TIPPLE ADDS ANOTHER WIN

Kaws Succumb to His Slants in Tenth Inning Battle.

MARTY KRUG WRECKING CREW

German Reservist Knocks Three Blows Out of Three Times Up and Scores Tipple with Winning Count.

After three terrible days in Lincoln, where they suffered the intense humility of wearing Lincoln suits because of the transportation delinquencies of a certain railroad, Pa. Rourke's brave and fearless athletes returned to the home lot to take part in ten more or less exciting and thrilling innings of our great national pastime yesterday. Inasmuch as Daniel Tipple, the well known puletriduous athlete who now has a chance to flaunt his sartorial display to pedestrians on Farnam street, and Marty Krug, the well known German reservist, were in the battle, Omaha topped, 3 to 2. Daniel did the pitching and Marty did the wrecking.

ball, permitted but four messy hits and passed but one gink. The Kaws were lucky to get the two runs they did get.

On the other hand Marty busted the old ball three times out of three times up and sent home the winning run in the tenth. Incidentally Tipple was the athlete who carried over the said winning run.

Tipple and Krug Do the Work. Tipple poked a nasty grounder at Lattimore which that gentleman failed to field with the necessary promptitude. Payne sacrificed Dan to second and then Krug came up. He drove a beaut to right. By Forsyth ducked his head and scalded the club house without even waiting to see where the ball might go let alone chasing it. Krug went to first and Tipple came home and where the ball went to is unknown, although it is suspected that Johnny Goding had his flock of trained chasers hot on the trail. Balls cost money and times are hard with all the war and one thing or another. Like Mr. Tipple the bugs also went home. Both of them hopped aboard the street car rejecting in the well-earned victory.

The Kaws scored in the opening stanza through large gobs of luck. Whelan walked and was sacrificed by Tallon. He went to third on Forsythe's infield out and came home when Krug mused Koerner's roller. A blow by Forsythe, a sacrifice by Koerner and a

St. Paul-Would Play Omaha Champions

A. L. Luger, manager of the North St. Pauls, champions of St. Paul, is in Omaha planning with directors of the Omaha Amateur association for the game between the Omaha champs and the St. Paul champs. Luger is anxious to have the game held next Sunday in Omaha, but this will be impossible as Rourke park is already taken by the Stars team. Because of that fact that the winner of the Omaha-St. Paul series must play the winner of the Louisville-Chicago series on September 27, the result must hinge in one game, although two, one in each city, were scheduled.
