

SAENGERBUND WILL HOLD MEETING HERE

Big Session Transferred from Denver by National Officers of the Organization.

LOCAL GERMANS ENTHUSIASTIC

Saengerbund Always Brings from Ten to Twenty Thousand Persons to Cities Where it Meets.

Because Omaha is known as the best convention city in this part of the nation, the city of Denver loses the biennial convention of the Northwestern Saengerfest association, and Omaha will profit by that city's loss.

It was made certain last night at a meeting of the Omaha Musikverein that the Germans of this city will contract again to care for the big convention in 1915, just as they did in 1913, when many thousands of visitors came here.

On account of adverse conditions expected in Denver in July, 1915, that city, which had previously made a gallant fight in order to secure the 1913 meeting, decided that it could not properly care for the vast number of visitors.

Theodore G. Behrens of Chicago and George Klock, Milwaukee, president and secretary of the Northwestern Saengerbund association, respectively, were in Omaha yesterday, and remembering Omaha's excellent entertainment and reception in 1913, offered to give this city first chance at the big meeting.

Provide Week's Entertainment. The meeting of the local Musikverein was held last night and it was unanimously decided that the German citizens of this city would provide a week of entertainment for the visitors worthy of the golden anniversary of the organization.

A committee consisting of Val J. Peter, J. J. Hens, Leo Hoffman, A. L. Meyer and Harry Fisher was selected to organize an association to be known as the Omaha Saengerfest association, and this committee will begin operations at once as the convention is to be held either the last week in June or the second week in July.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Omaha Musikverein at its meeting last night:

Whereas, The Northwestern Saengerbund association has been notified by the Denver (Colo.) singing societies, that it will be impossible for them, owing to adverse business and financial conditions in their city, resulting from the prohibition amendment adopted by Colorado at the last election, which has already a pall upon undertakings there of that nature, to hold the saengerfest scheduled for 1915 in their city, and celebration being its fiftieth anniversary and therefore the most important one since its organization; and

Whereas, Said association has thereby been compelled to transfer the festival to some other city able and willing to undertake the vast amount of labor connected therewith, and to raise the necessarily large funds required for such a festival on such short notice; and

Whereas, The Northwestern Saengerfest held in Omaha in 1913 was such a grand and unqualified success both musically and financially, having made an extraordinarily splendid impression upon the general public of the city, state and adjoining states; and

Whereas, Such a celebration is of great benefit to Omaha, both in an artistic and educational as well as in a material sense;

Be It Resolved, That we, the members of the German singing societies, incorporated as the Omaha Musikverein, as loyal citizens of Omaha, in meeting assembled, have unanimously accepted the offer of the president and secretary of the Northwestern Saengerbund, now with us, to transfer the 1915 celebration to Omaha, and that we do hereby extend our hearty invitation, and promise an enthusiastic welcome to the 1,000 or more singers who will take part in the grand chorus, and to their families and friends, assuring them, while we sympathize with the Denver members in their loss of the most splendid entertainment that they have ever received in any city during their biennial festival.

Be It Further Resolved, That we ask the music loving public of Omaha and Nebraska to favor us with their liberal assistance, and to help us in making the 1915 celebration an even greater success than the 1913 festival here by giving us their unstinted moral support.

Cresson Mine Sends Out Rich Shipment

Many Omahans interested in the welfare of the Cresson mine at Cripple Creek, Colo., will be gratified to learn that some time this week that particular hole in the ground will send to Denver a carload of high-grade ore weighing 30,000 pounds and valued at $1,000,000.

Some of the ore in the shipment is worth, it is declared on good authority, over $100 a pound. The shipment is said to be the most valuable in point of size, ever made in the world. The next most valuable shipment ever made is declared to have been sent out of Goldfield when a carload valued at $500,000 was sent out.

A Denver businessman who saw some of the ore, declares that the richest stuff does not look like ore at all, but looks like pure gold.

Small Depositor Draws His Savings Because of Hunger

Hungry, cold and discouraged, a little old man called at the postal savings bank in the federal building and withdrew $1 from his small account.

"Why, you generally deposit money, instead of drawing any out," Miss Clara Southard, the cashier, remarked.

"Yes, but I'm out of work now, and haven't had a square meal in four days," the old man explained, "so I've got to break into my little pile. I had to do it, but it's either that or starve."

A number of other regular depositors at Uncle Sam's bank are now said to be drawing out money instead of adding to their accounts. They say the money is intended for necessities and not for Christmas presents.

JACQUES RIEUR ADDRESSES ASSEMBLY ON REFORMERS

Jacques Rieur, chairman of the National Fund committee, addressed an assembly in the Zionist synagogue, Nineteenth and Burt streets, Monday night, making a comparison between the Heilensists of 1,000 years ago and present reformers.

The speaker, together with L. Kneeter, will leave Omaha Saturday evening for St. Louis to represent the Omaha Zionists at the annual convention.

Mr. Rieur will represent the Menorah society at the Intercollegiate convention at the University of Cincinnati.

A family of eight, including the husband, his mother, wife and five children, all in great need, have been found by the Associated Charities and will be helped through the winter. The father, despairing of finding work in Omaha, has gone east and cannot secure work.

The great need of the poor in Omaha is work, Mrs. Doane reiterated. "A job is better than a donation. There is very little work to do in the city now and practically nothing in the adjacent country."

Several hundred cases are being investigated by the Associated Charities and scores of families are being assisted through the hard times.
