE FLOATS GO TO DENVER

Electrical Devices Will Be Loaded on Special Train.

AK-SAR-BEN ACTORS TO GO TOO

Spectacular Pageant Will Be the Big Feature of the Festival of the Mountain and Plain to Be Held Soon.

Omaha's Ak-Sar-Ben electrical floats will be shipped to Denver to be the star feature of the Festival of Mountain and Plain. The festival is held October 15 to 18, inclusive, and the electrical parade will pass over the streets of that city the night of Thursday, October 17.

Instead of the floats being hauled to the Den and there being dismantled as is the usual custom, they will be taken to the Burlington freight yards and put upon flat cars. As soon as loaded, they will be run special to Denver. Fifty of the principal actors in the Ak-Sar-Ben circus together with all of the apparatus and machinery used in the festival, will go to Denver, where during the festival performances will be given each night.

Denver does not rent the floats, but buys them outright, paying $150 per float and returning to Omaha, freight prepaid, the trucks and trolley arms. The floats will not be returned to Omaha.

Renze Will Take Charge.

Gas Renze goes to Denver and takes complete charge of the electrical parade and will be the manager of the circus.

The hauling of the floats caused some spirited competition among the representatives of the Omaha-Denver road. The Burlington, however, bid 50 cents per 100 pounds and secured the contract. They will require an entire train for their movement. Some of the shorter floats will be loaded two to three cars, but the most of them will require one car each.

The circus actors go and come over the Union Pacific, which road also secured the movement of all the equipment that will be returned to Omaha.

The circus crew will go to Denver to be there in time to put the first performance on the first night of the festival, repeating it nightly until Friday night, when the Live Stock pavilion, where it is to be staged, will be the scene of the masked ball, the closing feature.

Warning Causes a Man Severe Fall, So He Says, and Sues

For warning a window washer to be careful while washing the outside of a third-story window, the Smith Clothing company may have to pay $10,000. Earl Newell, the window washer, sued the company for this amount in district court. He alleges that a year ago he fell from the window because Edward Smith warned him.

Newell is a young man. He alleges that when he was at work on the outer sill of the window Smith called to him to "lookout." He told him to be careful or he would fall.

Instead of having the expected effect, according to Newell, and causing him to tighten his grip on the window, it startled him. There was a temporary suspension of mental activity and he released his hold, falling to the pavement below. He says his leg was broken, his back was severely injured and he also was hurt internally.
