Omaha Bankers Do Not Care to Discuss New Treasury Order.

DEPENDS ON SECURITY WANTED

Henry W. Tates Says if Government Will Require but 75 Per Cent Scourity Business Will Be About as Before.

Whether or not the national banks can continue to keep government deposits will depend on the exact nature of the security required by the United States Treasury department, according to H, W. Yates, president of the Nebraska National bank. When it was learned through newspaper reports yesterday that Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo had ordered that 2 per cent per annum interest must be paid by government depositories on all government deposits beginning June 1 local bankers took a great deal of interest in the matter, and especially are they interested to know about the kind of security that is to be required

At first glance it appeared that the security requirements were to be lightened, but newspaper reports differed on this point. One report had it that in the future 75 per cent of the government deposits might be secured by high class state, city or county bonds instead of by United States government honds alone. Another report had it that 70 per cent would still have to be secured by United States government bonds, while the remaining 30 per cent could be secured by high class state, city or county bonds acceptable to the secretary of the treasury. Business as Before.

"I am inclined to think that the first will be found to be right." said Mr. Yates, "for I feel that they have sense enough to know that we can't secure most of these deposits with government bonds, on which we get but 2 per cent interest when they are charging us 2 per cent interest for the deposits. However, if they will let the national bankers secure 75 per cent of the deposits with state, city or county bonds, we will go ahead and do business on that basis governor. much as before."

Most of the bank presidents seen on this matter were reticent, as they expressed themselves as having no desire to talk on McAdoo's new order

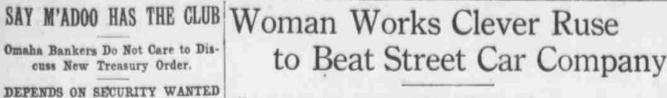

"We have nothing to say. What can we say? We can't change it," said Senator Joseph H. Mullard, president of the Omaha National bank. He ostimates there is about $600,000 of government deposits in the national banks in Omaha.

"I should rather wait until we get the circular." said Luther Drake, president of the Merchants' National bank. "There might be a vast difference between the meager reports we get now and the detailed provisions of the order. So I prefer to walt until we get the circular for definite information."

Do Not Like New Rule.

In spite of the fact that most of the bankers refused to talk publicly about the way the new order would affect them, it was easily gleaned that most of them did not like the new regulation, as it would call for a neat little sum of interest annually from some who have as high as $200,000 of government deposits in their hands. It was also readily discerned that many of the bankers feel it unjust that they should pay the government 3 per cent interest on deposits in view of the fact that the banks have saved the Treasury department the expense of establishing subtreasuries throughout the land. Besides, some complain that those which have had these deposits have been doing Uncle Sam's clerical work for the consensus of opinion of Omaha businothing, and have been cashing his checks ness men is proof of it. E. J. "The governor may be here this week." ment. said Mayor Dahlman. "Of course, I don't know who he will appoint. We are naturally for Bridges and believe he would make a good, square man for that job." "Others have applied for the position naturally," said Bridges. "There is talk of appointing a man who is not acquainted. That, in my opinion, would be absurd. If a man went into the Third ward to choose judges and clerks and knew nobody in that ward, what assarance would he have of getting honest men? None."

Bridges knew the governor was to con fer with Mayor Dahlman over the ap pointment. He said he understood that the governor would approve the mayor's recommendation, but he was under the impression that the mayor had not decided upon the applicant he would recommend.

The position of election commissioner created at the last session of the legislature, carries a salary of $3,000 a year, with an assistant at a salary of $1,800 year. and vests power in the commissioner to appoint all judges and clerks of election

Business Men Say it is Time to Change 'Em complete garment satisfaction.

It's now time to change 'em. The weather man may not agree to this, but manager of the traffic bureau of the Commercial club, admits that he was a little previous. A few weeks ago he went to Mt. Louis, where he found the weather unusually hot. He changed 'em, he says and when he returned to Omaha he had to go to bed for a few days, nursing a bad cold. He hasn't entirely recovered. Ward C. Gifford, assistant commissioner of the Commercial club, declares the time is proper for change. He has taken steps for relief. E. V. by Legislature George Baler, Dan Frazier, George Anthes and G. W. Perkins, formerly employed in the office of County Clerk Dewey in checking all the work done in Treasurer Ure's office and in other statistical work, who were thrown out of jobs by the recent legislature, have been re-employed to do the same work by the Board of County Commissioners. A list of the duties of these men in the auditing department compiled by Clerk Dewey convinced the commissioners that they were needed and the board has assumed the responsibility of the auditing of the treasurer's office. A law passed by the last legislature took from the county clerk the authority which he previously has had to supervise this work.
