By MELLIFICIA. Tuesday, April 6, 1915.

At one of the pretentious dinners of the winter among the guests was a very popular bachelor, who had been sojourning in other lands for some time. This said bachelor was always the gayest of his social lions and had boasted, with very good reasons, of his conquest of the fair sex.

As the dinner progressed the gentleman was assailed by the leading feminine questions of the hour: "What do you think of suffrage, Mr. —?" and, "Just what is your opinion of the feminism movement?"

After the dinner was over, in sheer desperation, and, as he says, a complete physical wreck dodging the question-darts, he quickly went for his hat.

"Why," said the host, "going so early?" "Yes," replied the guest, "I can't stand it any longer. I don't know a thing about suffrage and feminism. I guess I can't talk to women any more."

"Oh, stick around," said the host, "there's nothing to that. I thought the same once. My wife was just as bad as any of them. Go back, friend. Get each one of them behind one of the palms, make a little bit of love to them, and you'll be there all right."

As the evening progressed the host asked his friend: "Well, how are you getting along old chap?"

"Fine, fine," replied the guest, "I'm engaged to three already."

Newell-Wilcox Wedding.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Wilcox was the scene of a very pretty wedding last evening when their daughter, Miss Marguerite Ethel, became the bride of Mr. Arthur M. Newell.

The ceremony was performed at 3 o'clock in the living room, which was profusely decorated with yellow and white roses. In one corner of the room a canopy was formed of ferns and white narcissus, and here the marriage lines were read by Rev. C. M. Dawson, pastor of the Diets Memorial church.

Mrs. Raymond Young played the Lohengrin wedding march.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine entrails made along the empire lines. The bodice was cut in coat effect and elaborately trimmed with seed pearls. The tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms sent from the home of Mrs. Frederick Johnson in southern California.

Miss Hazel Snell was the maid of honor and was gowned in yellow pussy-willow taffeta made round length. The skirt was made with three flounces of shadow lace and the lace bodice was trimmed with yellow rosebuds. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses.

Little Miss Virginia Wilcox and Master Robert Lampmann, niece and nephew of the bride, stretched the ribbons. Miss Virginia wore a dainty frock of French embroidered mulla and Master Robert a white Oliver Twist suit.

Mr. Leo R. Wilson was the best man. A reception followed the ceremony for the wedding guests, which were the immediate families of the bride and groom and a few close friends.

In the dining room a yellow and white color scheme was used, carried out with jonquils and narcissus. The table centerpiece was a huge mound of yellow roses. The bride's go-away gown was of Belgian blue gabardine. With this was worn a black Milan straw toque.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Newell will be at home with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox, at 1365 Lothrop street.

BRINGS A WEDDING CAKE FROM COWES

English Girl Braves Dangers of German Submarines to Be Married in Omaha.

HER CHIEF THOUGHT IN DANGER

Miss Marie A. E. Shorter, former principal of West Point college, Cowes, Isle of Wight, England, who will be married in Omaha today, brought a beautiful large wedding cake safely across the ocean through all the dangers of German submarines and mines which for weeks have held the attention of the world.

Miss Shorter crossed the Atlantic on the Mergantic, among whose adventures on the way was the rescuing of Captain Avery and his wife and fourteen of the crew of the Denver, a freight vessel which was abandoned in the ocean. During the early part of the voyage the passengers of the Mergantic were provided with life preservers ready for instant use and were forbidden to come on deck.

"While women who had children were planning to save them and others were worrying about jewels or other valuables, I admit that my chief thought was for my wedding cake," she said, smiling. "If the order had come to leave the ship I intended to take it with me."

Miss Shorter will marry Arthur V. Morgan, who is in the employ of the city of Omaha. Mr. Morgan secured the license, being accompanied by Roy M. Catthers, a friend. She is staying at the home of Mr. Catthers' mother, Mrs. John T. Catthers, 207 Locust.

The marriage ceremony will be performed at noon tomorrow at the Church of the Good Shepherd by Rev. Thomas J. Colby.

PRINTERS TO PUSH "STOP OFF IN OMAHA" SLOGAN

A systematic plan to get the "Stop off in Omaha" slogan on letter heads in the city is being worked out by the Ben Franklin club. As this is an organization of printers they have decided to keep the little cut containing the slogan and a skyline of Omaha on hand at their print shops. As orders come in for stocks of letter heads for various business firms the printers expect to ask the customers to allow the little cut to be placed artistically in the corner of the letter head without extra charge to the customer. The bureau of publicity will furnish the cuts to the printers.

Lee's Shampoo is not sudsy. The thick, soft, creamy lather is of great cleansing power but of little penetration. It does not penetrate the scalp pores or hair fibre. It does not leave behind a lot of "soaked in" soap to set up scalp irritation; to cause brittle, breaky and falling hair. It removes only surface accumulations of oil, grease, dirt and dandruff. It leaves the hair clean, soft and silky.

Europe and America

The United States with 6 per cent of the world's population has 65 per cent of all the world's telephones.

The Bell System and its connecting companies operate 21,000,000 miles of telephone wire and 9,000,000 telephones. In relation to the population, this is more than ten times as many telephones as Europe has.

In the United States the telephone is operated day and night. In Europe, in cities the size of Omaha and smaller, it is the usual custom to close the telephone exchanges at 8 or 9 o'clock at night and all day Sundays and holidays.

In the United States we can talk from the Atlantic to the Pacific, a distance greater than from New York to London. In Europe no telephone line is longer than from Omaha to Cleveland, and even then if we are to judge by the word of those who have tried to use the European service, it is very unsatisfactory.

In Europe practically all the telephones are owned and operated by the various governments.

Since the Government began work on the Panama Canal in 1904 the Bell Telephone System has spent more money in extensions and improvements than the United States Government spent to dig the ditch, build the Canal, and buy the right-of-way.
