Young Burbanks to Display Corn at the Big 1915 Fair

Nine thousand young Burbanks of the corn fields—boy and girl delegates to the convention of the National Top-Notch Farmers' club—are expected to visit the Panama-Pacific International exposition in a body in 1915. These delegates will represent every great corn producing county in thirty-three states of the Union, three representatives being chosen from each county by the governor of each state.

Each of the 3,000 delegates to the exposition has earned the honor by producing a record-breaking acre of corn, the greatest food material in the world, running upwards of 100 bushels to the acre. Each will bring with him his unique credentials in the shape of ten ears of his prize corn to place on exhibition in competition with the world. If laid side by side, these ears would extend for a distance of four miles, enough to put a golden giraffe around the outside wall of the entire exposition grounds.

No one is eligible to membership in the Top-Notch club who has not produced over 100 bushels of corn to the acre; and when it is remembered that fifty to seventy bushels formerly were regarded as a maximum, the great work which these young promoters of intensive cultivation are doing to educate their parents may be appreciated. The president of the club is the boy who has the highest record. This year it was W. I. Dunson of Alexander City, Ala., who earned his office by producing over 232 bushels on an acre, and he will hold the office until such time as some one by better methods of selection of seed and cultivation takes from him both the record and the office.

While Alabama has won the presidency by scoring the largest yield, Illinois scored the greatest number of individual records, 214 young corn growers in that commonwealth having qualified for membership. Singularity enough, Mississippi, which won the second highest score, also has the second largest number of top-notch growers, with 80 farmers who have qualified.

The executive committee of five of the National Top-Notch Farmer's club will meet at an early date to formulate further plans for the great convention and exhibit in San Francisco in 1915, though most of the larger details already have been marked out. This committee is composed of E. D. Funk of Shirley, Ill., president of the National Corn Association, Prof. P. C. Holden of Chicago, director of Agricultural Extension of the International Harvester Company, Honorable A. P. Sandles, president of the Ohio Agricultural Commission, Honorable J. K. Dickerson, secretary of the Illinois Department of Agricultural, and Colonel C. F. Mills, a Journalist of Springfield, Ill., secretary of the club. Prof. Holden is in charge of the program for the San Francisco meeting. Commissioner Sandles will have charge of the excursion. Secretary Dickson will be out for the corn show and convention, and Chairman Funk will manage the corn show exhibit. Co-operative with them are the thirty-three governors, each of whom will appoint three delegates from each corn-growing county of his state.

These delegates will number 5,000. In addition, a large number of members of their families and other progressive farm boys and girls—for many of those experts are girls—will join the army of productive soil tillers at the exposition. Each of these delegates will assemble an exhibit of the best of his 1914 corn at the state fair in his state, in competition with displays of others. Each will bring with him to San Francisco an exhibit of at least ten ears of his prize product. At the convention, papers will be read and addresses delivered by the boys and by many agricultural experts from all over the world. The vast corn and other farm exhibits made at Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Java, Japan, France—thirty-five foreign countries and forty states and territories in all—will be there as a vast laboratory to be used in connection with this universal university.

Austrian Troops Repulsed.
LONDON, Aug. 17.—(655 a. m.)—The correspondent of the Reuter Telegraph company at Nish, Servia, telegraphing under date of August 15, says: "Our troops at Buzak, near Lyma, successfully repelled the enemy. Near Kunachitza, opposite Lomita, the enemy has thrown a bridge across Drina and fortified its position on both banks. The night at Belgrade passed quietly."

A Warning to Folks Having Clothes Cleaned!

Three-fourths of the so-called "cleaners" about town are not cleaners at all, but are possessed of only a sewing machine and a pressing iron. Many of these will merely sponge and press your garments and remove a few spots, but will charge you the price of a REGULAR cleaning by a REGULAR cleaner.

But this establishment, for instance, is financially responsible and insures your garments against loss by theft, fire, water, etc.; many of the smaller so-called cleaners can not and will not do this. And there is a lot of misrepresentation going on by fake solicitors. As far as Dreshers' solicitors and wagon men are concerned they will henceforth have the name "Dresher" on their HATS. BETTER BE SAFE THAN SORRY.

Cuban Building Plan at Panama Expo Approved

The plans for the Cuban building at the Panama-Pacific International exposition have been approved by the exposition division of works and following an issuance of a building permit the construction work will commence immediately. The general contract has been let to the San Francisco firm of Fleming and Sarsi and calls for the expenditure of $50,000. The picturesque design of the structure assures its being one of the most interesting among the foreign buildings at the exposition. The architect is Edmund Centurion, a young Cuban who was selected in competition with the leading architects of the island republic and who is now a resident of San Francisco.

The pavilion will be in the Spanish-American style of architecture characteristic of Cuba. It will be two stories in height with a tower at one corner. On three sides will stretch the wide verandahs common to Cuban haciendas and in the center of the building will be a large glass-covered patio filled with Cuban plants and flowers.

Including the cost of its building Cuba will spend upward of $250,000 in making her exhibit at the exposition. The display will be distributed between the Cuban building and the exposition exhibit palace, and will include exhibits of the methods of fighting tropical diseases; a modern tobacco factory and extensive industries and the mineral resources of the island.

The Cuban building will adjoin the Argentine building near the southern boundary of the exposition grounds of the Presidio.

MUST KEEP STOCK OFF ROSEBUD RESERVATION

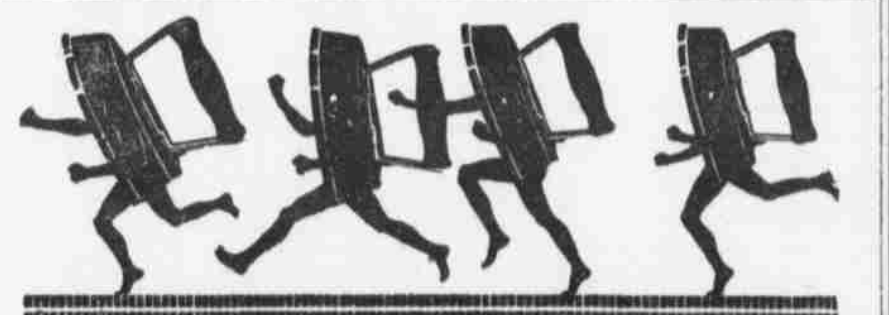

SIoux FALLS, S. D., Aug. 17.—(Special.) For some time it has been the practice of ranchmen living along White river in Layman county to run their stock across the river to the Rosebud Indian reservation and graze them on the Indian lands, where thousands of tons of hay grow annually. Excitement has been aroused among the white stockmen by the receipt of official notice from the sub-agent in charge of that district of the reservation that they must in future keep their animals off the reservation. The sub-agent, following this notice, has seized a number of the white stockmen's horses and cattle and has notified them that the animals will not be released and surrendered to them until they pay a fine of $1 for each head of stock thus seized.
